Much About Russia.
Good Airplane News.
Why Not Mr. Kahn?
Can Wheat Be Bolstered?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE Russian government is carrying out its plan to spend, on industrial development, $6,750,000,000 in five years. The first year's expenditure is made. The money is ready for the second year.

E. J. Kviring, head of the Russian State Planning commission, tells American engineers in Moscow that Russia will surpass the United States in industrial production.

THAT may be enthusiastic exaggeration, for "it hath not yet been shown what we shall be."

But it is probable that Russia will become our greatest industrial rival. There is terrific power in revolutionary enthusiasm. It sweeps away cobwebs, making everything seem easy, as shown in France when revolutionists overcame the armies of Europe and frightened half a dozen kingdoms, including England.

HOWEVER, that enthusiasm dies out as the leaders grow rich. Proudhon, super-revolutionist, put it in a few words: "Monarchies are destroyed by poverty, republics by wealth."

A PROPOSAL to establish the calendar on a saner basis failed to get two-thirds majority, but did get a majority, in a nationwide referendum among American business organizations.

The work for the new calendar has been useful in education. Mr. George Eastman, of Rochester, has done the greater part.

MEANWHILE, Russia has changed her year without loss of time and in a way to amaze American labor unions, gloating over the bare beginnings of a five-day working week.

In Russia, labor works four days, then rests one day. There are no Sundays, no religious or other holidays, except four official Bolshevist celebrations.

But every fifth day is a rest day.

IN 70 days the American worker has 10 Sundays off. In 70 days the Russian worker will have 14 days of rest. And Russians say they will beat us in industrial production.

Their theory is that a man well-rested produces more. And while men rest one day, after four days' work, Russia proposes to keep machines running night and day, all year round, with three eight-hour shifts of men.

It might help the unemployment problem elsewhere.

IMPORTANT flying news. Commander Moshkof and three other aviators of the Russian government have flown over the Pamir Mountains, from Tashkent to Khorog on the Afghan border, and back. The temperature, flying through a pass in the mountains, 17,360 feet high with stone precipices 3,000 feet higher on either side, was 70 degrees below zero.

AMERICAN high finance, still remembering its Russian-bond stomachache, quite naturally repudiated, will observe that Russia is at work. In proportion to her means she does more pioneer work in aviation than is done in this country.

WHAT engineers call "the nearest approach to a nothing-but-wing" plane is shown in Germany. Tailless, shaped like an arrow, it has a propeller that pushes one 8 horsepower motor, and goes 78 miles an hour. To learn to fly this plane is easy. Only a 30 to 40-feet run is needed for a take-off, and vertical rudders act as brakes in landing.

This plane, revolutionizing airplane construction, according to competent engineers, costs only $800. Tens of thousands could be sold in this country.

DR. EDMUND RUMPLER, of Berlin, plans a huge seaplane to carry 160 passengers across the Atlantic in 20 hours.

He should bring that idea to Mr. Sloan, of General Motors, now in the airplane game, or to C. E. Mitchell, of the National City Bank, who started United Aircraft.

Plenty of money and engineering skill here. What we seem to lack is pioneering enthusiasm.

OTTO H. KAHN is chosen treasurer of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee and there is objection by some of the Western senators, called "insurgents" because they choose to think for themselves. Instead of objecting, these Western gentlemen should rejoice. And instead of dealing with high finance at arm's length, friends of farmers should encourage able men that understand business organization to take an interest in politics.

MR. KAHN has proved that he understands business, including organizing and financing. He might have ideas about farm relief, for instance, that would really relieve.

You notice that when Wall street cries for relief, its friends know how to provide it.

TO "bolster wheat," the Farm Board put $100,000,000 at the disposal of the Grain Corporation. What will that corporation be able to do with $100,000,000?

This first experiment in farm relief, by way of Uncle Sam's Treasury, will be interesting.

WILL the relief materialize? Will it relieve farmers, of whom many have sold their wheat by now? Will it relieve wheat speculators, that gambled in wheat while others gambled in

'PIGMY' TALK AT DINNER DENIED

Counsel for G. O. P. Says Charge That He Slurred Senators Is 'Ghost' Story

James Francis Burke, general counsel for the Republican National Committee, is about to give up his office in Washington, he disclosed today.

Election of Claudius H. Huston as Republican national chairman will relieve him, he said, of much of the work that has kept him at the national capital for the greater part of two years.

"I have been virtually officiating as national chairman," he said, "for Dr. Hubert Work was unable for long periods to attend to the duties. Now I will be able to turn the work over to Mr. Huston."

DESK AT WHITE HOUSE

Mr. Burke, during his sojourn in Washington, has had a desk at the White House. He will return to the capital tomorrow night and arrange his affairs so that hereafter he may be able to spend most of his time in Pittsburgh.

Mr. Burke, under fire because of the speech he made at a dinner in New York given by Jeremiah Millbank, the banker, in honor of Huston, refused today to take the matter very seriously.

Pressed to comment on the Washington report that he had offended

STATE SEDITION LAW UPHELD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The United States Supreme Court today upheld the validity of the Pennsylvania anti-sedition law in dismissing appeals of three Austrian residents of Aliquippa, Pa.

The three, Peter Muselin, Tom Zima and Milan Rosetar, were convicted in the courts of Beaver County, Pa., of sedition under the Pennsylvania laws.

They were each fined $500 and sentenced to serve five years in the Allegheny County workhouse by Judge William A. McConnell, of Beaver county, two years ago. The long legal battle followed which ended in today's opinion.

Two other defendants were tried. One was acquitted in the Beaver County Court and the other was absolved by the Pennsylvania State Supreme Court.

The sedition case against Peter Muselin, Tom Zima and Milan Rosetar grew out of a raid on Communist headquarters at Aliquippa, November 11, 1926, according to the Beaver County records.

A large quantity of "Red" literature was found, testimony at the trial revealed. Some of the pamphlets advocated overthrow of the United States Government and the setting up in its stead of a Soviet regime, according to the testimony. Force was to be employed if necessary.

The three convicted men have been at liberty in $7,000 bail each pending the outcome of the court battle which hinged on the constitutionality of the Pennsylvania anti-sedition act.

GRID STAR WINS MISS CHRYSLER

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—The rumored romance of Miss Bernice Chrysler, daughter of Walter P. Chrysler, automobile magnate, and Edgar W. Garbisch, former football star at Washington and Jefferson and West Point, has been confirmed. Formal announcement of the engagement will be made at a dinner tonight at the Chrysler home, Great Neck, L. I.

Miss Chrysler was introduced to New York society in the season of 1926-27 after returning from Paris where she completed her studies in art and languages. She is 21.

Mr. Garbisch, son of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Christian Garbisch, of Washington, Pa., was football captain both at Washington and Jefferson and at West Point. He played center.

In 1924 his spectacular playing figured largely in the defeat of the Navy. He was selected for many all-America teams. He also was captain of the tennis teams both at Washington and Jefferson and at West Point.

Since he resigned his lieutenant's commission in 1926 he has engaged in the cotton brokerage business in New York.

It is understood the wedding will take place early in the new year.

Miss Chrysler was a resident of Bellevue until she was aged three years. When her father was a comparatively unknown engineer the Chrysler family lived on North Harrison avenue, Bellevue. They moved away from Bellevue about 18 years ago.

BANKERS' POOL THROWS AID TO STOCKS

Morgan Rushes Assistance as More Weakened Accounts Are Dumped on Market

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Coincident with a sharp break in prices on the New York Stock Exchange today, bankersmet hurriedly in the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co., directly across the street from the exchange. Among those present was Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City Bank, and a member of the pool of bankers who pledged themselves to support the market in an emergency.

At 2:15 p. m., sales had passed 6,500,000.

DEVASTATING SELLING

The whole mechanism of the market was thrown out of gear by the crush of liquidation and speculative selling which poured in from all sections of the country. There was no section of the market in which the devastating effect of selling was not seen.

With the ticker an hour behind at the end of the third hour, bulletins from the floor of the Stock Exchange showed prices were solidly on the bottom.

The bankers were called into conference in the early afternoon, when the situation on the stock exchange appeared to be in the need of a guiding hand. Not the slightest sign of a rally had appeared up to that time any many of the best stocks in the listed

He instructed police to warn users of the above Halloween implements and if they continued, to arrest them on charges of violating a city ordinance.

COMMITTEE O.K. GIVEN GRAHAM

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—The Senate Judiciary Committee today approved the nomination of Louis E. Graham to be federal district attorney for the Western District of Pennsylvania, and ordered it reported to the Senate for action.

Only one hearing was held on the Graham nomination, John S. Pyle, Pittsburgh attorney, opposing it on the ground that Graham, as legal adviser to John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator for the Western District of Pennsylvania, had advised "lawless" prohibition raids.

Graham denied the accusation and Pennington told a sub-committee investigating the appointment that responsibility for the raids rested with the federal district attorney and not with his office.

PANTAGES HELD GUILTY; TO APPEAL

Conviction Carries Jail Sentence of 1 to 50 Years; Jury Out Over 21 Hours

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Alexander Pantages, theatrical magnate whose fortune of millions grew from a stake in the Klondike gold rush, today faced a prison sentence of from one to 50 years following his conviction on a statutory charge by a Supreme Court jury here last night. The verdict will be appealed, defense attorneys announced.

Pantages, 54 years old, was found guilty of an attack on Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, when the girl went to his offices to book a vaudeville act on his theatrical circuit.

JURY OUT 21 HOURS

The jury of seven women and five men deliberated 21 hours.

Pantages at once became prisoner No. 119,251 in the Los Angeles county jail, pending formal pronouncement of sentence Friday morning by Superior Judge Charles Fricke, who presided at his trial.

The vaudeville impresario, who recently sold several of his Western theaters for $15,000,000, took his conviction stoically, and declared: "I'm going to fight it out."

Pantages immediately was remanded to the custody of the sheriff and taken to the county jail, where

COUNTESS KAROLYI

KAROLYIS WILL VISIT U. S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—On the basis of a new application, Count and Countess Michael Karolyi will be granted visa by the American consul general at Paris to visit the United States.

Secretary of State Stimson today said his action was based on a new application made by the Hungarians. Before he made his decision the records of the previous applications of the noted radicals had been considered, he said.

While the reason for Karolyi's exclusion was not made public by the State Department, it was understood to be due to the Hungarian's radical views.

Charles Evans Hughes, while secretary of state, admitted Count Karolyi to the United States in 1925 so he could be at the bedside of his wife who was then ill here.

Sets Fire to Home; Saved With Children

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Constable John Lehew, of Frances, mining village, saved Alva Turner, 35, and his two children from possible death in their burning home after Turner was alleged to have set the house on fire while intoxicated.

Lehew was called by Mrs. Turner, who told him her husband had been drinking, that he had saturated the floor with kerosene and then applied a match.

Turner was arrested on an arson charge, but when his wife declined to appear against him the matter was closed by fining him $1 and costs on an intoxication charge.

RESOLUTION TO PROPOSE CENSURING SENATOR

Charge of 'Frameup' in Quiz On Eyanson Followed by Denunciation and Jeers

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Casting traditional senatorial courtesies to the high winds, Senator Hiram Bingham (Rep.), of Connecticut, and members of the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee indulged in a vitriolic debate this afternoon over his employment of a paid lobbyist to aid in writing the new tariff bill.

The climax came when Senator Caraway, chairman of the committee, challenged the whole Republican side of the Senate to defend or uphold Bingham's action, only to find every Republican senator present remaining silent in his seat. No such rebuke of a senator has occurred within the memory of present senators.

"FRAMEUP" CHARGED

While the chamber seethed with excitement, Bingham charged the committee was "framed" against him and every interest of the administration and with "conducting a modern Spanish inquisition." He declared it had avoided its duty of investigating lobbyists in order to "besmirch" his reputation and character.

Three committee members—Caraway, (Dem.) of Arkansas; Walsh, (Dem.) of Montana, and Blaine, (Rep.) of Wisconsin—had replied in harsh vein when the harshest blow to Bingham came from his Republican colleague, Robinson, of Indiana, who denounced Bingham's action and declared neither the Republican party nor the American people could approve of it.

Then Senator Norris, (Rep) of Nebraska, entered the chamber and announced he would introduce a resolution of censure against Bingham later in the day.

"SUPERIORITY" ATTACKED

Both Caraway and Blaine flayed Bingham's action in arranging with E. Kent Hubbard, president of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association to "borrow" Charles L. Eyanson, a paid lobbyist, to act as his secretary. All the time Eyanson served Bingham he was paid a $10,000 a year salary by the association although for five weeks the

OHIO SENATOR NEAR DEATH

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Senator Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio, still was alive today, but attendants said there had been no change in his condition, which is so critical that friends have practically abandoned hope for his recovery.

The 77-year-old Senator has been in ill health since an attack of grip about a month ago and a few days ago he had a relapse and has declined rapidly.

Senator Burton was unconscious, shortly before noon, his physician said, but his pulse was strong and it was regarded as likely that he would, at least, live through the day.

Men Fight Knife Duel Over Belated Breakfast

An argument between two Hazelwood men because, police were told, breakfast of one was missing when he arose, caused a knife duel that necessitated the removal of both to the Homeopathic Hospital.

The victims are suffering from lacerations of the head, body and neck. They are reported in serious condition.

The men are James Morris, 54, of 206 Noah street, Hazelwood, and William H. Francis, 67, of the same address, brother-in-law.

At the house, Lieut. William Madine and Patrolman Frank Nave, and Andrew Leposki said they found Morris lying semi-conscious on the floor. After the cutting Francis recovered strength enough to run to the home of Aden Francis, of 4344 Bristol street, a short distance away.

Francis, according to police, arose late and remonstrated with Morris because breakfast was not ready. Morris was helping other members of the household with the weekly washing.

When the argument grew bitter, Francis, police were told, grabbed a large butcher knife from a kitchen drawer and began slashing Morris. After a short scuffle, Morris, police say, secured the knife and cut Francis.

Three Nephews Contest Millionaire's Will

The signature on the will of Martin J. Agan, Cheswick station agent who left most of his $1,000,000 estate to charity, is not genuine, his three nephews charged as their contest suit was begun in Orphans Court today.

They also contended that their uncle was "not mentally capable."

The will gives the nephews each $50 monthly for a lifetime, "provided they do not engage in the sale or manufacture of intoxicating liquors."

Agan, who died 21 months ago, also specified that any heirs who contest the will shall sacrifice their shares.

Charities of the Roman Catholic Church in the Pittsburgh diocese received most of the estate, and Bishop Hugh C. Boyle was named one of the trustees.

Other beneficiaries were Inez H. McNulty, to receive $200 monthly, and Rose Alma Whitter, $100 monthly.

One of the first witnesses today was a hand-writing expert, Henry G. Burtner, who testified that the signature on the will was not Agan's. He reported evidences of tracing and retracing.

Clarence Eyler, of the Springdale Trust Company, and Walter Thompson, of Springdale, testified they had signed the will as witnesses.

Much of Mr. Agan's estate was in Springdale Township property.

The nephews are Martin J. Seiffried and Leo J. Seiffried, of Chicago, and Alfred S. Seiffried, of Lima, O.

L. A. Burnet, of Pittsburgh, one of the organizers and a former officer of the Springdale National Bank, testified he did not believe the signature to be genuine. Burnet said that in 1929, the year the will was made, Agan showed signs of poor memory. W. G. Fink, of Springdale, was another witness called.

STARVATION VERDICT DEEPENS MYSTERY IN CHILD'S DEATH

BODY FOUND IN HOLE ON MOUNTAIN

Boy, Missing 3 Weeks, Could Not Have Reached Scene Unaided, Investigators Say

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—The first official announcements of authorities investigating the death of Allen Geiger, 3 son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Geiger, of Palo Alto, last night added to the mystery of the child's disappearance and death.

Dr. W. L. Glenney, coroner's surgeon, issued a statement in which he said an autopsy had revealed that the boy died of starvation and exposure.

Deputy Coroner C. A. Lord, however, announced that he had obtained possession of Allen's new, tan suede shoes, which were worn by the boy when he disappeared from his home three weeks ago, but which failed to show any indication that they had been worn on the mountain where the body was found.

SHOES DEEPEN MYSTERY

The shoes had been purchased only a few days before the boy vanished, the deputy coroner said, and would have shown at least some scratches if the child had worn them on the rough, stony mountainside.

Deputy Coroner Lord said also that the white stockings worn by the boy had not been soiled, nor did they show any brush marks or "stickers" from the heavy brush.

At the same time the police who were trying to reconcile these two reports, announced that they would issue no statement until today regarding the nature and progress of their phase of the investigation.

The boy disappeared from Palo Alto on October 8 while his family was moving to that place from Pottsville. He had been left with an older sister at the Palo Alto house while his parents returned here for another load of furniture. His sister saw him last when he wandered down stairs from an upper room where the two children had been playing.

BODY PLACED IN HOLE

When the boy's absence was discovered, searching parties covered the district about the home thoroughly and his father, with several friends, visited on one trip the mine breach hole in which the body was found yesterday afternoon by two hunters. The hole was surrounded by brush which investigators reported was too high to have permited Allen to get through unaided. A wrapped coat which lay near the body was regarded as further evidence that the body and the coat had been placed there.

Physicians who made an examination of the body prior to the autopsy, said the body bore no marks of violence and estimated that the body had been dead eight or nine days when his body was found. This estimate would leave the investigators to solve the mystery of the boy's whereabouts during the 10 days or so immediately following his disappearance from Palo Alto.

board were selling close to the 1929 low levels. A critical situation was developing, which clamored for a guiding hand.

RALLY SHORT-LIVED

After the bankers' conference, U. S. Steel rallied from $193 to $198 but later sold off to $190.50, off $12, a new low for the movement.

MANY TRADERS HIT

Many traders, large and small, who held on last week, were forced to throw their holdings overboard because of their inability to supply additional margin to protect their rapidly dwindling accounts. "Bear" traders, sensing the market's weakness, hammered unmercifully at the high priced stocks which dropped $1 to nearly $5 a share between sales.

At the first tap of the opening bell, the flood of selling orders broke out. First prices of the new week showed declines of 1 to 7 points, but before the noon period the market leaders were breaking from 10 to 35 points, in a steady downward downpour of orderly liquidation.

Buying demand for even the best of investment stocks dried up and the pools and big bulls stood aside, refusing to lend any aid whatever to their favorite shares.

CHICAGO STOCKS BREAK

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Chicago stocks today again followed the precipitous movement of last week and crashed down to new lower levels, wiping out fortunes.

Grigsby-Grunow shot down 2¾ points to 3⅞. Others which followed the general trend were: Insull Utilities, down 7½ to 75½, and Midwest Utilities new, down 4 to 31.

Meanwhile, spurred by the release of $100,000,000 in government loans to the grain farmers through the new Farmers National Grain Corporation, wheat prices jumped 2⅞ to 4¾ cents a bushel at the opening of the market today and then receded to a level about 3 cents over Saturday's final prices.

he was booked and garbed in the jail uniform of blue denim.

In his cell Pantages said he had instructed his attorneys to carry an appeal on his conviction to the highest courts.

"I got a raw deal. I didn't have a chance with the jury," Pantages said. "They were against me from the beginning. Looks like a man doesn't have a chance when a woman tries to frame him as I have been framed. But don't you think I am beaten. I have told my lawyers to take this case to the highest court in America if necessary, to get a reversal."

JUDGE THREATENED

Judge Fricke, who presided over the trial, today reported he had been informed that Harvey Connett, discharged juror, had remarked he was going to kill the judge.

At the same time, George Perdue, bailiff in charge of the jury, said he had been told that Connett also threatened to kill him.

Connett was discharged because he was "mentally and physically ill," and unfit to act as a juror.

FAMILY IN COURT

Pantages' family, with the exception of his wife, was in the courtroom when the verdict was read. Mrs. Pantages was ill at her home, following her recent conviction on a charge of manslaughter as a result of an automobile accident in which a Japanese gardener was killed.

Carmen Pantages, young daughter of the defendant, was in an ante-room of the court. Mrs. Dixie Martin, an adopted daughter, fled from the courtroom in tears. Rodney and Lloyd escorted their father to the prisoner's room.

Judge Charles Fricke will sentence Pantages Friday.

If Pantages' attorneys file a motion for a new trial, it will act as automatic stay of sentence until the motion is argued.

WIFE IN TEARS

Pantages was arrested August 9, after Miss Pringle had run from his office screaming that she had been attacked.

Pantages denied that he attacked the girl and asserted she was the aggressor.

Dancer Overjoyed At Pantages Conviction

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—"I am so glad it's all over."

The youthful face of Eunice Pringle, the girl in the Pantages case, who had awaited the verdict at a hotel, fairly shone today with pleasure at the verdict.

"I'm so glad it's all over," she repeated.

"And I am glad that justice was done, not just for myself, but because it means that it will help to deter others from silimar crimes.

HOPES TO FORGET

"I have not decided whether I shall continue with my career on the stage or not."

Eunice's mother and father, who were reunited by the trouble which their daughter has experienced, were with her in their hotel room.

Miss Pringle took occasion to praise Prosecutors Fitts and Stewart.

"They were just marvelous," she said.

"And Judge Fricke is an ideal judge," she added.

Pantages' Wife Near Death, Mother Says

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Mrs. Alexander Pantages, wife of the convicted theater magnate and herself awaiting sentence for manslaughter, was reported near death today by her aged mother, Mrs. Elvira Mendenhall.

Weeping, Mrs. Mendenhall said: "We don't know whether we can save her or not."

2 Brothers Die, Pilot Hurt as Plane Falls

STOCKTON, Cal., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Two brothers were killed and the pilot of the plane in which they were flying was injured seriously when their ship crashed from a height of 150 feet during an air circus at the Stockton municipal airport. Thousands of spectators saw the plane go into a tail spin and crash at the edge of the airport.

The dead are: Floyd Widman, 16, of Terminus, and Oscar E. Widman, 23, his brother. Peter Botkin, Stockton, pilot of the plane, suffered possible internal injuries.

Miami Seeks Name For First Baby Born in Air

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Miami is about to coin a new name for its "air baby," first child ever born in an airplane.

The parents, Dr. and Mrs. T. W. Evans, have not selected a name, although it seemed nearly everybody else had made a suggestion.

The list included "Aerogene," "Airlene," "Airbelle," "Skimiss," and "Airdear."

With a doctor and two nurses in attendance, little Miss Evans, seven and one-half pounds, was born aboa. l a big transport plane as it circled 1,200 feet above Miami.

RADIUM POISON VICTIM RALLIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—A victim of radium poisoning, Mrs. Quinta McDonald, of Orange, N. J., was reported as in "fair" condition at Memorial Hospital. She is one of five New Jersey women whom physicians 16 months ago declared doomed because their systems had absorbed radium from luminous paint which they applied to watch dials while employed by the United States Radium Corporation of Orange, N. J. Their systems absorbed the radium when they pointed the paint brushes with their lips.

Although she was reported to be dying, Memorial Hospital authorities today said Mrs. McDonald's name had not yet been entered on the "critical" list.

One of the victims is Mrs. McDonald's sister, Mrs. Albina Larice, of Orange. The others are Mrs. Edna Hussman Hillside, Miss Katherine Schaub, of Newark, and Miss Grace Fryer, of Orange.

Each of the women sued the corporation for $250,000 and in a private settlement of their court actions, each was awarded $10,000 cash, a $600 annual pension and medical attention.

DEMAND HOOVER ATTITUDE ON TARIFF BILL

Coalition Forces Incensed At Delays and Threat To Kill the Measure

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—A direct conflict of opinion on the fate of the tariff bill was expressed in the Senate this afternoon by Republican leaders after members of the Democratic-Insurgent coalition demanded President Hoover inform the country his attitude toward the measure.

Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, asked the President to announce whether he desired the bill in the form in which the Senate is seeking to enact it, with industrial rates held to present levels and farm rates increased.

PROBE "KILL" REPORT

He also questioned reports that Republican protectionist leaders, beaten in the Senate, were about to kill the bill.

Senator Smoot (Rep.), of Utah, declared he would bend every effort to pass it and expressed a hope the bill might become a law at the special session.

Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, who has predicted death of the measure, expressed doubt it could survive owing to differences between the House and Senate.

BLAME REPUBLICANS

Senator Robinson (Dem.), of Arkansas, blamed the Republican ranks for whatever fate befell the bill. He said the Democratic party would not assume responsibility for its defeat.

"I think we should know whether the President wants the bill presented by the Sinance Committee or whether he wants what the coalition desires," Johnson said.

"If we aren't to have any tariff bill let's not meet at 10 and run until 6 at night. Let's meet at 12 and adjourn at ' o'clock in the afternoon. Let's quit making a gesture down here."

KILLS STUDENT STEALING GAS

MUNCIE, Ind., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Halice Valoris Lindley, 20, of Kokomo, Ind., a sophomore at Ball State Teachers' College here, was shot and fatally wounded early yesterday by Jesse L. Senter as he was leaving Senter's garage, where he was believed to have been stealing gasoline. He died two hours later.

Senter had attached a wire to the door of his garage, so that a buzzer would sound in his bedroom when the door was opened, for the purpose of catching a thief who had been syphoning gasoline from his automobile several nights each week.

When the buzzer sounded this morning, Senter rushed out to find Lindley near the door with a gasoline can in one hand. Lindley ran when Senter commanded him to surrender, and Senter fired at him four times. One bullet took effect. Police indicated no charges will be placed against Senter.

SON, 18, HELD IN FATHER'S DEATH

Joe Clark, 18, of near Allison Park, was held in $3,000 bond today by Coroner W. J. McGregor, in connection with the death of his father, Ernest Clark, 52, who fell dead Saturday after an altercation with the son.

Clark's death first was pronounced from acute alcoholism. A post mortem examination disclosed he suffered a cerebral hemorrhage of two weeks' duration, and that his jaw and face bones were fractured.

Young Clark was held in the belief that a blow which he allegedly struck his father while the father was arguing with his mother, Mrs. Marie Clark, might have caused death. Clark struck a stove as he fell, according to the coroner. He died a few minutes later. Date for a coroner's inquest has not been set. The victim had been drinking heavily the past two weeks, it was said.

VON BUELOW DIES IN ITALY

Former German Chancellor, Called 'Second Bismarck,' Victim of Cold at 80

ROME, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Prince Bernhard Von Buelow, once called Germany's "second Bismarck," died at 6:50 a. m., today at the villa left him by his wife, the former Italian Princess Maria Beccadelli di Bologna, with whom he eloped in 1886. He was 80 years old.

The Prince had been ill for several days, although it was not until he contracted a heavy cold last week his condition was regarded as serious. He had been weakened with grief at his wife's death last January.

Prince von Buelow was a former ambassador to Italy, and held other diplomatic posts in Europe. In 1900 he was made chancellor, and subsequently was put often to appearances before the Reichstag in defense of the Emperor.

He was said after an interview by the Emperor with the London Daily Telegraph in October, 1908, to have broken Wilhelm's pride, demanding and receiving from him a promise to curtail the royal tongue. He retired from the chancellorship in 1909.

He married the Italian Princess di Bologna in 1888, eloping with her when she was the wife of his chief, the Count von Doenhoff, at the Prussian legation at Dresden. The scandal excited by the event was a long time in clearing.

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Plans were made today to bring the body of Prince Bernard Von Buelow, German statesman, who died today at Rome, back for burial to the family estate, Gressflottbeck, near Hamburg.

progressive Republican senators by referring to them at the dinner as "pigmies," he said, with a smile:

"I am afraid somebody has been seeing ghosts.

"I never referred to the progressive senators as pigmies.

"I have served in public life with many of them and know them all. Politically, I may differ with them, but personally they are my friends and they are far from being pigmies.

"Furthermore, I don't believe in calling names. It's a fruitless pastime.

"The New York dinner was composed of many leaders in all lines of business and I spoke briefly of the growing relationship between business and government.

"PIGMY" REFERENCE

"I repeated the following sentence from the speech which I made at the waterway dinner at Pittsburgh on October 17:

"'The underlying philosophy of the present age is not only breeding tolerance in the exchange of views, but bringing about more wholesome understandings in all the activities of life. The era of pigmies is past. The age of giants and gigantic enterprise is here.'

"Someone with a wild imagination converted that into an insinuation against progressive Senators.

"The reference to my speech is just as absurd as the wild-eyed rumors that the Republican party has passed into the control of Wall street.

"That ghost has been walking the political highways for so many years that serious-minded men pay little attention to it."

Fisherman Hooks Safe That Baffles Thieves

BILOXI, Miss., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Two years after the robbery occurred, the unsuccessful attempt to break into a steel safe of the Hamil Commissary, of North Jackson County, has been revealed by a fisherman's catch from the Tchouticabouf River.

The safe, its locks still fast and containing $729.11 cash and valuable papers, was found in the river yesterday when it became attached to a fishing hook. Unsuccessful in attempts to open the steel door, it was believed the robbers dumped their burdensome loot into the stream.

All moneys and papers were intact when the safe, turned over to proper authorities, was opened.

QUEEN MARIE ABANDONS AMBITION, WILL GO INTO EXILE

PREMIER FOE THREATENS DOWAGER

Hope of Playing 'Victoria' Role Wanes; Banishment Intimation Leads to Action

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—Dowager Queen Marie, of Rumania, threatened with banishment from her country because of an interview which she later repudiated, is going into exile.

Bitter at the treatment she received at the hands of the premier, Dr. Julius Maniu, who, it was revealed by a high source in Bucharest, threatens to banish her as her son, former Crown Prince Carol, was banished, and suffering a great loss of prestige, Queen Marie is leaving Rumania shortly for foreign climes. She thus abandons her political ambitions and her dream of being a Rumanian "Queen Victoria."

The queen is going first to Egypt and then, perhaps, to Switzerland, and will wait beyond Rumania's borders until her people beg her to return.

In the meantime the star of Prince Carol—who, although friendly with his mother, owed a good deal to her for his own banishment—is in ascendancy again. There is increasing talk of Carol's being named as a regent in the event of another vacancy, which is expected shortly because of the distressing illness of Patriarch Miron Cristea, a member of the triumvirate.

Queen Marie hoped to play the same role in Rumania as her grandmother, Queen Victoria, did in England. But this role is spoiled by Premier Maniu, who backed the election of Judge Constantin Saracenau for regent instead of Queen Marie.

M'DONALD JOINS IN BOAT DRILL

S. S. DUCHESS OF YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Prime minister Ramsay MacDonald, whose energies in recent weeks have been largely devoted to "narrowing the Atlantic," is seeing that ocean at one of its narrowest points. Although he has been outward bound for two days and has covered nearly 1,000 miles of the voyage to Great Britain, he still could see American shores up to noon yesterday when the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the Straits of Belle Isle were left behind.

Nosing her way toward the Arctic on the last North Atlantic passage of the year, this vessel will reach Liverpool in four days.

The Premier had a busy Sunday morning, exercising in the gymnasium and attending church services. His daughter, Ishbel, rested in her cabin. Later Mr. MacDonald, like any other passenger, took part in the life-boat drill when the full complement mustered on the cold upper deck.

WOMAN CLAIMS SELF DEFENSE

Betty Windsor, 28, of the Craft Apartments, Elsinore square, in a second statement to police today blamed the fatal shooting of John Mellett, 22, of 4212 Haldane street, on boisterous conduct of Mellett and several companions.

Mellett, shot in the heart as he and his friends tried to enter Miss Windsor's apartment, early September 21, died Saturday night in Mercy Hospital after undergoing an operation for removal of the bullet.

"I knew all four of the young men," Miss Windsor told Detectives Robert Burke and Jerry Deasy, they reported, as they prepared to turn her over to the coroner to face a murder charge.

"They had visited my apartment five or six times, generally under the influence of liquor. They were rowdy, and on one visit broke a mirror and burned holes in the chairs and furniture with cigarets," she continued.

She refused to admit Mellett and his companions on the night of the shooting, she said. When they kicked on the door, she said she peered through the door opened a few inches by means of a chain lock and fired.

GAS TAX BATTLE DROPPED

HARRISBURG, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—The petition for an injunction to restrain Secretary of Revenue Charles Johnson from carrying into effect departmental regulations for the bonding of gasoline dealers was withdrawn today from the Dauphin County Court.

Victor Braddock, attorney for the Pennsylvania Gasoline Vendors' Alliance, which backed the suit, asked the court to quash the case because the department "has acceded to practically all our demands contained in the bill of complaint." The court granted the withdrawal.

A recent allowance of the department for leakage and evaporation in making tax returns, one of the principal relief measures sought by the "gas" dealers, was mainly responsible for the decision to drop the case, Braddock said. Several other concessions have been made by the department since the filing of the suit, among which was a reduction in the amount of bonds required.

WITNESS LATE, CASE DELAYED

Habeas corpus proceedings brought by Charles J. Kuros, of 918 Braddock avenue, Braddock, against his wife for possession of their 12-year-old daughter, La Faye, were continued by Judge James R. Macfarlane in Common Pleas Court, when a witness failed to appear.

The case was adjourned until Patrolman Edward J. Mayer, one of the witnesses, was brought into court to testify. Kuros charges his wife, Mrs. Marie Leona Kuros, of 225 Sinclair street, a manicurist, with "not being a fit person to care for his daughter."

Secret Out Here, Gov. Conley's Son Sets 'Date'

With the secret "smoked out" while visiting Pittsburgh, a wedding date has been announced from Charleston for Attorney James (Buck) Conley, son of the West Virginia Governor, to Miss Gertrude Laing, of that city.

The date will be November 27, and the place the First Presbyterian Church, Charleston. A Sun-Telegraph reporter inquired about an engagement ring that adorned Miss Laing's hand while the bride-to-be was a guest of Gov. William G. Conley and his family on a visit here October 12 for the Pitt-West Virginia football tilt. The intended bridegroom had embarrassingly admitted it had not been announced.

FALL SENTENCE STAY SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—A minor echo of the Fall bribery conviction will be heard in the criminal branch of District Supreme Court, where Frank J. Hogan, chief of defense counsel, will present a motion for an arrest in judgment on the former secretary of the interior.

The motion is almost identical with the original demurrer filed in the case, which set forth that Fall could not have been in a position to accept a $100,000 bribe from Doheny because the Navy Department, and not the Interior Department, had the control over leasing the naval oil reserves.

Hogan's move is more or less of a formality for the record. As the demurrer was denied, today's motion undoubtedly will be, also.

Argument on a motion for new trial will be heard Friday, following the expected denial of which sentence will be passed on the ex-cabinet officer and an appeal noted to the higher courts.

Fall was resting somewhat easier today in the seclusion of his hotel, although still confined to bed and showing plainly the evidences of his illness and the shock of his conviction.

RESCUED CREW TELLS OF PERIL

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—A new chapter in Great Lakes history was written as 32 sailors rescued from a barren island in Lake Superior told the story of their adventure.

With the comfort of coast guard headquarters here as a background in place of roaring breakers and snow, they related how their ship, the package freighter Chicago, had gone aground during a storm; how they had made their way to shore; signaled rescuers with a shirt, and after four days isolation, with supplies running low, were brought to this port.

None of them had been affected by the experience; none except the captain, P. C. Farrell, of Buffalo. Chagrined over the mishap, his second in two years, he insisted that "if blame is coming to anybody, it must come to me." He was at the helm when the boat ran aground on Michipicoten Island, in Canadian waters.

SUNKEN FERRY'S NOTE FOUND

HOLLAND, Mich., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—A message signed and ostensibly written by R. Sadin, purser of the Grand Trunk car ferry Milwaukee, which foundered in last week's storm in Lake Michigan, was found in a bottle in the lake near here yesterday.

It was dated October 22 at 6:30 p. m. and read: "Making water fast in slicker. Pumps working good. Have turned back to Milwaukee. Might make it, might not. All crew same as last payroll."

Coast guards explained that "slicker," referred to in the message, is the name given the compartment in which the crew of the ferry slept.

SEA GIVES UP 3 PLANE VICTIMS

LONDON, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—The Gulf of Genoa was being scoured by air and seacraft today for the bodies of four of the seven persons who were drowned when the British Imperial Airways flying boat City of Rome sank in a furious gale while being towed to safety.

Only three bodies have been recovered so far, according to reports received today from Genoa. Of the seven victims, four, including one woman, were passengers. The other three comprised the airliner's crew.

FLYING WEST

The plane, an all-metal trimotored affair, was in the Indian air mail service. It was making the Alexandria to Genoa lap of its westward flight when the tragedy occurred.

Running into a terrific 70 mile an hour gale about 10 miles south of Spezia in the Gulf of Genoa, the 27 year old pilot, L. S. Birt, a former Royal Air Force flier, realized that a forced landing was necessary. He ordered Wireless Operator Stone to send out calls for help and made a good landing on the furious sea.

Help came in the form of the little 400-ton Italian steamer Famiglia. It was impossible to transfer those aboard the plane to the steamer because of the high seas so three tow lines were attached.

TORN FROM RESCUER

After towing the plane for some time, the captain of the Italian ship reported the tow lines suddenly snapped. He scoured the vicinity in the darkness but found no vestige of the plane so made for Spezia at top speed. A destroyer and other craft immediately were dispatched but no sign of the plane was found. Later the pilot's body was washed up on the shore at Via Reggio, according to reports.

The passengers aboard the plane were a Miss Bromford, Messrs. Robins, Ritchie and Turning, the last a British customs official returning to England after a vacation at Naples. The third member of the crew was Pembroke, the engineer.

Russian Church Riches Found In Pigsty

MOSCOW, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Sixty pounds of gold and silver coins of the Czarist period and a large quantity of silver church ornaments and articles studded with pearls and other precious jewels were discovered today by the secret police in a pigsty of a rich peasant named Panteiev, in the village of Maskino, near Moscow.

The authorities said the articles were seized during a famine when the government ordered confiscation of valuable church properties. The pastor of a local church took them and upon dying handed the hidden treasure over to the peasant. He faces a long prison term for his part in the affair.

Much of the work is of the finest of the well-known eighteenth century masters.

Two of his companions, John Zamaris, 19, of 86 South Eleventh street, and George Grosneck, alias Gorgan, 21, of 119 South Eleventh street, are in St. John's Hospital, each suffering from a fractured left leg and probable internal injuries.

Police reported that the machine was speeding over the bridge and apparently got beyond the driver's control. The impact hurled the occupants from the car.

George Costella, 9, of 1004 Fritz street, was in a serious condition in the South Side Hospital today suffering a probable fracture of the skull and other body bruises which he received when struck by an automobile at Carson and South Tenth streets yesterday. U. S. HONORS ROOSEVELT AND NAVY

Naval Ships Thrown Open to Public; Tablet Unveiled to Ex-President in Church

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Washington and the nation celebrated Navy Day today because Theodore Roosevelt's birthday, selected for annual observance by the Navy, came on Sunday.

At Bolling Field 10 naval officers were scheduled to jump from a Ford transport, one after another, as part of the celebration program, landing in line down the field. Other acrobatics also will be performed by naval aviators.

AIR PARADE DOUBTFUL

Eastern cities, which had hoped to get their first glimpse of the Navy's new all-metal airship as well as the Los Angeles and other lighter-than-air craft, appeared doomed to disappointment.

High winds at Lakehurst led the commander of the naval air station there to advise the Navy Department that he believed it would be necessary to forego the parade of airships planned as a feature of the celebration.

OBSERVED AT SEA

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Navy Day, usually celebrated on October 27, the anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt, was observed today on ships at sea and in port.

Ships in port kept open house with tht public invited to visit and inspect the country's fighting craft.

Bestowal of the Theodore Roosevelt medal for distinguished service upon Owen D. Young, author of the reparations plan; Robert Putnam, librarian of Congress, and Owen Wister, novelist, marked the observance of the seventy-first anniversary of Roosevelt's birthday yesterday.

A speech of tribute to Roosevelt by Charles Evans Hughes was broadcast by radio.

TRIBUTE TO ROOSEVELT

Presentation of the Roosevelt medals was made at a dinner at Roosevelt House, in East Twentieth street, Col. Roosevelt's birthplace.

Mr. Hughes in his tribute to Roosevelt said:

"Great as his service was, his greatest service, that of shaping the ideals of our youth, is yet to come."

A bronze tablet bearing the inscription, "The pew of Theodore Roosevelt, 26th President of the United States, for 30 years, from July 1, 1888, until his death, January 6, 1919, now endowed in his memory," was unveiled in Christ Episcopal Church, Oyster Bay.

Heart of Robert Bruce Stolen From Casket

LONDON, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—The heart of Robert the Bruce, the great Scottish chieftain, is missing.

Eight years ago the casket believed to contain Bruce's heart was taken from excavations at Melrose Abbey and given over for safe keeping to the public works department at Edinburgh.

It was intended eventually to comply with the chieftain's dying request, that it be conveyed to the Holy Land. But in some way it now has been mislaid, or purloined, and it appears that Bruce, dead, may be no more successful than Bruce living, in the holy pilgrimage.

Robert the Bruce died just 600 years ago at Cardross after winning Scottish independence from England in the battle of Bannockburn on June 24, 1314, and confirming his own right to the title of Scottish King.

He was unable personally to fulfill a vow to visit the holy sepulchre and requested his faithful follower, Sir James Douglas, to carry his heart there.

Sir James perished on the way to battles against the Moors in Spain. Sir William Keith recovered the heart of Bruce and found its resting place at Melrose, where it remained through the centuries.

AUTO IN WHICH ONE WAS KILLED, THREE HURT ON BRIDGE IN NORTH SIDE

Girl's Daring Drive Saves Student; 6 Fired On

LYNCHBURG, Va., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Three Washington and Lee University students and their girl companions narrowly escaped death under a fusillade from a shotgun and two revolvers, when they stopped at a filling station on the outskirts of the city last night.

Gus Wiltshire, student, was felled and beaten by Garland Falwell, accompanied by Loyd Goff, according to police, who charged Falwell with feloniously shooting the student. Wiltshire was picked up by his girl companions who started the car and raced toward town with the victim, while the other boys fled across a field.

The shooter, after raining a volley upon the fleeing boys, followed the roadster driven by the girls, and fired upon them, police said.

Officers who arrested Falwell, quoted him as saying:

"The girl driving that automobile was the best I have ever seen, or it might have been different."

Aside from this, police announced he gave no motive for the attack.

Hospital authorities said they thought Wiltshire's wounds about the head and neck, were not of a fatal nature. Falwell was released under $5,000 bond.

VOTE MACHINES SHOWN AT SCHOOLS

Sponsors Hope to Reach Parents Through Pupils; Leaders Pledge Support

Hoping to reach parents through their children, the Citizens' Voting Machine Campaign Committee is demonstrating voting machines at the high schools today.

The theory is that the boys and girls, seeing how the devices are worked and how superior they are to paper ballots, will tell their fathers and mothers about it, and that the latter will thereby be influenced to vote at the election of November 5 in favor of the adoption of the machines.

SHOWN AT SCHOOLS

Voting machines are being demonstrated today at the Taylor Allderdice, Allegheny, Carrick, Fifth Avenue, Langley and Peabody High schools.

A machine will be demonstrated tonight at the West View High School, Perrysville road and Chalfant street, in connection with a mass meeting. Senator Frank Harris and others will make speeches calling attention to the advantages that will come from use of voting machines, and urging the electors to vote in favor of their adoption.

Machines will be demonstrated Tuesday at the David B. Oliver, Perry, Schenley, South and South Hills High schools.

LEADERS PLEDGE AID

A number of politicians, political workers and officeholders in addition to those previously announced have pledged themselves over their signatures to work for the adoption of voting machines. The latest list of those pledged includes Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang; Director of Public Health Charles B. Maits; County Controller Robert G. Woodside; John F. Donley, Philip C. Pfleger, Leo G. Griffith, James C. Smith, J. H. Forrest, Sheriff Robert Braun, Dr. C. J. Murphy, of Clairton; Harry Rumble, of Clairton; C. J. McBride, of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes; D. R. Davis, of Carnegie; Burgess John Cavanaugh, of Homestead; Frank Kennedy, of Oakdale; Coroner W. J. McGregor, Samuel Reno; Traffic Engineer Burton W. Marsh; Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park and Councilmen P. J. McArdle, John Herron and Harry A. Little.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Russell Thaw, son of Evelyn Thaw, former wife of Harry K. Thaw, has celebrated his debut as a full-fledged aviator.

In a spotting race in an aerial celebration at the observance of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Trenton, young Thaw was the victor.

SEE COLLUSION, DIVORCE DENIED

Alleged evidences of collusion resulted in the refusal of Judge Richard W. Martin, in Common Pleas Court today, to grant a divorce to William E. Harper, of Clinton, R. D. No. 2, from his wife, Louise M. Harper, after two efforts had been made to patch up the dift.

The couple were married February 11, 1913, and lived together for several years.

In an opinion, read today, Judge Martin said that after a first hearing efforts were made by the three children of the couple to effect a reconciliation. When the reconciliation failed, the woman later went to the home of her husband and father-in-law and demanded $400. This she received, it was stated. She agreed not to return to their home. When a second hearing was held Mrs. Harper failed to appear.

During the divorce proceedings it was charged that Mrs. Harper once went to see her father-in-law and after knocking him down, struck her husband in the face with a shoe.

BOY BURGLARS HUNTED IN 2 ROBBERIES

Knoxville Homes Entered and Ransacked—Looters Cut Way In Through Window

Burglars who gained entrance to two Knoxville homes by using a stepladder and cutting window panes Sunday are being sought by police. Police believe the robberies to have been the work of boys.

At the home of Albert Burzynski, 215 Knox avenue, the robbers mounted a stepladder and cut out a glass pane of a second-story bedroom window. One dollar in small change, a watch valued at $2, a gold bracelet, valued at $18, and a railroad pass, issued to Albert S. Radler, were taken.

The home of S. E. Lowe, 402 Charles street, was entered and all the rooms ransacked, but nothing was taken.

BRIAND GETS POST IN NEW CABINET

Socialist Government Headed By Daladier Wins Votes When Ex-Premier Accepts

PARIS, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—France probably within the next two or three days will have a largely Socialist government—the first in the history of the third Republic—comparable to those in power now in Great Britain and in Germany.

Headed by Edouard Daladier, young Radical-Socialist leader, the cabinet which he will propose to President Doumergue to succeed that of Aristide Briand, resigned last week, probably will have the most highly Leftist complexion France has ever known.

BRIAND TO SERVE

Actual Socialist participation in the new cabinet will not be authorized until tonight when the National Council of the party of Leon Blum meets. Politicians accepted as foregone conclusion that its members would be authorized to collaborate with Daladier.

Of as great importance as the imminent advent of such a Socialist government was announcement of acceptance of the foreign affairs portfolio by Briand, who has held that post in successive cabinets of Raymond Poincare and in his own.

Daladier's supporters expect Briand's inclusion in the cabinet would bring from 50 to 60 votes from the moderate groups in parliament. These, plus the 124 Radical votes and the 101 Socialist votes, will give Daladier a workable, if slim majority.

SUCCESS EXPECTED

There was much speculation today as to the composition of the Daladier cabinet. It was believed he would retain the all-important interior portfolio in addition to the premiership. Some expected many hitches to develop between the Radical-Socialists and the Socialists in the distribution of the various posts.

There was possibility Daladier would announce his cabinet late Tuesday, or early Wednesday, and would go before the Chamber of Deputies with it Thursday. In view of his success yesterday in securing Socialist collaboration and the inclusion of Briand at least temporary success in the chamber was looked for.

Daladier quoted Briand as saying he would "accept collaboration in the government union with so much the more pleasure because I tried myself to constitute a government of the Left without success."

$585,000 BACK TAX STAYED

Federal Judge R. M. Gibson today signed an order restraining for 10 days the government from collecting $585,000, which is claimed due from the Union Drawn Steel Company, of Beaver Falls, as excess profit tax for one-quarter of 1918.

The court set November 6 as the date for hearing in the case.

The steel company contends the Federal Board of Tax Appeals already has ruled that the tax is not collectable.

The government contends that the board's decision did not cover the point in dispute.

During the hearing today it was brought out that the Union Drawn Steel Company is about to merge with another company.

Government Wins Move Against Texan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today granted the government's petition to assume jurisdiction in its appeal to sustain an indictment against former Congressman Harry M. Wurzbach (Rep.), of Texas, charging him with receiving political contributions from federal officeholders. The indictment was quashed in Texas federal courts on the ground that the contributions involved were to be used for primary election purposes and not in a general election.

Decision on Capone Appeal Postponed

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—The Superior Court today reserved decision on the appeal of "Scarface Al" Capone and Frank Cline, for their freedom from the Eastern Penitentiary where they are serving one year terms each for carrying concealed weapons. Congressman Benjamin Golder represented the two convicts.

Bathtub Heater Causes Death Of Teacher

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Dr. Henry Hooker, associate professor of horticulture, University of Missouri, was found dead in a bathtub in his home here, apparently from electric shock. He was about 33 years old. Dr. Hooker, who has been connected with the university since 1919, was a graduate of Yale University and held his bachelor's, master's and doctor of philosophy degrees from the school.

A patent electric water heater, used to heat the water after it was drawn, was in the tub with the switch turned off. It was the coroner's opinion, however, the current either short circuited or leaked through the switch causing death.

MAWSON SHIP BATTLES GALE

By SIR DOUGLAS MAWSON,
World-Famous Explorer.

ABOARD S. S. DISCOVERY, Oct. 26. — (Wireless via Capetown.) — A terrific gale, which began last Tuesday and worked around from the South to the Northeast last night, in a sudden shift, caused a confused sea and made life aboard our little craft pretty uncomfortable.

Capt. John K. Davis and the other officers were relieved when a sudden calm intervened, evidently betokening that the ship was traversing the "eye of the storm."

Light, favorable westerly winds are now prevailing, allowing the resumption of our southeasterly course after many exasperating delays.

Our position tonight is roughly 40 South and 26 East. We are passing a steep rise in the ocean floor, which is 6,000 feet shallower than the noon reading.

The scientific staff is busy organizing its respective departments. The zoologists are pleased with the haul of parasitic life from captured birds, and also a windfall of cuttlefish washed aboard by the storm.

KELLY ASKS U. S. GET RADIUM

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—The government would go into the business of isolating radium under a draft of a bill Representative Clyde Kelly (Rep.), of Pittsburgh, plans to introduce today.

The proposed measure would authorize the Bureau of Mines to expend $100,000 in obtaining one gram of radium, said to be worth about $70,000 on the market. The lone gram would be used in treatment of World War veterans in government hospitals.

Kelly said the purpose of the legislation would be to demonstrate that radium could be extracted in this country in competition with the output of the Belgian Congo. In 1924, he said, the American manufacturers had to close down their mills because of the discovery of cheaper radium in the Congo.

In order to obtain one gram of radium, Kelly said, the American manufacturers had to treat about 600,000 tons of ore with chemicals. Radium ore deposits, he said, had been found in Utah and other Western states.

U. S. MAY SHUN DOPE PARLEY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—America may insist upon enlarging the agenda before accepting the invitation to attend the League of Nations' proposed international conference to regulate the drug traffic, it has been learned.

At its recent session in Geneva the league assembly adopted a resolution instructing the council to call a conference next year to limit the manufacture of morphine, heroin, cocaine and their salts and derivatives. The council will meet in March to set the date. America is to be invited.

PROPOSALS STUDIED

This program, designed to restrict drug manufacture to medical needs of all countries, only partially fulfills the American proposals laid down at the last Geneva meeting in 1925. At that time, the United States insisted not only upon limitation of manufacture, but upon curtailment of production of opium as a means to prevent the escape of vast quantities of drugs into illicit channels. When the participating nations refused to agree to such drastic action, the American delegation withdrew.

Whether America will attend another international conference which is limited to but one phase of the world-wide traffic, manufacture, is problematical. Representative Porter (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, chairman of the 1925 American delegation, and State Department officials are closely studying the league's proposal before commenting.

BRITISH FIGHT PLAN

Records of the recent Geneva sessions reveal that the British delegation attempted unsuccessfully to restrict the agenda even more rigidly than finally approved by the assembly. The British proposal was to deal solely with the manufacture of morphine, heroin and cocaine, leaving out of consideration entirely medicinal opium, Indian hemp and other noxious drugs. The Spanish, Dutch and Portuguese delegations, waging a sharp fight, succeeded in including the whole category of manufactured drugs. It always has been the British view that no international conference should interfere with the Indian opium traffic, out of which tremendous revenues are derived.

It was further revealed that the British, which initiated the limitation idea, have opened a cocaine factory, although this drug never before has been manufactured in the British Isles.

BOMB INJURES LABOR LEADER

MARION, Ind., Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Andrew A. Negos, 35, prominent labor leader and secretary of the Mould Makers' Union here, was probably fatally injured today when he stepped on the self-starter of his automobile, causing an infernal machine placed under the seat to explode.

Negos was rushed to the Grant County Hospital, where little hope is held for his recovery.

Aged Daughter Of Iron-Making Pioneers Dies

READING, Pa., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mary T. Eckert, 89, widow of George B. Eckert, who, with a brother, Henry S. Eckert, owned and operated the Henry Clay furnaces here for many years, is dead at her home in this city. She was the daughter of two families of ironmasters, Horatio Trexler's and the Hunters.

An ancestor, Col. John Trexler, was a member of the 1776 Constitutional convention, member of the first Pennsylvania Assembly during the Revolution and commissioner of supplies for Gen. Washington's army.

STRIKERS DUMP MORE MILK

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Sabotage in connection with the strike of the Milk Producers' Association of Greater Kansas City was accompanied by an attempt to disable the motor of a truck used in hauling milk to pasteurizers here. Forty gallons of milk were dumped from the truck by sympathizers with the milk producers.

Will Callaghan, who trucks milk to pasteurizers from the Belton, Mo., and Cleveland, Mo., vicinities was stopped just west of the Missouri-Kansas state line in Kansas near Cleveland, he said, by a group of men who had been riding in five motor cars. The 40 gallons of milk he had collected were poured out and Callaghan said one of the men then raised the hood over the motor of the rented truck which he used to transport the milk, and poured a handful of emery dust into the oil in the crank case of the motor. Callaghan said no weapons were displayed by the gang of men and that no attempt was made to harm him.

Farmers in the vicinity in which he collects milk, Callaghan said, have been warned to cease supplying milk to Kansas City pasteurizers or their dairy barns will be burned. The threats were made over the telephone, the truck driver said.

No other sabotage was reported today but deputy sheriffs continued to patrol highways in Jackson County in an effort to stop the dumping of milk.

Thousands of gallons of milk in transit to the city have been poured into roadside ditches during the strike, already marked by three weeks of sabotage. The producers are demanding a price increase from pasteurizing plants.

Boy Killed as Rope From Roof Breaks

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—A 14-year-old school boy, lowering himself from a roof in the Bronx with a clothes line, was injured fatally when the rope broke and he fell into the courtyard.

He was Sidney Polansky, of the Bronx. He was taken to Lincoln Hospital, charged with attempted burglary, and died without regaining consciousness. An older brother, Seymour Polansky, said the boy never had been in trouble and probably was playing when he met his death.

Roosevelt Asks Children Not To Buy Flags

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Gov. Theodore Roosevelt has disapproved of the purchase of American flags by school children to wave in greeting him on his trips over the island.

Learning that the children or their teachers were buying the flags with their own money, which the children sometimes needed for their school lunches, the Governor issued a statement suggesting a less expensive method of honoring him. He said he appreciated the sentiment, but would be just as happy if the children showed their feeling by singing or in some other way that involved no expense to them.

Flag displays have been limited since Gov. Roosevelt's arrival owing to exhaustion of the local supply.

FAVOR CHANGES IN CALENDAR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Reform of the calendar was favored by a comfortable majority in the nation-wide referendum of members of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, preliminary results of which were announced, but since the proposals failed to receive a two-thirds majority, the Chamber will not commit itself to their support.

The three proposals submitted and the vote on each follows:

That the present calendar should be so changed as to bring about a greater comparability in business records for periods within a year and for periods from year to year. For, 1,549; against, 1,318; necessary to commit Chamber, 1,912.

That the form which changes in the calendar should take should be determined through international conference. For, 1,783; against, 1,032; necessary to commit, 1,910.

That the Government of the United States should participate in an International conference to determine the form of changes to be made. For, 1,856; against, 1,009; necessary to commit, 1,911.

CONFLUENCE, Pa., Oct. 28.—Daughters of the American Revolution are erecting a monument to pioneers of this region who fought in 1776. BUS, AUTO HIT, 2 NEAR DEATH

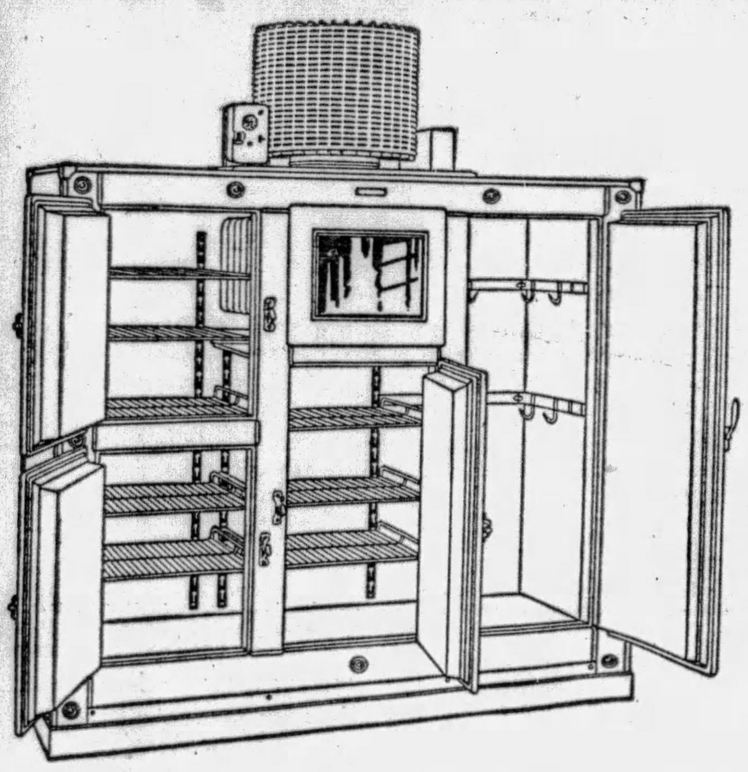
ERIE, Pa., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Miss Minnie Rosenberger, and Howard E. Barnes, both of Cleveland, were badly injured eight miles west of here when their automobile was struck by a New York-Chicago bus.

Miss Rosenberger suffered fractures of both legs and severe cuts on the face, and Barnes received a broken leg and internal injuries. Both were in a serious condition at St. Vincent's Hospital here.

Morton L. Clark, Cleveland, driver of the bus, said a spring on his vehicle broke, causing it to hit the automobile. The lighter machine, thrown 20 feet against a telephone pole, was reduced to a mass of wreckage.

COMMERCIAL REFRIGERATORS



...that meet the special needs of modern business

For use in stores, markets, clubs and groceries.

Recognizing the very special demands of modern business, the engineers and scientists of the General Electric Research Laboratories have designed these commercial refrigerators to meet certain definite requirements.

Rents are high . . . That's why these General Electric Refrigerators are designed to yield the largest storage capacity for the floor area they occupy.

Time is precious . . . So these refrigerators are designed to require no attention. All of the refrigerating mechanism is enclosed in a hermetically sealed casing, protected from dust, and it never requires oiling.

Operating economy is important . . . And so both the cabinets and the refrigerating units are scientifically designed to operate together as a compact unit. This assures greatest efficiency and lowest operating costs.

A unique guarantee . . . These refrigerators are guaranteed, without qualifications, for two years by General Electric. The household models have a similar guarantee. And, in the past two years, not one of the 350,000 owners has spent a single dollar for repairs or service. This is a record which challenges comparison!

Get all the facts . . . Just phone or drop us a card. An experienced representative will come to you and help you solve your refrigeration problems most effectively and most economically.

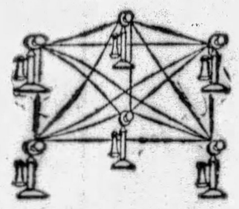
COMPLEXITY

THERE were 2 telephones in 1876. Today there are nearly 20,000,000 in the United States alone.

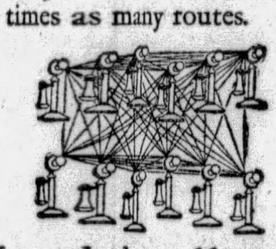
With this tremendous growth has come an ever-increasing complexity.

To provide complete inter-communication throughout a telephone system, there must be routes leading from each individual telephone to every other telephone.

If there were only two telephones, only one such route would be needed.

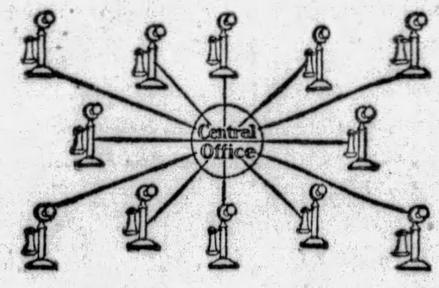


For six telephones, 15 routes would be required. 3 times as many telephones —15 times as many routes.



And for 12 telephones, 66 routes would have to be provided, 6 times as many telephones—66 times as many routes.

Actually there is only one pair of wires running from your telephone. The tremendous complexity of the telephone system is concentrated at the Central Office from which routes to other telephones radiate. So in reality the layout for a system serving 12 telephones would be like this . . .



The more telephones there are the more complex the telephone system —and there are nearly 20,000,000 in the United States alone!

THE Central Office is the heart of the system—a system so flexible that it will take your voice across the street, across the continent, even across the Atlantic—so delicate that 1,800 conversations can pass at the same time through a cable no larger around than your wrist.

Great inventions—constant improvements and refinements of equipment—great expenditures year after year—have made it possible for the growing service to keep pace with its growing complexity.

News of New Week in Theaters Combined With Hollywood Studio Gossip

'QUEEN' OF STUDIO MOVES OUT AND 'KING' ENTERS ON OXFORDS

By DOROTHY HERZOG
(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.

THERE seem to be goings-on at First National as to who will grab off Colleen Moore's bungalow. Colleen had the kingpin of the roofs whilst a F. N. star. The queen was scrammed: long live the queen. It looks now, however, suspiciously as though the king will move in. Richard Barthelmess, Richard and Corinne Griffith are the highest paid stars on the lot. Corinne 'pears happy where she is. Ergo, enter the king on Oxfords.

Colleen Moore.

Oh, what a Tampa one can have when one Tampas in Tampa. Oh, dear, I'm sorry.

Be that as it may, Gary Cooper is in Tampa, Fla. Lupe Valez has been there for weeks. Making "Hell's Harbor." Gary must have gotten sand in his shoes once so far from Hollywood as Grinnell College (his alma mater) in Iowa. It was a cinch to hop a train to Chattanooga and a 'plane from there. Which he did.

He did despite his denial to newspaper inquirers about being engaged to Lupe. Gary decried the village for insisting he is to marry Lupe. "Go with a girl a couple of times and they have you engaged," he fumed in more or less those words. There be truth in that, and logic in Hollywood's deduction of the case in paragraph. The trip to Florida is merely added weight.

"Why don't we ever hear more of that splendid young, capable Malcolm McGregor? Is J. Warren Kerrigan dropped for indifference? He is one of my few favorites. Where is he?"

Mr. McGregor had a famine picture stretch when the talkies sent producers into a state of hysteria. I believe he has made several pictures recently. As for J. Warren Kerrigan, he retired from the screen some years ago and is living in Hollywood.

Lila and Betty In Many Films

"T. J." writes from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to ask if Lila Lee is still married to Jimmy Kirkwood and what are they doing?

Yes, they are still married, but separated. Lila is running Betty Compson a close race in the number of pictures for the year. As for Jimmy, I understand he is going to direct again.

Not Zeppelin—Only Whiteman

PENS Edwin K. O'Brien of Fox:

"The recent rumors that the Graf Zeppelin had come back to Hollywood were somewhat erroneous. It was just Paul Whiteman returning to his Universal hangar.

Speaking of Universal there's a report circulating that Director Lewis Milestone is anxious to sign Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., to play the romantic lead in the film Whiteman will make for Universal. Corkgood part, whoever gets it. A few names have been added to the cast, including Ben Alexander, Philip Holmes and Billy Bakewell. Ben Alexander is an ex-boy star making good in his adolescence without the courtesy of Hartschaft and Marx.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

POSTAL card from El Verano, California:

"A city woman, Indian summering in the Valley of the Moon, seeks information and please reply in your column.

SCREENALTIES: "Buddy" Rogers and Anderson Lawler spun to San Francisco for today's football game. In Buddy's blue limousine. Before departing, Andy signed a M. G. M. contract to play a prominent role in "They Knew What They Wanted," which will feature Vilma Banky and Edward Robinson. . . Joseph Cawthorne, an old musical comedy favorite gone flicker-ish, departs for New York with his wife the end of the month. Enroute to their home in Deal, N. J., said home having been sold. And they going to send odds and ends to their new residence in Beverly Hills. . . . Will Rogers was reminiscing about the time he had to wear tights in a picture. "You have good looking legs," twittered a twittery soul. "I should hope so," agreed Rogers. "Wasn't I in the follies for 12 years?" . . . And—that's all.

Della Samailoff To Sing Lead in "Il Trovatore"

Della Samailoff, the young soprano engaged to sing the leading role in the Pittsburgh Grand Opera Company's "Il Trovatore" in Syria Mosque, November 4, is to appear then in Pittsburgh for the first time. She is a daughter of the dramatic tenor, Samailoff. She has sung with the Chicago Civic Opera Company, making her debut in "Cavalleria Rusticana," and in the Royal Teatero in Rome, her debut in that temple having been in the title role of "Aida." While in Italy she sang at the Augusteo concerts of Rossini's "Stabat Mater" under Molinari.

Miss Samailoff recently made a tour in South America, appearing in "Aida," "La Gioconda," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Trovatore," "Tosca" and "La Forza del Destino." Recently she was heard in the New York Polo Grounds in an open-air performance of "Aida," singing with Pasquale Amato, baritone.

Wotan's Farewell and Magic Fire Scene, from "Die Walkure" .... Wagner

The Pittsburgh Symphony Society continued to march to its goal during the concert last night in Syria Mosque. Walter Damrosch shook 20 years from his shoulders, and conducted with great vigor and spirit, which was epidemic with our players and the audience as well. On his entrance, the orchestra and public arose to pay him a well-earned tribute, a compliment which he returned to the orchestra as the program went on.

That we are going to have a real orchestra is no longer in doubt. Anyone who listened well must have recognized the new precision of the strings and the many fine passages for the brass, to mention but two good qualities of the ensemble. Now that mighty Wagnerian scenes can be included in the program, we may expect all good things.

The synmphony is utterly banal and unoriginal. It savors of Wagner, Mendelssohn and Tschaikowsky; but Glazounoff wrote favorable music for the orchestra, and here it found best expression. Gluck's dance is a fine classic fragment, and the Pierne "Fauns" defies all rules against repetition wherever it is played.

Pescha Kegan was the soloist of the evening, playing the Tschaikowsky piano concerto, one of this composer's few cheerful works. This young pianist has several times made us aware of her large talent, but never before has she so thoroughly displayed her musicianship. She is brimful of youthful enthusiasm, and considering that this was her first appearance with orchestra, she more than deserved our applause and Damrosch's kiss. In the first movement she felt her way carefully. So did the orchestra. In the slow movement she played with unusual poetry and tenderness. It was Tschaikowsky at his best. In the brilliant finale she kept wonderfully within the symphony, but abandoned herself to real pianism. In response to a hearty ovation Miss Kegan gave a heldom-heard Gopak of Moussorgsky, and a Chopin Nocturne, further emphasizing a finesse hardly possible in any concerto.

These will be given in addition to the regular talking picture and vaudeville shows. Prizes are to be presented for unique costumes and for contests on the stage such as apple-diving, pinning the tail on the donkey, cracker-eating, pie-eating, etc. There will be horns and rattlers and other souvenirs for everyone.

The Harris Amusement Company proposes to stage a Halloween party such as was given in every home in the days gone by, before the age of jazz.

MOVIE TO SHOW NEWS ONLY

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—For the first time in history, the newsreel is to provide a full motion picture program, in its own theater.

Commencing next Saturday, the Embassy Theater, at Broadway and Forty-sixth street, will change its policy from long run features to that of the exclusive showing of sound newsreels.

Announcement of this innovation was made by officials of the Fox-Hearst Corporation, under whose auspices the new policy is being inaugurated.

The theater in the future will be known as the Embassy, the Newsreel theater. Although its policy will be the showing of newsreels, outstanding semi-news and educational films will be exhibited when the occasion demands.

Contracts have been made with the Hearst Metrotone News and Fox Movietone News, and events of the world will be on the screen daily. Establishment of the newsreel theater follows the recent announcement of the purchase by William Randolph Hearst of a substantial interest in the Fox Movietone News, also the combining of their sound news picture gathering facilities into the greatest organization by its kind ever conceived.

At present, the Fox-Hearst Corporation has more than 60 sound news gathering units scattered all over the world. Every strategic point is embraced. No event of importance can happen anywhere without a representative of one of these units being on hand.

The vast volume of news pictures flowing into the laboratories of the Fox-Hearst Corporation demanded additional outlet.

Spot news will be a daily addition to the regular program, which will be changed weekly or semi-weekly. Every important event in New York City will be shown on the screen within a few hours after it takes place.

Similarly, every big event in the world will be rushed to the newsreel theater with all possible speed. Under the policy, the play house will open at 10 a. m. and run continuously until midnight. Each program will be of approximately one hour duration and the admission at all times will be 25 cents.

Woodmen Arrange Annual Card Party

The McKees Rocks branch of Woodmen of the World are arranging for its annual card party and dance to be held in Moose Temple, November 20. A well-known orchestra has been engaged for the occasion and the committee in charge is now preparing the prize list.

TEDDY JOYCE OUT AT PENN

Teddy Joyce, master of ceremonies at the Penn Theater, is resting today in New York after a near-collapse on the stage, according to theater attaches. Teddy is under a physician's care, they said.

Theater officials said Joyce struggled through his performances Saturday, but was unable to complete the final show. Under orders of the family physician, he was rushed to New York, where it was believed his rest would be more certain away from inquiring friends and fans.

The near-collapse followed Teddy's efforts to obtain leave from his duties for a trip to the coast.

Bori Sings 'Manon' Tonight At Metropolitan Opening

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—One night in Paris 19 years ago the Metropolitan Opera Company, of New York, gave Puccini's "Manon Lescaut."

In the title role that evening appeared a young and unknown soprano—a tiny, diffident Spanish girl from Valencia, who had arrived for rehearsals a few days before with her glossy black hair in pigtails curled up in tight knobs over her ears.

The next day all Paris was talking about "La Petite Bori."

Two years later, in that same role, she made her American debut at the opening of the Metropolitan's season at home. And round the golden horseshoe went the whisper: "Lucrezia Bori—isn't she enchanting?"

Tonight the Metropolitan will open its season of 1929—an opening which, with long skirts back in fashion, should have about it something of the trailing magnificence of pre-war seasons.

And again "La Petite Bori" will be the lovely, wistful Manon. Incidentally, opera house attaches said, it will be the first time Mme. Bori has sung at a Metropolitan opening since the night of her American debut, 17 years ago.

Nineteen years Manager Giulio Gatti-Casazza had been looking about for someone to sing the role of Manon. Several Italian sopranos, all of them older and better known than the young Spanish singer, had been sent to him for tryouts. None would do. He heard of Bori and engaged her at once.

In the gorgeous costumes of the eighteenth century, Mme. Bori tonight will add greatly to the magnificence of the Metropolitan opening, which is in itself probably the most colorful social event in America, outside of diplomatic receptions in Washington.

YESTERDAY was the anniversary of Theodore Roosevelt's birthday, and President Hoover called upon the people to honor the memory of a man "of stalwart character and vigorous ideals." The President mentions especially Roosevelt's work for the Navy.

That was important, but the one permanent Roosevelt achievement is the Panama Canal. That will remain when many presidents are remembered only by one line.

IF Roosevelt were President now, by the way, he would be building, for America, the world's greatest fighting air fleet.

How men, even the stalwart and vigorous, fade as time passes over them! When President Lincoln's birthday comes around, President Hoover will say something appropriate. But he will not consider it necessary to tell the people to honor Lincoln's memory. That is done automatically.

SINCE Nicholas, brother of Prince Carol, and one of the three regents running Rumania's government, driving his high-powered car in Bucharest, collided with a taxicab. His Royal Highness, big and powerful, beat the taxicab driver, finally kicking him in the stomach, sending him to the hospital in serious condition.

SUCH is the story, cautiously worded, from Bucharest. That will not make royalty more popular.

Russia will make much of the incident, which is worth more to Bolshevist propaganda than 10,000,000 rubles.

MARIANNE by GLADYS JOHNSON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

In the little French village of Saint Vallier the call to arms summons all to the great war. The village schoolmaster, Andre, leaves his school and sees Marianne running toward him. They have grown to love each other and now under the stress of war the man avows his love. He folds her in his arms and kisses her, saying "I will come back—you're locked in my heart Marianne." After her aunt dies Marianne shelters four little waifs. One day she hears American soldiers marching into the courtyard. Later she misses her pet pig and finds it in the barn where the Americans are quartered. She retrieves her pet from Stag, one of the doughboys, just as Lieut. Frayne appears and demands to know if the men have been annoying her. Marianne, instead of accusing Stag, the American who had stolen the pig, tells the officer he helped her recover it. Frayne praises Stag. Later the doughboys are invited to a feast by Marianne. Stag kisses Marianne and dashes out, leaving her in tears. He comes back and begs her pardon. Just then Frayne appears and Stag goes out enraged. Stag steals a pig Marianne has roasted and gives it to Yom and Soapy. Stag learns that it had been prepared or Gen. Miller. Frayne arrests Stag. Marianne's eyes fill with tears at the thought of him imprisoned. She resolves to get him out of his predicament. Dressed as a French officer, Marianne succeeds in getting to Gen. Miller's headquarters. She discloses her identity and after a talk with the general he orders Stag's release. Stag thanks Marianne and then asks her to marry him. She suffers anguish as she tells him about Andre. The soldiers are paid and are soon to go home. They shower many presents on Marianne.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIII.

OVER the bobbing heads of the crowd, Marianne's eyes met Stag's gaze. Hot misery in those grey eyes . . . stabbing the girl to the heart.

He came over slowly as though drawn against his will. The room was in such an uproar by now that the little drama went unnoticed. Soldiers had formed dancing couples and were awkwardly shuffling in time to the hurdy-gurdy.

Soapy alone, as master of ceremonies, flashed one startled, apprehensive look at them. The little tow-headed soldier found himself thrust aside. Stag held up his arms and Marianne jumped off the table, to be held hard against him as he swung her, still in tight-lipped silence, into the beat of the music.

Not until they were at the end of the long room did he speak.

"We got to talk—you and me. In here?" He jerked his head toward the closed door of the dining room.

He felt her nod against his shoulder, and opening the door swiftly, drew her in with him.

An abrupt change in here from the turmoil they had left. Through the heavy oak door the roar of voices, the shuffling of feet and tinkle of the hurdy-gurdy seeped, far-off and unreal, like a troubled dream.

The shutters over the long narrow windows were half closed against the afternoon sun. Slits of amber light slanted through the chinks, falling on the brown walls. Old walls, which had seen many generations of young hearts love and break.

Stag set his back against the door, but he did not release the girl in his arms. His face poised above her in the mellow gloom, a few inches from her own. At this angle his eyes were dark and solemn—somehow frightening.

"Try to give me the run-around, aren't you? All day—ducking away from the windows whenever I came near. Oh, I saw you! Why, Marianne?"

She was still silent and he forced her chin. His hot young eyes went swiftly over its white sweetness. Little quivering chin . . . wet lashes . . .

"Darling kid . . ." The rough tenderness of that shot through the girl with unbearable sweetness. "Think I'd leave you! You're going away with me, aren't you, honey?"

"Oh . . . I must not—I must not!" It came as a whisper.

His hands went up to cup her face so that she could not look away.

"Look at me, Marianne! What you tryin' to do? Make us both miserable? Loving each other the way we do, we would have a hard life. An' you do love me, Marianne. Say it."

"Ah—please . . . please . . ."

"See—you can't say you don't! An' me—Oh, God, I'm crazy about you!"

She gasped, "No! No.!" She put a frantic hand over his lips. He kissed the fingers and laughed. Wrenched his head away easily and gathered her up in his arms, raining kisses on her hair, her face, holding her tightly until he fired her with his own passion. Until she clung to him, warm and glowing, so that he was fiercely triumphant at the last.

"My girl—that's what you are! As if I'd let any other man have you—No, don't shut me up. I can't keep quiet. I guess this school teacher won a war, too, but I can't help it. Maybe you did say that you'd wait for him, but that don't alter things a bit—"

"Don't, don't, don't!"

"Look here, honey, you GOT to come home with me. I can't go away leaving you here—lovin' you—wantin' you so! God! I'd go crazy . . . You're alive—I'm alive—what are we going to do? It's tough on this Andre, I know. It's tough on any man that can't have you. But that ain't our fault! It—it just happened, Marianne. That first night I saw you—the lantern making your hair all gold and your eyes—gee!"

That first time she had seen him! The jaunty tall figure—the sparkling impudence in the grey eyes, the night he had kissed her. . . .

How could she let him go away? Half a world separating them. . . . To long in vain for his arms. . . . to look back on today—viewing it through a vista of weary, hopeless years. . . .

The thought of Andre was very weak and far away. Blotted out by the vital, compelling figure of Stag.

She did not know that she had lifted her hands. That she was fumbling his face. Petting it, like a child. Little crooning sounds from her lips.

"Je t'aime . . . je t'aime." She kept whispering it even when he gathered her close and crushed his mouth hard on her own.

A moment—glowing—vibrant—while she gave herself up to the glory of surrender. Ah—sweet . . . sweet rest in his arms like this. To yield . . . To stop fighting down her own heart. . . . No need to draw away now. . . .

Again, as in that moment by the pond, the world seemed to recede from them with a dazzling hum. Amber dusk and soft brown shadows. . . . Beyond the door the muffled roar of voices and the strains of music . . . coming in waves, like the far-off crash of surf.

A resurgent crash. . . . Rising. . . . Falling. . . . Swaying her—reaching her as though a voice grew out of the tumult, a persistent, seeking voice—

Don't say goodby, Marianne—

It's not time to cry, Marianne . . .

Someone had started the hurdy-gurdy playing the old song.

Remember—

"Where ever I may be—
You will be with me . . ."

The girl had raised her head. Her eyes were dark with anguish. . . . The green and gold of the willows . . . the beat of Papa Gerard's drum. . . . and Andre's black eyes, looking down on her filled with a world of love . . .

"You're locked in my heart, Marianne. . . ."

To Marianne's sensitive mind, it were as though Andre had reached out to draw her from Stag's arms. Andre's hand—claiming her. . . .

She thrust Stag away wildly. "Ah—I can't . . . I can't . . . It's no use—"

The man looked at her in dismay. Marianne's face was working. Her eyes were wretched.

"What is it—honey—" He reached out. Clutched her arms.

So intent they were that they did not hear a startled hush spread over the room beyond. Did not hear the low murmur of voices starting again.

It was Jacques' voice which startled Marianne back to herself. Jacques' voice, shouting hysterically.

"Marianne! Come back—he's here, Marianne!"

A cold tingle running through her. Joy and pain stabbing her heart. She struck down Stag's outstretched arm and flung open the door.

In that dazzled moment she did not see the curious faces of the soldiers turned to her. She saw only a tall, wasted figure, standing dark against the open kitchen door, one hand out as though seeking her.

"Andre—" The room was so tense that the startled whisper reached the man in the doorway.

"Marianne! Ah, Marianne!" Heartbreak, joy and longing in the cry.

He took a step toward her—stopped, holding out his arms.

"Andre!" It was a sob. She went to him, hesitatingly. Halted, a sense of dreadful, unknown disaster sweeping down upon her. Those large dark eyes—they were not fastened upon her . . .

Face, cold as death, the girl darted to him. Passed a hand swiftly before his face.

No change in his faint smile.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Dicky Steps Upon Scene as Madge and Phil Leave Roadhouse

SO keen was my revulsion against Philip Veritzen for his utter unconcern toward my revelation of the danger Mary had incurred that I found it hard to answer his question concerning the probable attitude of the plotters against Mary. But the remembrance of Lillian's warning to keep him in a good humor steeled my self-control and I nerved myself to casualness.

"That affair is progressing very rapidly," I told him. "Mary and Prince Georges appear as interested in each other as Princess Olina and your son seem to be."

"Ah-h." There was a sharp, gratified intake of his breath, then he leaned across the table.

"Do you know whether my cub has said anything as yet?" he asked.

I flushed and parried quickly.

"Oh, Mr. Veritzen, how absurd! Would it be like any young man or woman of today to confide anything of that sort to an older person?"

It was the most futile of defenses, and I knew it, but there was upon me the necessity of keeping the secret which Noel had confided to me. His keen eyes swept my face, and I am sure he saw through my flimsy excuse but did not wish to press me further.

"I think the slogan attributed to modern divorce principals—'I'll tell the world!' belongs to the younger set also," he commented caustically. "But go on with your story. Was the princess threatened at all?"

"Not directly," I told him, and then hurried through the tale of the man who had endeavored to find Prince Georges at The Larches, and of the scar-faced man's dreadful fate when the bomb he had intended for the prince's hospital room had exploded prematurely.

"One less poisonous insect in the world," was his only comment, and I went on to outline the plan Harry Underwood had conceived for "baiting the tiger trap" at the hotel when we should move in.

"We have been waiting only for Prince Georges to regain his strength," I finished, "and in the interim of waiting, Mr. Underwood thought it best that we all should be under one roof. So Princess Olina, Prince Georges and Noel are staying at the farmhouse. The servants of the princess have returned to their own home and The Larches has been closed."

"But why Noel?" he asked, and there was a distinctly unpleasant note in his voice. "Noel's life hasn't been threatened, and every additional person must be a burden in so overcrowded a house."

"Noel never could be a burden," I told him with warm indignation. "He is the dearest boy! Besides, Mr. Underwood and my husband need him in their guarding of the farmhouse."

Without giving him a chance to reply, I rushed on to describe the elaborate plans of defense that Harry Underwood had made, which included a "round-the-clock" watchfulness. I was uncomfortably conscious that my employer was watching me closely as I talked, and that a sort of whimsical tenderness had replaced the clouded resentment with which he had met the knowledge that his son was at the farmhouse.

"I am distinctly jealous of my cub," he said when I could no longer find plausible excuses for continuing my monologue. "I wonder how many years it would take me to call forth that tender, admiring note in your voice!"

His black eyes, which have kept their keenness and brilliance in defiance of his years, twinkled with mischief at me, but his voice was heavy with resentment. He is a past master at saying audaciously tender things and letting his mirthful eyes belie their sincerity, thus leaving his path open for either retreat or advance. I would have ignored his pretty speech absolutely as I had others in the past, but the remembrance of Lillian's admonition made me laugh lightly and parry the words as best I could.

"Ah! But no one is like Noel," I told him. "And I do hope you will not take him away from us. Tomorrow we are all going to the hotel, and you must come to see us there right away. I am desolated that I cannot ask you to the farmhouse, but Mr. and Mrs. Underwood think it advisable to keep the place as isolated as possible until we have left. That is the reason for this appointment. By the way, it is already within five minutes of the time we appointed to meet Lillian. She will be waiting."

"It won't hurt her to wait" he said, but he called for his check, nevertheless, and having paid it, escorted me to the door. There was a step down just before we reached the outer door, and he put his hand under my arm to help me over it, the gesture invested with his usual impressiveness. He had not yet removed his hand when the door swung open to admit a man coming in. I caught my breath as the newcomer's eyes fell upon us, for it was Dicky who stood in the doorway.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, October 29.

ALTHOUGH the lunar transit to Neptune promises assistance to the affairs of large corporations and to new undertakings generally, yet the difficult position of Saturn portends delays, obstacles and disappointments. Also there is a threat of treachery in writings and the finances are subject to small losses.

Those whose birthday it is may have some promising conditions in new ventures, during the year, but also there may be stubborn obstacles to overcome with resolution and courage. Safeguard the finances against small losses and leave no loophole for deceit or trickery in writings.

A child born on this day may have unusual equipment for success in life but it may encounter many obstacles which must be routed by determination, application and fortitude.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Young Lady's Corsage

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

We are holding a banquet and there has been a bit of controversy among the boys as to the matter of corsages for the girls. "A" states that the girl should be sent the corsages by messenger of the florist. "B" claims that the escort should take the corsage to the home of the girl when he calls for her, and "C" claims that on the way to the banquet, the escort should take the girl to a florist and permit the girl to select the corsage to her liking. S. J. T.

ANY of these plans are correct—it depends on the personal choice of the swains—whichever they think is most gallant. Usually the plan that "A" recommends is adopted. Most men do not like to carry the box, so I think that they would not adopt "B's" plans. And "C's" plan is good if the beau is not quite sure of his taste, or if he wishes to have the girl choose a corsage that will be especially appropriate for the frock that she plans to wear. It is correct, if the gentleman wishes, for him to ask the young lady what shade of dress she is going to wear, and plan an artistic combination of flowers for this shade.

The Parents' Privilege

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A friend of mine came to me and asked me this question. I am engaged to be married to J. Jones. Should his family or my family announce the engagement, or can we just let it be quiet? But if it should be announced, who should announce it? KATHERINE.

THE parents of the bride-to-be announce her engagement. The best form is for the bride-to-be to write notes to her friends, or to tell them by word of mouth, if she wishes. Then, if the family wishes, it is correct and convenient for "spreading the news" for the parents of the bride-to-be to make formal announcement of the engagement in the newspapers. In the meantime, a day or two after the bride-to-be has written her letters, the groom-to-be writes to his friends. The family of the groom-to-be has nothing to do with making the announcement, however, any more than they have with making the announcement of the marriage.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Tips for the Ladies

IT'S pretty hard for even a fickle lover to destroy a woman's faith in life, so long as she has a reliable milliner, a dependable beauty-parlor, and a brand new permanent wave.

HELEN ROWLAND

It takes the keen dramatic instinct of a skilled actress for a woman to turn down a man's ardent overtures with that "It-hurts-me-more-than-it-does-you!" expression. But, it always gets the effect.

* * *

The average young bachelor thinks of marriage as the dry-dock, into which he may finally permit himself to be towed, after he is weary of adventure and tired of "seeing the world."

* * *

No man wants a woman to be "peppy" every day, hour and minute. On Saturday evening, he may demand pep; but most of the rest of the week, he longs for a nice, soothing, subtle bromide to REST him.

* * *

Women seldom think any man under forty as a "bachelor;" because, so long as the mold hasn't "set" and he is still impressionable, no man is anything but a potential husband.

* * *

One form of woman's inhumanity to man, is to drag him out to a restaurant dinner, every Sunday evening, and then spend the time telling him how much better she could have cooked it.

* * *

The average man's idea of "taming" a woman is to shake all the star dust out of her eyes and the illusions out of her mind—and then try to paste them back in again.

* * *

Perhaps the old-fashioned girl got kissed just as often as the modern girl; but, she knew the art of getting kissed "against her will," and of making the man regard her kisses as an achievement rather than as an adventure.

The greatest grievance that the average man has against his wife is that there is never ANY place around the house to throw his ashes—except the ash-trays.

TO have anything interfere with the hearing is disagreeable indeed. Usually deafness is a matter of very slow progress. Sometimes, however, like a clap of thunder, there comes on sudden deafness.

DR COPELAND

The most common cause for this experience is the movement of a plug of wax into a new position. This wax has been accumulating for months, perhaps for a year or more.

A bath may permit the admission to the ear canal of just enough water to displace the mass. Or the water softens the edges of the ball of wax and the detached material may fill in the limited space.

The deafness that comes so suddenly may disappear just as quickly. Efforts at relief by poking the ear with the little finger may be successful. The wax is moved away from the ear canal, or turned just enough to permit the sound waves to get past it.

It is rare for such an accumulation of wax to take place. It is safe to say that it never will take place if you do not fuss with the ears.

Many persons practice the bad habit of inserting into the ear canal, a toothpick, hairpin or even the end of a pencil. Such an instrument may readily push the wax into the ear. Repeated day after day, there gradually grows up a ball of wax of considerable size.

Many times I have said, in jest, of course, that nothing should be put in the ear except the point of the elbow. It is a mistake to use any instrument in an attempt to clean this organ. Left to itself, the wax will carry itself out of the ear.

If you suspect that there is more wax than should be, let your doctor use the syringe, washing it out with water. It may be necessary to apply a little olive oil to soften the mass. The next day it can be removed with water and without pain.

Should it happen that the mass almost fills the canal, the oil will fill up this passageway and increase the deafness. This will disappear when the water causes the plug to come away, clearing the passage.

Many a person is going about with impaired hearing from this cause. When the deafness can be overcome so easily it is a pity to endure it.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

New Sousa March Feature On Radio Tonight

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

HIS own suite, "At the King's Court," will be played by John Philip Sousa and his Band when the General Motors Family Party takes the air at 9:30 tonight over WCAE.

A brand new idea for a march will be introduced, too, with the first radio presentation of Mr. Sousa's latest composition, "Foshay Tower Washington Memorial March." The march is dedicated to the Foshay Tower which stands 600 feet above the ground in the center of Minneapolis and is visible for miles around, especially at night when it is brilliantly lighted.

Stirring measures of the famous "Sambre et Meuse" march of the French Army will be heard as well as a cornet solo, Clarke's "Southern Cross."

Vice President Charles Curtis will open the Washington (D. C.) Radio Show with a talk about "The Progress of Radio." This on WCAE at 7:30.

Jay Mills, the new master of ceremonies at the Enright Theater, succeeding Dick Powell, will be heralded on the Warner Revue, WCAE at 11:30.

Lovers of opera who might reasonably expect Guilio Gatti-Casazza, director of the Metropolitan, to select classical numbers as his favorites will be surprised on the Edison concert over KDKA at 9, it is whispered.

We Now Present

Pittsburghers have had great success in picking up W3XM, the new 50,000 watt experimental station of the Columbia Broadcasting System. It is located at Whippany, N. J.

Guess what. Norman Brokenshire, the "Vagabond Lover" of radio, has transferred again—this time in the capacity of radio director for H. W. Kastor and Company, advertising agency. For seven and a half years Mr. Brokenshire has parked his hat several places, including WPG, WCAU, WJZ and intedly the Columbia Broadcasting System, as chief announcer.

Those who like Norman will not miss his voice for he will continue to entertain with the LaPalina crowd, Bremer-Tully Time and Brunswick Brevities.

Good luck to Norman. We hope he stays with Kastor long enough to get in the city directory.

The Song Story, heard over WCAE every Monday night at 7:45, will be presented on Tuesday night at the same time beginning this week.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

McKelvys to Entertain At Tea

TIMES do change, don't they? Once upon a time in ancient China tea was associated with religious worship, and later with different schools of philosophy. Today tea drinking has assumed a social aspect.

Teas for the buds for young members of society and for brides are popular in this day and age, and particularly this fall when every day offers a list of social events.

One tea will be given this week that will not be a debutance entertainment. Mrs. William M. McKelvy and Mrs. William E. McKelvy are planning a tea for Wednesday which they'll give in Mrs. William M. McKelvy's home, Fifth avenue, for the other Mrs. McKelvy's daughter, Martha.

Martha and her sister have returned from Europe, where they spent the last year traveling.

At the tea Martha will have as her aids Juliet Hillman, Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe, Jr., Mary McClung, Florence Carroll, Catherine Gordon, Mrs. John Lazear, Katherine Edwards, Anne Stewart, Frances Reed, Lucy Ward, Virginia Furey and her sister, Christine.

NOW I have two changes in dates I want to tell you about. And by the way, have you ever known so many alterations of plans? With such a crowded calendar as we have this year, it's not at all surprising.

The Roy A. Hunts, of Ellsworth avenue, have changed the date for the dinner dance they'll give in the Pittsburgh Golf Club for Elizabeth Utley Thomas, debutante daughter of Mrs. Isaac Biddle Thomas, of St. James street, from November 30 to November 23.

Although she'll not change the date, Mrs. Chester Marsh Van Kleeck, of Sewickley, has changed her plans for the debut of her daughter, Rosamond Thomas Fitch. Instead of a tea dance in the Allegheny Country Club on Thanksgiving Day, she'll entertain with a buffet supper and dance.

The Rev. Dr. Francis J. Scott performed the ceremony before an embankment of autumn leaves, palms, ferns and yellow pompon chrysanthemums. Tall baskets of yellow chrysanthemums were used throughout in the home.

The bride wore a gown of eggshell crepe in princess style and carried yellow parnet roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Helen Trenberth, her sister, who was the maid of honor, wore a gown of Nile green chiffon velvet and carried pink roses. Albert Graham, of Philadelphia, served as his brother's best man. A dinner was served later in the Pleasant Valley Country Club. The table was decorated in green, white and yellow.

FILIPINO BALKS AT SOCIAL BAN

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—A Filipino student at the University of Nebraska has appealed to Washington against what he said he considered a "social ban" placed upon his race, by T. J. Thompson, dean of student affairs at the university.

The student is Carlos A. Cartagena and he has written Camilo Osias, Philippine Islands representative at Washington.

Following disclosure of the marriage of a Lincoln girl graduate and a Chinese student, Dean Thompson wrote to the Daily Nebraskan, student paper, pointing out that there had been several similar marriages of Filipinos and American girls at the university and declared that the Filipinos are not held in as high regard since then as they were before.

Cartagena, however, declared that "activity" of Filipino students has been curtailed ever since the dean took office.

"I believe," wrote the dean, "that the best purpose of the university as well as the best interest of the Filipino group would be served by the Filipino boys confining their social life, in so far as it is possible to mingling with members of their own group and with the young men of the university.

"Do not understand me to say that there should be no association between Filipino students and American girls, but such association should be entirely platonic and incidental and educational wherever it occurs."

The Wanamaker collection was assembled by the late Rodman Wanamaker with the assistance of Dr. Rich, who formerly was concert master of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra and later became curator of the Wanamaker collection. Dr. Rich purchased the collection after Mr. Wanamaker's death.

Club Group Holds Book Luncheon

THE first of the Woman's City Club library committee's book luncheons for the season was held Saturday and was a most delightful affair. The president, Mrs. Henry Clay McEldowney, presided, and George Seibel, literary and dramatic critic of the Sun-Telegraph, was the speaker.

Mr. Seibel took his audience on a "Tour of Old Book-Shops," telling them of shops which he had visited in 20 foreign cities, and of an interview with William Jaggard of Stratford, whose ancestor published the Shakespeare First Folio in 1623. He described the old booksellers along the Seine and told of his experiences while hunting Willebrandt plays piecemeal all over Europe, only to find a complete set in Vienna. Mr. Seibel has a library of 7,000 volumes including the largest Shakespeare collection in Pittsburgh.

ORNAMENTAL HAT AND BAG ENSEMBLE BEING FEATURED BY COUTURIERS

Sketched in Paris

Novelty Bag Designed By Worth

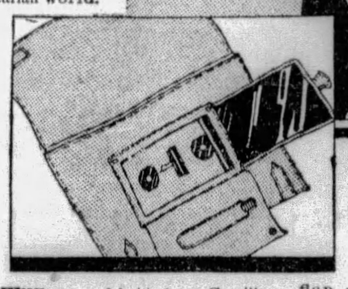
Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—It is in the bag, that many of the couturiers here, find a profitable source of income. Nearly every house features bags of their own designing, but Worth is easily the leader of this field. The leading fabric for bags this season appears to be antelope, with ornaments of marcasite or crystal often combined with semi-precious stones.

The flat envelope and the pouch have established themselves as prime favorites as regards shape, but all bags are meant for service, not merely an ornamental adjunct. Quite in keeping with the scheme of things in this utilitarian world.

SOMEHOW hats always seem to suggest bags, and so we have chosen for sketching purposes, two of the newest hats and bags. The first is a most becoming model from Martha Regnier, and is made of bright blue panne velvet drawn closely over the head with a soft flounce-like brim at the back of the neck, and draped in a thick bunch of folds at one side. The bag is from Worth, and is novel because of its fastening. An oval amber ring is attached at the top along the flap and swings back to open the purse, at the same time acting as a handle. This model was so very successful that it was ordered by clients in many different leathers, including morocco, seal and, of course, antelope.

THE second hat is from Camille Roger and its youthful effect is heightened by black panne velvet encrused on black felt. The uneven sides are interesting and make a becoming line. A galalith and gold buckle at the side appears to hold the ribbon band in place.



VERY compact but complete is the vanity case found under the flap of the Worth pocketbook. This compartment has a flap of its own which unsnaps and reveals a large sliding mirror, a comb, lipstick, powder and rouge. The pocketbook itself fastens by means of the two straps noted in the lower corners.

ITALY OBSERVES FASCIST MARCH

ROME, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Premier Benito Mussolini, on the seventh anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome, told thousands of "blackshirts" massed in front of Venezia palace that "after seven years we are younger, stronger and more implacable than before." The Premier's brief speech was interrupted at times by shouts of "death to political exiles," prompted by the attack on Crown Prince Humbert in Brussels last week by an Italian who has been living in Paris.

The day was celebrated with parades and bell-ringings, speeches and the inauguration of many new works and improvements throughout the country.

PISA, Italy, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Crown Prince Humbert, returning from his betrothal ceremonies at Brussels, was greeted at the station here by his parents and his sisters, the Princesses Giovanna and Maria. The royal family proceeded a little later to their summer home at San Rossore.

The oldest groups in the two educational systems will be given $50 each as first prize. Contestants will write on the solution of the city's traffic problem.

Division 2 (grades seven, eight and nine), "How can pedestrian accidents be reduced in Pittsburgh?" Division 3 (grades 10, 11 and 12), "With the signal systems in operation in downtown Pittsburgh and in East Liberty, what else can be done to help traffic in these districts?"

Bingham, Defending Lobby, Rebuked in Hot Debate

lobbyist was carried on the Senate payroll.

Blaine characterized this arrangement as a "dirty, slimy trail" and declared Bingham's defense a "mere smoke screen." He also charged the Connecticut Senator with having a "superiority complex" toward his senatorial colleagues and did his best to shatter that complex by adding "I do not mean to exaggerate his unimportance."

Caraway charged Bingham with concealing facts and declared his defense was merely "a duplication of the defense made by Fall, Doheny, Sinclair and Daugherty" when the latter were charged with corruption.

BOTH PASS LIE

Both Bingham and Caraway passed the "lie" indirectly. Bingham first accused Caraway of telling something that "was not true" and Caraway later retorted that the stories of Bingham and Eyanson were in direct conflict and urged them "to get together and straighten out the truth."

The debate amazed veteran senators. Nothing quite like it has happened in decades. Both Bingham and his accusers indulged in personalities and none observed the senatorial courtesy that in the past effectively blocked personal attacks.

Blaine was the first to reply to Bingham.

"The Senator is attempting to throw a smoke screen across the slimy, dirty trail mapped out designedly from the office of the Senator from Connecticut to the office of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association," said Blaine.

JEERS AT EXPLANATION

"If any truths were withheld the Senator from Connecticut is responsible. Question after question was asked him and he doggedly refused to answer them directly except by long statements approaching speeches. Whatever has befallen the Senator, he alone is responsible."

Blaine jeered Bingham's explanation that Eyanson was placed on the Senate payroll "to put him under the Senate's discipline."

"That purpose was not to put Eyanson under discipline, but to get him into secret sessions of the Senate Finance Committee."

"DISCREDITED HIMSELF"

Caraway insisted nothing he had said in the Senate on the Bingham case could be declared untrue.

"Friends of the senator himself wrote the record before the committee," he continued. "It was difficult to get it, I'll admit. The senator says he wanted to discredit him. I want to say to him that he couldn't discredit him. He has done considerable to discredit himself.

"I wonder how New England will react to the senator's statement that we are trying to discredit it through him. I have a pretty high regard for New England."

Senator Walsh followed Caraway. He said the Connecticut senator had raised the question of the standards of morality of the Senate by attributing the committee's work to political animosity. Consequently, Walsh said it might be well to read the views of newspapers throughout the country on the work of Bingham.

HOOVER PLOT CHARGED

Rising to a question of personal privilege in the Senate, Bingham charged that the Caraway lobby investigating committee was "framed" for political purposes to damage the Hoover administration.

He charged the committee with using "police court methods" and the "tactics of criminal lawyers" in subjecting him to cross-examination when he voluntarily appeared before it to defend his actions.

Bingham charged Senator Caraway with making "missiatements" in attacking him after presentation of a partial report of the lobby committee to the Senate on Saturday.

In assailing the committee, he charged that one member used a capitol policeman as a chauffeur to drive him to a western state last summer.

"I demand that the senator name him—I know who he is referring to," shouted Senator Blaine (Rep.), of Wisconsin, rising angrily to his feet.

"Very well, it was the senator from Wisconsin," said Bingham.

"I'll reply later," said Blaine.

CHARGES CRIME TACTICS

"I had not supposed that there was so much unfairness in a group of senators," said Bingham. "I had not supposed that for political purposes, to damage a New England senator and friend of the administration that they would go so far as they did.

"I was asked the same question a half-dozen times by one member of that committee when I appeared before it, in the hope that I would contradict myself—much as a criminal lawyer tries to trap a criminal."

Bingham said that the Caraway report was submitted to him before it was presented and that "in spite of many inaccuracies, in view of its general fairness I had decided not to make a reply."

"I did not know that the Senator from Arkansas would attack me personally and the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association by torturing and twisting of evidence, by implication and occasionally by misstatement corrected a few minutes later by expression of doubt.

"I was so amazed that I was in doubt whether to reply. I recalled a statement made by friends when I appeared before the lobby committee. They told me that it was 'framed' against the administration and advised me not to appear before it."

DEFENDS EYANSON

Bingham frequently charged that the "investigating committee was singularly framed against anyone supporting the administration." He pointed out that it was composed of two Democrats—Caraway and Walsh, Montana—two insurgents, Borah and Blaine, and "only one Republican," Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana.

"This committee was four to one against the administration," he complained, "and against any administration senator."

Bingham complained, too, that Edward A. Cooley, representative of the Massachusetts Fisheries Association, "had not been investigated as a lobbyist," but only investigated the fact that he had tried to annoy me."

"This committee was far more interested in damaging the reputation of a senator, far more interested in politics, in preventing New England industries from receiving the tariff relief they require, than in investigating lobbyists," he declared.

He also defended Eyanson..

"ONLY GAVE INFORMATION"

"The committee knew he was not a lobbyist in the ordinary sense of the word," Bingham protested. "He never approached any senator and never tried to fix any rates. He only gave me information."

He said the committee's action in "bringing in the name of Henry A. Rorabach, Republican National Committeeman from Connecticut, proved it was playing politics."

He also complained about the committee's attitude toward his present of $1,000 to Eyanson.

"Had I not sent him a cent, the committee would have raised a stench for having accepted his services without compensation," he declared.

"Every bit of flimsy testimony has been twisted against me. In no sense has the committee ever been fair. In no sense has it been assumed that I had honorable motives.

"They were too clever to charge me directly, but indirectly and by inference, intimation and innuendo, they used every flimsy pretext to attack me and to attack my state and the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association."

CARAWAY DENIED REPLY

Bingham heatedly denied Eyanson's word of truth" in Caraway's assertion that Bingham had taken Eyanson's first pay from the Senate "and put it in his (Bingham's) pocket without saying a word." When Caraway rose indignantly to his feet protesting, Bingham refused to yield the floor.

Bingham heatedly denied Evanson had given out secret information concerning rates. The committee, he said, referred to knowledge of arms manufacturers concerning rates on shotguns—and said that the supposed secret knowledge was discussed 13 days after the bill was made public.

He discussed at length the phrase employed by President Hubbard, of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, in a letter to Eyanson saying, "We have got more than we bargained for."

This was a New England phrase, Hubbard meaning Eyanson had been loaned to Bingham longer than was intended, he said.

He also explained President Hubbard's request to Eyanson to "prepare the way for me with Senator Bingham regarding your tenure of office."

QUIZ RESUMES TOMORROW

The lobby inquiry will be resumed tomorrow with another tariff lobbying organization under fire. A. J. Arnold, long active as a lobbyist and now heading the Southern Tariff League, will be questioned. He has a reputation here of being active on a wide range of legislative subjects, once having led a movement for repeal of the Federal inheritance tax. Senators, however, insist he has no influence on Congress.

Later in the week, C. A. Buck, vice president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, will be called as a witness to tell of efforts to place manganese ore on the free list. The committee was informed that Buck led a group of steel company representatives, which successfully won a fight to take the duty off man-

Soudeikine Pictures Show Influence of Theater

By PENELOPE REDD

SERGEI SOUDEIKINE of the Russian section at the current Carnegie International Art Exhibition hangs as a mute reminder of the debt of brightness which everyday life owes to the Russian artists of the old order.

He was one of the theatrical illustrators who formed the core of the pre-war Russian theater art. The frames on Soudeikine's paintings proclaim his association with the theater since they are constructed in planes similar to the distances on the stage. "The Marionette Man" and "The Night Players," although portraits, are theatrically heightened in effect.

Soudeikine fabricates a mystery in the macabre "Marionette Man" through his accentuation of the puppeteer's mask-like face. The artist employs the device of placing a withdrawn mask in the man's hand. Soudeikine suggests the dance of death in the painted panel of the marionette's stage near the young man's side.

Penelope Redd.

"The Night Players" portrays two actors in a dressing room. One is an unpleasantly savage-looking harlequin in parti-colored garments, and the other a clown whose mask is laid on the table. These dancers might have been painted behind the scenes of the Russian ballet.

SOUDEIKINE'S paintings rouse a melancholy memory of the Russian ballet which in the brief years of its existence wrought a world of change in the art that leavens our daily lives. The ballet, for a radiant moment, was a culmination of all the participating arts.

Sergei Diaghliev, the man responsible for the revised and final phase of the Russian ballet, commenced his work by organizing a society of artists called "The World of Art" and by publishing an art magazine bearing the same name. He introduced Russian art to Western Europe in the early years of the Twentieth Century. Finally, he created a composite art, in the ballet, as first presented at Paris during 1909. Diaghliev with his caravan burst upon the western world flame-new. The buoyancy of his fantasies even vanquished the stolidity of Anglo-Saxon audiences.

THE Russian ballet changed visually not only the theater, its original medium, but it flung designers into a frenzy of dye pots. It renewed theater scenery, costumes and dancing. Charity fetes and costume balls became Russianized. Advertising and interior decorating assumed the exotic. The Russian ballet invigorated the artists of all nations, who were moved to capture its evanescence in drawings, engravings, paintings and sculpture. Women's garments were revolutionized by Bakst, of the Russian ballet, about 1911. He then designed the first gowns that inaugurated the fashions only now receding.

Soudeikine was one of the dozen Russian painters associated with the ballet. In 1923 he designed the "Tragedy of Salome," a ballet which was not a success and was never shown in America.

SOUDEIKINE met with gratifying success, however, as a designer for the "Chauve Souris," the 1920 Paris revival of Moscow's well-known "Bat Theater." Balieff, the founder of the "Chauve Souris," reproduced a sort of cabaret version of the Diaghliev ballet. He was responsible for the master of ceremonies superstition that lingers.

Soudeikine's "Still Life," with its prim English Staffordshire figures, is reminiscent of the "Porcelain" number which he designed for the "Chauve Souris." "The Masquerade," which we are informed is the most characteristic of the Soudeikine group, transposes actors from a Casanova episode—heavy trees veiling thick moonlight, gaily-masked revelers philandering in a garden, fountains, fauns and black-amoor servants. As a painting it lacks life in itself; only the theater could vitalize it.

IN the major portion of his pre-war work, Soudeikine painted the early nineteenth century mannerisms which were a deterioration of the eighteenth century manners as mimed in "The Masquerade."

The "Apollo" at the Carnegie International hints at a Soudeikine of the future engaged in fresh adventure. While this painting is consistently of the theater, showing figures in orchid, green, blue and red draperies, dramatically contrasted with a monstrous rock in opalescent colors, it prophesies a stronger future for Soudeikine.

It has been rumored that Soudeikine will collaborate in the preparation of a special setting for the Philadelphia Orchestra. Whether or not it will be the decor for the "Boris Godounoff" is not definitely known. Stokowski plans to make instrumental music the dominating richness with voices and settings subordinate. Perhaps his idea is as authentically original as that of Diaghilev, and Soudeikine will again be contributing to a new art medium.

(Further articles by Penelope Redd on the International Art Exhibition will appear from time to time exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.)

TOOK CATHARTICS EVERY NIGHT

Eating ALL-BRAN Relieved Constipation

Everybody who is slave to cathartics and laxatives will be interested in this letter—

"I took cathartic pills every night and enemas daily to relieve myself and take away the awful headaches I was subject to. Two months ago I started eating a large bowl of your ALL-BRAN with cream for breakfast and today I am in fine condition, better than I have been in three years. My bowels are regular every day. I have not taken one cathartic pill in two months."—Mrs. A. J. O'Connell, 52 Phelps Ave., Rochester, N. Y.

Constipation gets in its deadly work when bulk is left out of the diet. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, however, will supply this bulk. It sweeps the intestine clean and stimulates normal action. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal.

Thousands have regained their old-time vigor and relieved constipation forever by eating ALL-BRAN. Doctors recommend it.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. Ready-to-eat with milk or cream. Delicious recipes for muffins, breads, etc., on the package. Grocers sell it. Restaurants, hotels, dining-cars serve it. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

"VERY THANKFUL FOR RESULTS FROM KONJOLA"

"Gained 20 Pounds Within Short Time After I Began With This New Medicine," Says Pittsburgh Man.

Konjola is a different medicine in many ways. It is chiefly different in that it seems at the very peak of its powers when pitted against those obstinate cases of stomach, kidney, liver and bowel ailments, which have resisted every other medicine tried.

MR. OLLIE E. SMITH

It differs, too, in that it is a medicine of 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs—work together with the sufferer's food. The organs of digestion and elimination are cleansed and stimulated, and the system is purified by the release of poisons and fermentations. Konjola is not a "cure all," there is no such medicine, but Konjola does work along with nature in the building up and stimulation of the ailing organs. Read the experience of Mr. Ollie E. Smith, 1615 Brighton Road, Pittsburgh, it is but one of hundreds which come to the attention of the two Konjola Men in your city. One of them is at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, and there is another at Dow's Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Diamond and Smithfield Streets, Pittsburgh. They are there to explain the merits of this new and different medicine, and to show you the records of hundreds of other sufferers who have found new health through Konjola. Here is Mr. Smith's tribute to Konjola:

"For more than three years I had suffered from severe pains in the back. Nothing I could do would relieve me of the most stubborn case of catarrh, and I had come to the point where I had no appetite at all. The slightest cold would hang on for months at a time. I would become feverish and my muscles would ache and become stiff. I often found it impossible to report for my duties as taxi driver, and I finally gave up in despair.

"Three months ago I began taking Konjola and felt a change for the better after taking three bottles. I continued with this medicine and have now taken ten bottles in all. I gradually improved with each day until now I feel better than I have felt in years. I have gained twenty pounds during this time, eat what I want, sleep soundly every night and have not missed a day at my work in weeks. My long hours are no longer something to look forward to with dread. I am indeed thankful for the relief this wonderful medicine brought me, and urge any one suffering as I did, to use Konjola."

Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals. It needs no such dangerous ingredients. It is every drop pure, and every drop works.

There are two Konjola Men in Pittsburgh. One is at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, and the other at Dow's Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Diamond and Smithfield Streets, where they are meeting the public and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. Konjola is also sold at all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

POWER TO CUT 2,000 VOTES DOUBTED

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

EDWARD SYKES, veteran reporter on the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, this week rounds out 40 years as a newspaperman. He has worked under 20 city editors.

Havey J. Boyle.

His service has been continuous all these years on the old Chronicle Telegraph and the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

A few of his big assignments were: The shooting of Henry Clay Frick by the anarchist, Alexander Berkman; poisoning of the men during the historic Homestead strike; the escape of the Biddle boys from the Allegheny County jail; the Hartje divorce case; the Harwick mine disaster, in which 275 miners were killed; the Pittsburgh councilmanic graft scandal in which 104 councilmen were arrested. The last was a three-year assignment.

* * *

MR. SYKES interviewed Presidents McKinley, Taft, Roosevelt and Hoover; Minister Wu of China; Marshal Foch, Albert, King of Belgium; Gen. Petain; the late

Mr. Cassatt, of the P. R. R.; the late Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation; Charles M. Schwab and hundreds of others prominent in national and international affairs.

He recalls, from a front row seat, the digging into the McKees Rocks mound, relics from which are now in the Carnegie Museum; he remembers the Billy Sunday meetings which had the town by the ears; and he wrote many stories detailing return of the home troops from the World War arena.

* * *

MR. SYKES in 1889 joined the Chronicle Telegraph staff, after some experience as a suburban correspondent. He lived then in Bellevue. He was born in Corry street, North Side, and his boyhood was spent in the neighborhood graced by Andrew Carnegie, who was to be interviewed many times by the boy who played around the Carnegie home.

* * *

Alexander P. Moore, ambassador to Peru, former ambassador to Spain, was city hall man for the Chronicle Telegraph when Sykes was on the paper. Moore had started in as an office boy.

SOME of the men the veteran Sykes has seen enter the newspaper business and stay—or leave for other work—a majority still living—are: Morgan Gable, Charles W. Danziger, Harry Milholland, Bill French, Bill Mossman, H. M. Bitner, A. K. Oliver, John B. Reynolds, Erasmus Wilson, William A. Blakeley, Col. Oliver Hershman, T. R. Williams, George J. Campbell, Charles L. Lancaster, Robert M. Jones, Harry Marcy, Col. Austin Beach, William Beazell, Grif Alexander, Walter Christy, John McKirdy, Joe Mackrell, Robert M. Chilton, Fred Splitstone, Elmer Rigdon, Maj. W. H. Davis, Dan Davis, Sir Percival Phillips, A. R. Hamilton, Gene Connelly, Dick Guy, John Cowan, Harry Pinkerton, Shirley Austin, J. K. Burnett, Dr. A. R. Cratty, Jack Dailey, John Gruber, the elder Burgoyne and Arthur G. Burgoyne, Jr., Albert Pfarr, Bill Doak and many others.

Ed Sykes, after 40 years in the business, has gray hair, but an elastic step. His nostrils still dilate when there's news in the wind. His formula is conventional but sound,: "Hard work," he says, "proper diet, good living, early to bed and early to rise, have helped me." His motto in the profession: "Never violate a confidence."

DOCTOR THREAT JAILS VETERAN

A 36-year-old war veteran was under arrest today as the man who had threatened the lives of Dr. C. M. Straesley, and his brother, Dr. F. X. Straesley, of 621 Pressley street, North Side.

He was arrested when he went to the home to apologize for his threat, police reported. They said his explanation was that he was "full of bay rum."

The veteran is Harry Rivers, of 17 Isabella street. Police Inspector Charles Faulkner planned to turn him over to the Veterans' Hospital.

A police guard met Rivers as he arrived at the Straessley home. The police had been on duty there since last Wednesday, when, in the early morning, a man on the front porch talked with R. S. Straessley through a speaking tube.

"I want Dr. F. X. Straessley to treat a patient that's been shot," the man demanded.

"What's your name and address?" Mr. Straessley asked.

"I have no address. I'm a gunman. I want to get the whole Straessley family for killing my mother."

15 BUILDINGS IN HILL DAMAGED BY BOMB

Sleeper Hurled From Bed by Blast; Windows Broken, Concussion Wrecks Home

Windows in 15 buildings were shattered and residents of the entire block were terrorized when a bomb was exploded in front of the home of Edward Johnson, a Negro, of 21 Wooster street, at 3:30 a. m. today.

Among the buildings damaged was the home of T. Crumby Bey, head of the Moorish Temple of Science.

Johnson, his wife, and Edward Jones, a roomer, were sleeping on the second floor; John Terrel and James Russell, also roomers, were on the third floor. Jones was the one blown out of bed.

The bomb was placed under the stone steps leading from the street to the front door of the building, a three-story brick. The force of the blast swept through the lower floor, wrecking the interior and piling furniture and wreckage against the stairway, which cut off the escape of the occupants from their quarters above until police could move it.

Johnston told police he could assign no reason for the bombing. He is a laborer employed by a construction company, and has had no trouble with anyone, he said.

Although the explosion blew into the house, the front door was found against a building on the opposite side of the street. It was only slightly damaged.

BOARD NOT DELETING NAMES

Time Limit Bars Slashing of Assessors' Lists, Says Assistant City Solicitor

No wholesale striking of names from the assessor's books has been ordered by the registration board sitting today.

It is hearing individual cases.

William A. Means, chairman, said:

"We have stricken no names from the lists. Frankly we are in doubt as to whether we can."

Conclusions drawn from the decision of Judges James R. Macfarlane, Ambrose B. Ried, and Joseph M. Swearingen, in Common Pleas Court, were that the opinion would eliminate at least 2,000 names from the books.

BUT ONE AFFECTED

The court held that the delinquent tax collector in the case of Stanley Dombak had no right to collect his tax and his name was scratched from the list. There was nothing in the opinion affecting any other names, the court said.

Assistant City Solicitor Ben L. Steinberg, acting counsel for all persons called before the board today, advised each one that:

"Your vote is in danger next Tuesday, if you either answer any questions of this board or produce any tax receipts. Under the law you do not have to produce anything or answer any questions."

"NO LEGAL RIGHT"

Many took his advice. Others produced receipts. Some testified that although they have voted for nine years that their names never have been placed on the assessment books and that assessors never have called at their residences.

Steinberg said that "the board has no legal right to strike any names off the books. Under the law in order to strike a name off the list the voter must have 10 days' notice that the name is to be stricken. This is impossible because the election is only a week from tomorrow."

County Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich said:

"In view of the apparent confusion it would appear to him that the matter will be one for the election boards to dispose of as the holders of tax receipts present them at the polls to vote."

SAFE CRACKERS GET $500

Robbers broke the combination of a safe in McDougall's dance hall, Shady and Penn avenues, and escaped with between $500 and $600, police were notified today.

After breaking a window to enter the third-floor dance hall from a corridor, the robbers pushed the 500-pound safe 50 feet from the office to the kitchen where they opened it.

Shoes valued at $135 were stolen from the window of the Jay-Bee store, 6244 Frankstown avenue, by robbers who first smashed a $50 plate glass window, according to the police report.

JUDGE NAMING CHANGE URGED

Most of the Pennsylvanians on the National Council of the National Economic League, it was announced today, think the most important thing that can be done to improve the administration of justice is to adopt a better way of selecting judges.

There are more than two score prominent Pittsburghers on the council.

Second among the Pennsylvanians' recommendations was that provision be made for experts to determine the mental capacity of defendants.

The entire council, composed of members from all states, was polled on the question, "What, in your opinion, are the most important steps to be taken for the improvement of the administration of justice in your state?" Eighteen suggestions were submitted.

CARRICK ASKS NEW LIGHTS

Merchants and property owners in Carrick are being asked to sign a petition for a modern lighting system along Brownsville road by Ward Chairman Fred A. Sacher. The petition will be presented to city council asking that the city bear its portion of the costs.

Mt. Oliver already has installed the new system of lights and Brentwood has the lamps ordered, the council having acted favorably on the project. Should the Carrick plan be successful, Brownsville road, one of the main arteries of the Hill Top, will bear the distinction of being the best lighted thoroughfare in the county.

It is proposed to have the new system conform to similar ones installed in Mt. Oliver and proposed in Brentwood.

Mourned as Dead, 'Buried,' Boy Returns

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Mourned as dead and officially buried, John Hammond, 19, walked into his mother's home here and told of adventures that took him from New York City to Los Angeles since he disappeared last November. The mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hammond, had identified the body of a youth recovered from the Ohio River at Portsmouth, O., last May as that of her son and had buried the body in a Portsmouth cemetery under his name.

FIRE DESTROYS LANDMARK

Pine Creek's landmark, which for 35 years housed the Keown postoffice, was destroyed by fire yesterday, just a month after L. A. Hohmann had established a grocery store and his residence in the old two-story frame dwelling.

Firemen placed the damage at $18,000. Before flames spread through the living quarters, neighbors and firemen succeeded in saving some merchandise and furniture, but Hohmann said almost all of his goods were destroyed. He did not know how the fire started.

Thieves, active during the excitement, stole three diamond rings and a watch, valued at more than $300 from a dresser that had been taken from the building. County detective and state police were given descriptions of the articles.

Thousands of motorists were attracted to the fire, which was fought by every company in the district, when the flames threatened two adjoining garages, and traffic was tied up for three miles, according to State Troopers T. R. Clark and R. R. Riley.

Powder Puffs Cast Aside For Smoking Room

It's puff, puff, puff at Margaret Morrison now. Not powder puffs, but real puffs of delicious-smelling tobacco.

The girls have recently completed their smoking room and are now doing their best to fill it with drifting clouds of smoke. Even though the authorities of the institution have shown no inclination to announce the newest addition to the school and have taken little interest in its success except to set aside a little room in the basement for the student's use, the smoking den is progressing fine and every girl is invited to visit its confines.

The room, furnished by the girls, is unlike most of its kind, for it is not entirely feminine. The practical is apparent throughout. Orange wicker chairs, a lounge, wicker table, a plain white curtain on the lone window and numerous overflowing ash trays comprise the appointments.

As yet, no blindfold tests have been conducted in the new smoking room, but that may be due to the fact that the cigaret companies have not been informed that such a place exists on Carnegie's campus and then again, blindfold experts may object to using a basement room for the examinations. If ever such tests come, the girls students look very capable of judging the merits of the brands.

Co-eds, like others, appear to relish their smoke immediately after lunch. At noon time space in the room is at a premium and a seat is something to be dreamed of. When afternoon classes convene the atmosphere clears. During the day, of course, it is necessary to quiet the nerves for stiff "exam" and then the little room's air again becomes difficult.

Uncle Roy Says

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Oct. 28.

The Carnegie Foundation got their answer about paid athletes Saturday. One half million people attended seven games where the athletes were subsidized. Less than half that many attended 50 games where the athletes were pure, but not much athletes.

The public don't care how you got to college. It's how are you going to get from the forty-yard line to over the goal that they are worrying about.

We are a "get the dough" people, and our children are born in a commercial age. Why, if a babe in arms can cry loud enough to get paid for it, we are tickled to death.

Make 'em pay for talent whether it's art, music, football, literature, radio announcing or flagpole sitting.

TRIO CAUGHT IN CHASE HELD AS LUNCH STAND BANDITS

VICTIMS TO SEE SUSPECTS IN 'STAND-UP'

Three Stores, Residence and Autos Looted by Thieves; Man Held Up Downtown

Held as bandit suspects, three young men today faced a "stand up" and questioning in connection with the holdups of barbecue stands in the northern section of the county.

The trio, arrested after a chase in Babcock boulevard, Ross Township, Saturday night, said they were William Birch, 19, of Glenshaw; Harold Forsythe, of Evergreen road, Millvale, and Joe Kleitz, of Millvale. They were arrested by State Highway Patrolman Bob Clark when they stopped their automobile in Babcock boulevard, according to Clark. They sped away as the policeman approached, but were captured after a short chase.

GUNS FOUND IN CAR

In the automobile, highway patrolmen reported finding two revolvers and a supply of ammunition. They denied any complicity in holdups when questioned at the West View Police Station, where they were booked as suspicious persons.

The prisoners were scheduled for a hearing today before Justice of the Peace Eugene Mehrlich, of Millvale, where they will be viewed by proprietors of barbecue stands who were robbed.

Two stores, a tailor shop and a residence were visited by thieves, two automobiles were looted and a pedestrian was held up over the week-end, according to reports to police.

HILL STORES ROBBED

Breaking into the store of Ben Isenberg, at 2324 Wylie avenue, thieves obtained $50 in cash and merchandise valued at $20. William Johnson, of 1816 Wylie avenue, told police that a cigaret vending machine valued at $75 was stolen from his store. Entrance was gained by jimmying a rear door. Three suits and an overcoat comprised the loot of robbers who forced an entry to the tailor shop of Philip Xenakis, at 613 Wylie avenue.

Two bandits held up Robert Fyse, of 7 Mawhinney street, at Seventh avenue and Grant street, late Saturday night, and robbed him of a watch and chain valued at $40.

From the automobile of Miss Charlotte Miller, of Wheeling, W. Va., wearing apparel valued at $100 was stolen. The car was parked in front of the Schenley Apartments, Fifth avenue.

Parking his automobile at William Penn way and Liberty avenue, Nick Bendetto, of Blairsville, returned a few minutes later and discovered three overcoats valued at $105, had been stolen.

Priests from 40 parishes in the Pittsburgh district yesterday took part in the services at the cornerstone laying of the school of St. Mary Magdalene Church, Ninth avenue and Amity street, Homestead. The school is being built at a cost of $430,000.

The exercises were preceded by a parade. The Rev. David Shanahan, pastor of the church, was in charge of the services.

Speakers were the Rev. Ralph H. Hayes, pastor of St. Catherine's Church, Beechview, and former superintendent of schools of the Pittsburgh diocese; Charles Johnson, president of the Munhall Borough School Board; Port Eckles, superintendent of Homestead schools; Burgess John Cavanaugh, of Homestead; State Senator Frank J. PAIR BROUGHT BACK ON THEFT CHARGES

Arrest in Reading Comes After Quarrel; Coraopolis Jewelry Robbery Involved

Phillip Rock, of West Aliquippa, and Harold Mason, of New Bedford, Mass., arrested in Reading, Pa., Thursday, were returned to Pittsburgh yesterday in custody of Chief of Police S. J. Riddle, of Coraopolis, and County Detective W. O. Alexander, to face charges of larceny and receiving stolen goods. The pair will be arraigned before Justice of the Peace Charles H. Stevenson, of Corapolis, tonight.

They are wanted, Chief Riddle said, for the theft of several watches from a Coraopolis jeweler recently.

Detective Edward Harper, of New Bedford, reported that Rock had complained to him that Mason, whom he had given a lift in his automobile from Tyrone to Reading, had stolen two watches from him, and Mason, in retaliation, made a counter charge of theft against Rock.

State police, learning that Rock was wanted in Coraopolis on a robbery charge, notified Chief Riddle. Police said that a watch was found on Rock and two others on Mason. Pawn tickets issued in Pittsburgh and Cleveland were found on Rock, police said.

POLICE RESERVES QUELL RIOT OVER FOOTBALL GAME

SOHO CONTEST WINDS UP IN FIST FIGHT

Spectators, Players Beaten As Lawrenceville Mohawks And Oak Leaves Battle

Several spectators and players today were nursing bruised faces and discolored eyes as a result of a free-for-all fight which terminated a football game between the Lawrenceville Mohawks and the Soho Oakleafs, on a field near Moultrie street, Soho, yesterday.

The score was 10 to 0 in the third quarter, in favor of the Strip eleven, when the fight started, according to some of the spectators. Remarks and then bricks hurled from the bleachers were said to have precipitated the trouble. Fists flew right and left when a handful of police arrived. Their attempt to break up th fight proved futile, and they sent in additional calls for help.

The arrival of the second squad dispersed the players and spectators. No arrests were made. Police said that the fighting subsided when they arrived.

The most serious casualty was suffered by a Mohawk gridder, who had six stitches taken in his forehead, observers declared.

ASKS CHURCHES AID DRY DRIVE

Importance of the church in combating organized forces arraigned against prohibition was stressed by the Rev. Dr. Homer W. Tope, state superintendent of the Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon League at the morning services yesterday in the Second United Presbyterian Church. He said, in part:

"The sooner the Christian church realizes that three-month enlistments are meaningless and valueless in this fight against traffic in beverage alcohol, the more quickly we shall be able to enlist that body of volunteers necessary to make certain the ultimate sure triumph for the cause of righteousness.

"As the first line of defense, the second line, the third line and the reserves in the battle for sobriety and decency, there is only one force. It is the Christian church. No other institution has the same responsibility in this matter.

"In each set battle the prohibition forces have been victorious. Against an organized opposition such as opposed no other social legislation, this policy has been enforced far better than its enemies desire, although not so well as its friends might wish. Its better enforcement and, in fact, its very continuance, depends upon the quantity and duration of the support you give it."

FILLS PIPE WITH OIL, LIGHTS IT AND DIES

Farmhand Fatally Burned Near Coraopolis When Flames Ignite Clothing

After filling his pipe with kerosense, John Gubo, 40, lighted it and was fatally burned early yesterday in a barn on the John Java farm, near Coraopolis, according to a report to the county morgue. Before filling the pipe, Gubo had chased cattle from the barn, the noise arousing several other persons on the farm.

Gubo, morgue attaches say, had lived in the barn for three weeks, and last night he is thought to have been drinking. A short time after he had aroused occupants of the farmhouse, he was heard to scream. Those who found him beat out the flames.

Dr. Paul Lane, of Coraopolis, was called and attended the injured man. The physician said he was told that Gubo tried to smoke his pipe and found it would not draw properly. The man then poured oil into the bowl and lit it. The flames ignited his clothing and burned him about the body.

BOOTH TESTS MARSTERS IN ELI-GREEN TILT

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

TWENTY — MONDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1929 — BEST IN PITTSBURGH

13 ARE UNBEATEN, UNTIED

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

TICKET COUNT 63,000; MANY 'EXTRAS'

PITTSBURGH has seen many better football games than Saturday's Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame struggle, and will see, doubtless, many more excelling in brilliance and interest of play than that which brought to the Stadium its largest crowd, to the city its premier athletic spectacle to date. The day and the scene were perfect, but the game was just ordinarily good football, a game which in any other setting would be widely referred to as "uneventful," "commonplace."

Jack Elder

Hard fought? Extremely so. Evenly contended? Yes—the margin of the Irish superiority over the Plaid was just that one touchdown that the scoreboard showed, though the visitors might have made another with a little more time at the half-way mark. But on a par with the memorable contests staged between these teams in recent years? Far from it, except in a defensive sense. Both teams were so strong defensively that neither could make much headway against the other, as attested by the small total of 11 first downs.

MANY compliments may be paid the contestants, and this estimate of a thrill-lacking game remains true. The thousands who have voiced a feeling of some disappointment at the standard of play don't mean to say that it was a poor game; they are simply expressing the feeling of fans who expected the superlative in thrill and didn't get it.

First, now, what merits did stand out? Carnegie's dashing, resolute fight against an unquestionably superior team, of course. Notre Dame's powerful running offensive, full of strength, even though frequently stopped by the Plaid's desperate defense. Elder's flashy, shifty ball-carrying. He is not only a great sprinter but a real football player. Individual brilliance of Cannon, Brill, Law, Highberger, L. Flanagan and Karcis. Cannon's line play in particular, was one of the best exhibitions ever seen on a local field.

WHY, then, the disappointment? Because seldom has a big game been completed with so small a number of plays run off. There were long waits between plays, at many stages of the games, and seldom did either team present a sequence of maneuvers unbroken by delays.

It was, for a game of such significance, a singularly slow one. Again, because the variety of attack was much less than expected.

NOTRE DAME, especially relied almost entirely on half a dozen plays, directed chiefly at or inside the tackles, varied only by Elder's occasional sweeping jaunts around end. Carnegie, famed in recent years as a forward passing team, tossed the ball seldom, much less frequently than might have been expected of a team with so many good passing plays and facing an opponent of Notre Dame's defensive caliber.

Howard Eyth

FUMBLING marred the game as it has few between major opponents in the Stadium. Brill, otherwise a tower of strength, was a notable offender in this regard. Mullins, Armentrout, Eyth and McCurdy joined in the nervous juggling of the oval. Fumbling broke up chances for both sides.

Carnegie fought back manfully and well after the visitor's touchdown. But why didn't she utilize all the weapons at her disposal? And were the Irish, apparently possessed of abundant resources beyond what they used in this game, content to win by so slender a margin?

ON the other side of the ledger, the tackling was excellent, and the South Benders showed local fans a most superior ability to protect their punter, as well as some worthy interference on kicking plays.

And, speaking of punting, there never has been a dry-field big game played here in which the kicking was so short, and, in the main, so feeble. Tech's booters got off just one good punt all day. Carideo's, kicks for their opponents, usually were well placed but quite short.

THE best man in the Carnegie line was Highberger, the huge left tackle. He and Douds, of W. & J., look like the leaders of tackle crop in this section. The Plaid ends were erratic; brilliant in spots, below par at other times. Dreshar played his usual hard, effective game, but was twice tricked by the shifty Carideo into completely missing a downfield tackle that, completed, would have saved Carnegie precious yards.

KARCIS, below par all season, played his best game, especially on the defense. He gained little ground, because the Irish line had a margin on its own, but he certainly played havoc with Notre Dame's ground-gaining efforts. His weakest performance was, as usual, in interference in plays directed at the end. He rushes out with surprising speed, but seldom drops his man. This is in marked contrast to his proficiency in backing up or in clearing the way on a line charge.

Carnegie will be much more dangerous as Rosenzweig regains form. He hasn't been at his best so far this season, and the team misses his starring. He is to them just about what Donchess is to Pitt, although he has yet to attain the extraordinary defensive power of the latter.

John Karcis

CANNON was an extremely valuable man to his team, as was Capt. Law on the other side of center. Notre Dame's tackles were good, though not outstanding. Her ends weren't quite so clever as expected. Carideo played a whale of a game, sharing honors with Elder and Brill. He is a notably versatile chap, sturdy and of well-rounded capability.

If he wasn't operating under wraps, however, to save something for the Georgia Tech game in Atlanta next Saturday and for the Drake, Southern California, Northwestern and Army games to follow, his generalship was nothing to boast of, though never consciuously faulty. His toss over the goal line on the first down near the end of the first half was forced by lack of time for line plays.

WHEN the Steffenites had the ball they appeared less sure of themselves than were their opponents. They started their plays with less confidence, no matter which of their quarterbacks was in charge. Many spectators liked Eyth's work while he was in there, and felt that it would have been wiser to keep him in the lineup as Tech's best threat. Armentrout, from what he showed, will be the best player in Carnegie's backfield in another year unless Eyth continues to improve.

OF THE Irish second eleven, which started the game, Savoldi of course was a standout, and well earned his participation during the third quarter with the varsity lineup. He was, on Saturday's showing, as good a player as Mullins, barring his failure to intercept or spoil a forward pass, for which he was taken out. Schwartz is apparently a halfback good enough to make some regular teams, and McManmon is no slouch of a tackle.

The visitors were much better fortified with reserves, of course, than the locals, who have all year shown that they haven't more than five or six substitutes who can go in without definitely weaken-

U. S. C. BATTLES CALIFORNIA SATURDAY

Associated Press.

Two family quarrels, one in New England and the other in California, stand out this week on a football slate otherwise featured by a flock of intersectional debates.

The relative merits of two of the East's greatest scoring aces, Albie Booth, of Yale, and Al Marsters, of Dartmouth, as well as the sectional championship aspirations of each team, will be involved when the teams meet at New Haven.

Dartmouth has never beaten Yale and must shake off this jinx as well as check Booth to win. When Swede Oberlander was wearing the Green, Dartmouth's best was a 14-14 tie with the Elis. Now it is Marsters' turn to attempt what no other Dartmouth ace has been able to do.

BOOTH MAY REPEAT

Booth, Yale's vital spark, now has dashed in to win two straight for the Blue, against Brown and Army. He has scored five touchdowns in successive games. His dazzling performance Saturday eclipsed even the great Red Cagle, Army's captain. It will be difficult to keep this 144-pound artful dodger off the All-America slate if he repeats against so flashy a rival as Marsters.

The championship of the Pacific Coast Conference will be at stake when Southern California meets California at Los Angeles in the second successive struggle of far Western giants. The Trojans hurdled their biggest obstacle when they beat Stanford, 7 to 0, Saturday. Although rated favorites, they may find Benny Lom and the rest of the Golden Bears difficult to stop.

Pittsburgh and Notre Dame, two other unbeaten arrays and strong contenders for national honors, meet intersectional foes this week. The Panthers meet Ohio State, which had an unblemished slate until held to a scoreless tie Saturday by Indiana.

Notre Dame, seeking more revenge, moves South to play Georgia Tech. The Hoosiers so far have turned the tables on two of their 1928 conquerors, Wisconsin and Carnegie. Last year Georgia Tech beat Rockne's Ramblers for the first time, but the Tornado does not figure to repeat, having already lost to North Carolina and Tulane.

SOUTH VS. NORTH

Two Southern elevens move up into the Boston sector this week. Duke, already battered by Pittsburgh, Navy and Villa Nova, has not much chance against Boston College, but Florida may hand Harvard a surprise. The Gators came to life Saturday to stop the wild splurge of the Georgia Bulldogs, conquerors of Yale. At the same time Harvard was absorbing a drubbing at the hands of Dartmouth.

Princeton and Chicago renew a rivalry that in 1922 was marked by one of the most sensational intersectional battles ever played. The Tigers, after two defeats, tied Navy Saturday, while Chicago was overwhelmed by Purdue.

Carnegie goes West to play Al Sharpe's Washington University team at St. Louis. Army defends the ramparts against South Dakota.

Sectional classics make up most of the week's other star attractions. Purdue, now setting the Big Ten pace, hopes to hurdle Wisconsin. Illinois must beat Northwestern to stay in the running, while Minnesota's strong array, also unbeaten, figures to repel Indiana.

MAY DECIDE TIE

In the Southwest, the champion Texas Longhorns grapple Southern Methodists in a game that may decide the 1929 title. The Southern Conference scramble will find Tennessee attacking Auburn, Tulane hooking up with Georgia, Clemson tackling the Kentucky Wildcats and Vanderbilt playing Alabama in games of championship significance.

The Big Six favorites, Nebraska and Missouri, fought to a 7-7 tie Saturday and this week turn their attention to Kansas and the Kansas Aggies, respectively. In the Rocky Mountain area, Utah's champions oppose Brigham Young, while Dutch Clark leads Colorado College against the Utah Aggies in an effort to stay in the conference vanguard.

Tom Campbell Scores Second Hole in One

Tom Campbell, champion of the Pittsburgh Field Club, scored his second hole in one yesterday, when he sunk his jigger shot against a strong wind on the fourth hole of the Aspinwall course. It is about 150 yards. Campbell was playing with A. P. Vandervere and Joe Bryan when he netted his ace.

Last year, while playing with Dave McKay, the Field Club's professional, Campbell negotiated his first hole. It marks the only time McKay has scored a birdie 2 and lost the hole.

TOMORROW—VILLAGE OF MANY-FINGERED MEN

PURDUE LEADS PARADE IN BIG TEN

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—The race for the Western Conference gridiron championship has simmered down to Purdue and Minnesota, with Illinois and Ohio State lurking in the background.

Purdue leads the parade with two victories, with Ohio State second with two victories and a tie.

Minnesota, having won its only Big Ten game, is ranked third, with Illinois, victorious over Michigan by a 14-to-0 count, pulling up in fourth place.

MAY CLEAR SITUATION

The games next Saturday may clear the situation, with Illinois tangling with Northwestern at Evanston, Purdue meeting Wisconsin at Madison, and Indiana going all the way to Minneapolis to take it on the chin from the rough and ready Minnesota outfit. These three contests are the only conflicts involving championship consideration. Chicago goes to Princeton for a game with the Tigers, while Ohio State will meet Pittsburgh on the Panthers' field.

Indiana, bruised by Notre Dame, defeated by Chicago and walloped by Colgate, mauled the Ohio State line for seven first downs to three for the Buckeyes, and had the Ohioans back on their heels most of the way. Neither team got within the 10-yard line, but Indiana was at the front door so often it appeared a certainty something would occur in the way of a break to give the Hoosiers a touchdown.

Purdue trampled over Chicago by a 26-to-6 score because the Boilermakers were a superior team and because the Maroons were so seriously weakened by injuries that a flock of substitutes were sent in to finish the game. Harmeson scored three of Purdue's touchdowns and tossed a pass to Bill Mackle that accounted for the fourth.

ILLINI WEAK

Illinois defeated Michigan as was expected, but the Illini, in the judgment of experts, did not appear to have much strength to back their drive to a third straight Big Ten championship. Except for two thrilling runs, neither made from scrimmage, Illinois did not exhibit much of a punch. Michigan, however, displayed a vast improvement in line play.

Wisconsin has taken rank with the Wolverines as the second big disappointment of the season. Beaten for the third time in three weeks and failing to score a point in all three games, the Badgers have been unable to find themselves and cannot seem to get going despite wholesale shifts by Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite. Iowa walloped the Badgers, 14 to 0, chiefly through the efforts of Oliver Sansen and Oran Pape, backfield aces.

Auto Racer Killed In Plunge at Woodbridge

WOODBRIDGE, N. J., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—John Rohrer, an automobile racer, was killed yesterday as his car plunged through the outer guard rail of the Woodbridge track and crashed against a tree, after hurtling through the air for 75 feet. Rohrer, who was 24 years old, was from Yorkville, Pa.

The accident occurred in the first heat of a 15-mile race. The other seven entrants finished the race, which was won by Dick Decker, of Staten Island.

CUBS PURCHASE LESTER BELL

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Purchase of Lester Bell, Boston Braves third baseman, by the Chicago Cubs was consummated yesterday, according to a telephone message from President William Veeck in Hot Springs, Va. The amount involved was not disclosed, but it was said the deal involved a "considerable sum of money."

Lester Bell

The deal was closed in Washington at a conference between Veeck and President Emil Fuchs, of the Braves, according to the message, and is part of the plan announced by Owner William Wrigley, Jr., to strengthen his club's weak spots for the 1930 pennant drive.

Floor Stars Signed As Penn Coaches

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Joe Schaaf and Bill Lazar, both members of the 1928-29 intercollegiate championship basketball team, have been named assistant coaches at the University of Pennsylvania, according to announcement today.

Schaaf and Lazar will make their first appearances as coaches tonight when the varsity and freshmen candidates report for their first practice of the season.

M'TIERNAN GO TONIGHT MAY PACK GARDEN

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

They're looking for the best turnout of the indoor season to date at Motor Square Garden tonight, with Jack (Buck) McTierman, of Swissvale, making his main bout debut in that arena against Georgie Fifield, of Toronto, former Canadian welterweight champion, and George Panka, Buck's heavyweight stablemate, of Homestead, boxing a return battle with Long Tom Williams, Negro, of Chicago and Cleveland, in the six-round semi-final.

Buck has a big following and he's just returning to the wars following an absence of several months due to illness. In his first bout over the return trail, at McKeesport a little more than a week ago, he knocked out Tony Ross in the first round, displaying the same boxing skill and punch that enabled him to fight his way to the top in short order after entering the professional ranks.

PANKA TRAINS HARD

Panka has been training hard with Buck since his first meeting with Williams, at the Garden, several weeks ago, and expects to be able to keep up a hot pace until he adds Williams to his list of knockout victims. He tired after the first round of his first bout with Tom and took quite a pasting, but was getting his second wind when the thing was nearing its close. Williams is the only opponent he has failed to knock out in his brief but sensational professional career. A big delegation of fellow-workers in the Carnegie Steel plant in Homestead will be on hand tonight to root for George.

Chet Smallwood, southpaw featherweight, of Akron, returns to box Ken Hargraves, Negro, of New Kensington, in the second preliminary after having beaten U. S. Carpentier at the Garden last Monday night, and Georgie Chambers, who stopped Steve Pollock in the first round a week ago, is back with Hugh Fetzer, with whom he carried on quite a rivalry while both were amateurs. The first bout is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock.

RODGERS AT OIL CITY

WOOD VICTOR IN OKLAHOMA

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Craig Wood, of the Forest Hill Field Club, Forest Hill, N. J., yesterday won the Oklahoma City open golf tournament with a 72-hole total of 298 strokes. First money is $1,000. The final 36 holes were played in a downpour of rain.

Wood was around the long and bunkered course in 163 strokes in his last 36 holes. His morning round showed a 35-37—72, two shots above par.

The New Jersey pro finished two shots better than Tommy Armour, former National open champion, and Dick Grout, of Muskogee, Oklahoma open champion, who tied for second with 300's. Armour has started in quest of the winter tournament money under the banner of the Tam O'Shanter Club, of Detroit. At the half-way mark Armour had a 36-hole card of 150. He duplicated that with a fine pair of 75's.

Grout and Armour will split second and third money, totaling $1,200.

Fourth money of $300 went to Billy Burke, of Westport, N. Y. Burke had a score of 301, which was one stroke better than Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot artist. Kirkwood's 302 was good for a $200 prize.

PETE NEBO WINS

CARNEGIE LOSES DRAB GAME TO IRISH

By JESS CARVER.

With the advent of hoary November, the 1929 collegiate football campaign enters the home stretch with the spectacle of 13 undefeated and untied elevens racing neck and neck toward the finish line.

Saturday's program was a strenuous one for all concerned, few of the major elevens in the land having an easy afternoon. It was more than strenuous for half a dozen of the chosen, for exactly that many were toppled into the heap of discards, either meeting up with sudden defeat or being held to ties.

D. & E. TIED

The list of undefeated and untied tri-state district elevens was reduced by just one, Davis-Elkins dropping out of Pitt's perfect company by getting no better than a draw with Fordham. Pitt continued its triumphant march by bowling over Allegheny, 40-0, and engineering the feat with a reserve lineup.

The most important feature of the week-end card was served in The Stadium, where 66,000, a record and capacity crowd, watched Notre Dame defeat Carnegie Tech. The game itself was disappointing, being almost without thrill and offering no more than ordinary action. The Irish won the ball game, but did so in very unimpressive fashion, while Carnegie, fighting hard for every yard, put up a fine exhibition. The Tartan attack was almost stingless, but on the defense, Carnegie was admirable.

The crowd was colorful enough, and the sight of the vast Stadium, filled for the first time, impressive. Fortunately, Dashing Jack Elder, Knute Rockne's fast traveling halfback, skipped away twice for comparatively long dashes, putting some kick into the ball game. Jack Cannon, Notre Dame guard, stood out among the linemen, playing a splendid game both on the offense and defense. He gave one of the best individual exhibitions of line play seen here this year.

For Carnegie, Latham Flanagan, the right end, made a fine showing. Johnny Karcis, checked for the most part when he attempted to carry the ball, backed up the Carnegie line admirably and came close to thwarting Notre Dame's touchdown march. He stopped Savoldi three times, but the Irish fullback fooled him the fourth and jumped across the line for the score.

PITT EASY WINNER

Pitt had little if any trouble at Erie with Allegheny, running up a far larger score than was expected. Coach Sutherland used few of his varsity players, permitting the rough and ready second and third elevens to run wild. Jimmy Rooney, the well-known politician, was the individual star of the game for Pitt.

As a result of this victory, Pitt takes rank with Cornell, Dartmouth and Western Maryland for the lead in the East. None of these four teams have been beaten or tied.

In the Middle West, the same number have perfect record, Detroit University, Minnesota, Purdue and Notre Dame have their first setbacks to experience.

The South vies with the East and Mid-West in the matter of undefeated elevens. Texas, Clemson, Tennessee and Tulane top the institutions below the Mason-Dixon line. One far Western eleven, Southern California, has so far escaped trouble, and maintained its fine record by beating Pop Warner's Stanford Cardinals Saturday.

GENEVA LACED

There was only one startling upset scored in tri-state action Saturday, that being Grove City's decisive rout of Geneva. The game appeared to be a toss-up prior to the kickoff, but

M'CHESNEYTOWN, GLASSPORT OUT OF RACE

EAST LIVERPOOL PUT OUT BY WEST VIEW

By TOM BIRKS.

With record-breaking crowds in attendance, independent gridiron battles yesterday found McChesneytown, Glassport Odds and East Liverpool passing out of the titular race. Nine thousand fans watched the Big Red McChesneytown aggregation bite the dust at Rainbow Gardens. Schackern, former Geneva star had his educated toe working in the second period, he kicking a field goal from the 35-yard line. With one minute to play, a long forward pass, Newlin to Schackern, scored the only touchdown of the game, the final score being Olympics 10, McChesneytown 0.

WEST VIEW VICTOR

The 1928 champion caught a tartar at West View. Paul Daley's East Liverpool gridders lost 13-0, it is true, but Muzzio's club had a tough time getting its touchdowns. Burns and East Pittsburgh Firemen fought a great battle at the Quarry Stadium, Burns winning 7 to 0. Oakland Community and Venice fought to a tie at McKees Rocks. Hope Harvey and Glassport had 3,000 fans in a frenzy, the Majestics winning 8-0. The New Kensington Olympics defeated Irwin, 6 to 0, Millvale Amici and Library played to a scoreless tie, while the Natrona Frieis beat Hyde Park, 7 to 6.

Until the last minute of the Olympic game, it was thought Schracken's field goal would tote home the battle, but the touchdown came along. It was a hard battle for Iverson. Toline, who is one of the classiest backfield men in the district, was hurt and will be out of the game for the rest of the season.

Mose Kelsh had to be brought into the game to score the first touchdown for the West Viewers. Kelsh was brought in to get the last six inches after the Parkers had battered the Pottery line three times unsuccessfully.

At the end of the first half West View had not crossed over its own 45-yard line. This was something new for the fans. East Liverpool is one fighting crowd of good ball players.

MAJESTICS EXTENDED

For the first time this season, the Majestics were extended. The only score until only five minutes remained came when Foote fumbled and fell on the ball for a safety. Glassport stubbornly fought against the touchdown in the last quarter. With the ball on the three-yard line, the Glass boys held for three downs, and then Harp Vaughan circled end for the touchdown. It was a real battle and Glassport went down fighting.

The Burns-East Pittsburgh session was very similar. For three quarters the fight waged. Burns rather outplayed the home club, but the old saying that the Firemen never start to play until they are in the shadow of their own goal again was a reality. Sharkey proved to the fans he is going to be a real contender for All-Star honors. It was his brilliant plunging that scored the touchdown for the Goldberg club. The lineups:

Charley Berry had his team hitting on all 11, and Geneva was soundly thumped. Grove City and the Dukes, of Duquesne, now have first call on the tri-state minor college champion.

Thiel made up for its defeat at the hands of Geneva a week ago by taking Westminster into camp in a Tri-State Class B Conference game and Waynesburg slipped into the running by beating Bethany, St. Francis lost to St. Bonaventure at Buffalo, West Virginia Wesleyan laced Salem on Friday and on the same afternoon St. Vincent mowed down the Fairmont Teachers at Latrobe.

Davis-Elkins had to come back in the final period against Fordham to gain a tie with the conquerors of New York University. Hawley, Cam Henderson's fine center, and Warren, his great halfback, won the plaudits of the East by their sparkling exhibitions of fine football.

STATE LUCKY

The last play of the ball game brought a lucky victory to Penn State over Lafayette, 6-3, being the second week in a row that Herb McCracken's Maroons have been set down by the same tally. A forward pass, hurled just as the timekeeper raised his whistle to his lips, was completed for a touchdown, with the Lions trailing by 3-0. There was not enough time left for the Lions to try for the extra point.

West Virginia made it two in a row by beating the Oklahoma Aggies at Stillwater, Okla., 9 to 6. Wash-Jeff engaged in its second scoreless tie in a row, battling to no decision with Temple in Philadelphia. The tie may have been a costly one, for Jap Douds, sterling Prexy tackle, was carried from the field late in the game suffering with a leg injury.

OHIO STATE HALTED

There will be no more meetings in Pittsburgh between two undefeated and untied elevens. The last hope for such a game went flittering out the window when Indiana held Ohio State even. The Buckeyes meet Pitt here Saturday. Indiana, little regarded in the betting and thrice beaten, outplayed the Staters and presented the only scoring gestures of the game.

Yale, accorded but an outside chance to beat the Army, took that chance and whipped the Cadets, 21 to 13 in a wild and wooly ball game. The Eli overcome a 13-point lead, which is a feat worthy of song and story. But maybe not against Army.

BENNETT STARS

Joe Bennett, a Crafton citizen, figured prominently in Princeton's 13-13 tie with Navy. He ran back one of Bowstrom's punts and then ripped through the Navy defense to the three-yard line to put the ball in position for the Tigers' first score. The Navy was a favorite in this game, even as the Army was over Yale.

Verily, it was a tough afternoon for the best liked ones.

Harvard, with its 20-20 tie with Army serving to encourage its young men, was booted about by powerful Dartmouth, and lost out 34 to 7. Syracuse came back against Brown and took a 6-0 decision.

In the Big Ten, things happened about as was expected. Purdue continued to put in serious bids for the Conference title by beating Chicago. Illinois ran over Michigan and Iowa, as if to prove that the tie with Illinois was no fluke, beat Wisconsin. Indiana tied Ohio State.

The puting averages at the Teck-Notre Dame game were considerably lowered because of the fact that both teams got off boots well within enemy territory, designed to go out of bounds close to the goal line.

Nebraska evidently recovered from the Pitt defeat without serious harm, for the Huskers fought Missouri to a standstill in a Big Six game Saturday.

Graduate Manager of Athletics Holohan, at Duquesne, will put the finishing touch on the arrangements for the night game between Dukes and Geneva at Forbes Field Friday.

The Dukes will get in two or three after supper practice sessions here. Geneva plans to use New Castle High's field for its drills.

St. Vincent's Gridders To Get Long Rest

LATROBE, Pa., Oct. 28.—The St. Vincent's College football team will have a two-week layoff before their next game with St. Francis on Armistice day in Latrobe. Crowe did not schedule a game for Saturday in order to give his boys plenty of time to rest up and get in shape for their annual classic with Bill Donohue's Loretto outfit.

The Bearcats came out of their game with Fairmont in good shape and at the present time only one man, Melago, is on the sick list and he has been out since the St. Bonaventure game a month ago. Crowe gave every man on the squad a chance in the Fairmont game and ordered his quarterbacks not to open up with all the plays, and especially the pass formation, that have gained so much ground for the Bearcats this year.

Although the Bearcats tossed 13 passes, they heaved the ones that are known to every coach and not the more complicated ones that will be used against St. Francis outfit. Gene Edwards, assistant coach at St. Vincent's, went to Olean, N. Y., yesterday to watch St. Francis and St. Bonaventure play.

Race in Southwest Conference Muddled

DALLAS, Oct. 28. — (AP.) — The Southwest Conference grid race fast is developing into one of "those things." Baylor's 27-to-12 defeat by Centenary College and Southern Methodists' impressive 52-to-0 victory over Mississippi University Saturday threw the Conference dopesters for a definite loss.

Baylor, regarded since the season opened as a top-heavy favorite to capture the championship, has faltered before the race is well under way. The Methodists, scarcely given a thought by the critics, have risen into the front rank of title contenders. From here on, the campaign promises to be one of te most spectacular in Conference history. Texas University and Texas Christian stand out as the most consistently powerful elevens in the Conference. Both won their fifth straight game handily, the Longhorns thumping the Rice Owls, 39 to 0, for their second Conference victory, the Frogs beating Texas Tech, 22 to 0, at Lubbock.

Lauri, Woods, Ponzi In Playoff Today

BALTIMORE, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—The Eastern pocket billiard championship tournament being played here was thrown into a three-cornered tie Saturday night by the 100-to-82 victory of Onofrio Lauri, of Brooklyn, N. Y., over Arthur Woods, of Pawtucket, R. I. Lauri, Woods and Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, will play off the tie tomorrow. The winner will be crowned the Eastern champion and will go to Detroit in December to enter the tournament for the world championship.

Tom Malco, of Soho, who has been winning consistently in local rings, graduates to the main bout class at the Moose Temple Friday night, when he meets Tiger Joe Randall, Negro knockout clouter, of Elizabeth, Pa. Promoter Flynn's original intention was to use Hans Roberts, the German, again in his windup, as he has him signed for three more fights, but had to make a switch in his plans.

Bob Levy, of New York, was a visitor in town today, trying to line up some matches for Phil Tobias, his Jewish flyweight, and Hubert Gillis, his Belgian lightweight. Levy was the manager of the late Battling Siki.

Johnny McCoy, veteran, of Buffalo, has been entered in the New York flyweight elimination tournament, to take the place of Happy Atherton, who has dropped out.

CHAMP TO BOX HERE

Frankie Wallace, the National junior bantamweight champion, will be a member of the all-star Cleveland team which will meet an all-Pittsburgh team in the inter-city amateur boxing show at the P. A. Saturday night of next week. He will be pitted against either Johnny Warner, of Clairton, or Mose Butch, of the Willow Club. Seven bouts are carded.

Tommy Walsh, veteran manager of boxers of Chicago, wants to bring his junior-lightweight, Sailor Kosky, here for a bout with Tony Herrera, Roger Bernard, Phil Goldstein, Tommy Crawley or what have we. Kosky, a southpaw, who recently appeared in New Castle, hails originally from California and only a little more than a week ago grabbed a decision over Andy Martin in Boston. Walsh also handles Johnny Burns, the middleweight, who boxes Henry Firpo at the New Castle Jolly Bowl next Monday night. There is no show at the New Castle arena tonight.

HOCKEY DRILLS RESUMED

The local skaters rested from their physical labors yesterday, but their training was continued in the form of verbal treatments administered by Benny Leonard, owner of the club, and Pilot Frederickson. At a meeting of the players Leonard stressed the importance of condition, and Frederickson spoke on what he expected the Bucs to accomplish in the new ice campaign.

Before leaving for New York, last night, Leonard said that there had been no salary cuts despite the fact that the club lost money last season, and that he expected no "holdout" difficulties.

Leonard is to return to Pittsburgh within a few days, and will remain until November 16, when the Montreal Maroons will help the Pirates to open the season here.

Mountaineers Arrive Home in Good Shape

MORGANTOWN, Oct. 28.—West Virginia University's grid squad arrived back in town this morning after a successful invasion of the Southwest where the Mountaineers met and defeated the Oklahoma Aggies, 9-6, on Saturday. Despite the tough game with a much heavier opponent, and the subsequent 1,250 mile bus and train ride back home, the Mountaineers were in better physical trim when they arrived here than they have been at any other time since the season opened.

Nothing except a light workout will be in vogue this afternoon, but it is likely that tomorrow evening will be marked by considerable rough work, with the Mountaineers not scheduled to take the gridiron in combat until Tuesday November 5, with Fordham, at the Polo grounds in New York.

Army and Navy Chiefs Meet This Week

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent of the West Point Military Academy, and Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, of the Annapolis Naval Academy, will meet here this week to discuss their long standing football differences.

Secretary Good reiterated today, however, that suggestions that the two academies would resume their football relations, suspended since 1927, in a post-season game this year were absolutely unfounded.

As far as West Point is concerned, he said, such a game is out of the question and it would be foolish to attempt to arrange it.

ing the team. This is especially true of the line, where Yerina and Fletcher are the only reserves of varsity caliber. The ends are better.

JUST how many persons were in the crowd that filled the Stadium to overflowing for the first time in its history depends upon the question as to how many gained admittance without buying tickets. There were quite a number of these, according to Clarence Overend, Carnegie's graduate manager. They managed it by various methods.

The Plaid business chief says that the ticket count shows the attendance to have been about 63,000. The Stadium seats 62,000, so that there was a ticket overflow of 1,000, standing or occupying the temporary seats. The crowd behind the ropes back of the south goal, or the majority, swarmed there from the $1.50 seats and were not "extras," according to Overend.

Clarence Overend

THAT there were many more than 63,000 present there is no question, the total probably approximating 66,000. Pitt, meeting Ohio State, after last Saturday's letdown game, in which it defeated Allegheny College, 40 to 0, at Erie, probably will fill the Stadium again next Saturday. Pittsburgh's greatest football days surely are here in earnest.

O. S. U. KEYED FOR PANTHER BATTLE

By LESTER J. BIEDERMAN, Special Correspondent.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 28.—Ohio State football coaches, players and fans alike are firm in their belief that the tie game with Indiana here Saturday was the best possible thing that could have happened to the undefeated Buckeyes.

The Ohioans were lucky to come out of the scrap with the Hoosiers on an even footing, since Indiana gathered eight first downs to only three for the Buckeyes. This scare will serve to take all traces of overconfidence out of the players to prime them for Saturday's tilt at Pittsburgh.

Coach Sam Willaman characterized the play of the Buckeyes in the Indiana affair as a natural "letdown" reaction after being keyed to such high pitches for the Iowa and Michigan games, which were won by Ohio.

The job this week before the coaches will be to bring back that fighting spirit once again and to make this Pitt game become the center of thought and not dwell wholly upon the two remaining Big Ten clashes with Northwestern and Illinois.

Before the season started, Michigan, Pittsburgh and Illinois were made the objectives for the Ohio team, and that policy will be in action Saturday with the second aim of the Bucks in mind.

Joe Ujhelyi, star guard, was the only Ohio State player who did not fare well in the Indiana game. Ujhelyi was taken out in the first half, and did not see action again, but Trainer Tucker Smith says he will be in shape for the Panthers.

Dick Larkins, stellar East Liverpool tackle, was not in the Hoosier battle, Coach Willaman saving him for Saturday and allowing Larkins' arm an additional week of rest.

LESSONS IN FOOTBALL

Answered by

MILTON OLANDER,

Assistant Football Coach, University of Illinois.

The team that hopes to be consistently successful against high-grade, determined opposition must develop all-round offensive strength. It must be able to launch an effective attack at any and all apparent weaknesses in the structure or play of the defense. Obviously this task becomes easier if through previous observation the offensive can be especially drilled to attack known defects in the opponents' defensive play.

The type of offensive attack that should be favored, assuming that no known glaring weaknesses in the defense are to be apparent, will depend largely upon the abilities of the personnel and should be adapted so as to fully realize the advantages of these outstanding abilities. In a brief article it is only possible to list the various divisions of offensive attack that should be developed, namely (1) smashes—quick, delayed; (2) inside and outside tackle drives—angle runs, slants; (3) end runs—wide sweeps, cutbacks, reverses; (4) punt—regular, quick; (5) forward passes—long, short, from direct or indirect passes from center; (6) goal kicks—place, drop; (7) trick plays—deceptive plays combining above methods.

Four Are Unbeaten, Untied in East

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—At the head of the Eastern football list today stand just four undefeated and untied Eastern elevens, survivors at the half-way post of the gridiron dreby. Dartmouth, Pittsburgh and a newcomer to the heights this season, little Western Maryland, top the column, each with a perfect record of five victories, and the most able Cornell eleven since the days of Pfann and Kam is only a stride behind with four victories and no defeats.

HUDKINS ENDS TRAINING FOR WALKER GO

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—The dreams of a sandy thatched newsie will be the driving force behind the rugged fists and the fighting heart of Ace Hudkins tomorrow when he meets Mickey Walker at Wrigley Field in his second 10 round bout for the middleweight title of the world.

Between that newsboy of the Lincoln (Neb.) streets eight years ago and the culmination of his dreams, are the out-thrust rocky fists of the Rumson (N. J.) scrapper which, in their turn, have battered through to the welterweight and middleweight championships. Moreover, they have carried the Toy Bulldog within striking distance of the light-heavyweight crown.

LESS INEXPERIENCED

Less experienced is Hudkins, who made his entry in the middleweight division little more than a year ago with his first chance at Walker's crown in Chicago. Defeat, says the Nebraska Wildcat, will mark his exit, not only from the middleweight ranks, but from the boxing game.

Prior to the Chicago fight, Hudkins had hammered long and loud at the doors of the light, and welterweight champions. But his calls went unheeded.

The challenger has no intentions of shoving himself out of the fistic picture by defeat, despite his avowed intention of laying the gloves on the shelf if Walker wins. Performing before several hundred admirers at Bastanchury Ranch, Ace sent a final defi to the champion by wading into his sparring partners without reserve. It was like giving vent to pent up feelings. But there was an insufficient number of opponents to allow the Wildcat adequately to express himself.

On the other hand, in his final workout at Soper's Ranch, Walker showed no signs of relinquishing the crown. The title-holder pounded opponents for four fast rounds, tipped the scales at 162 pounds, and said he was through work until the fight. No anticipated no difficulty in making the 160-pound limit tomorrow afternoon.

QUITS CAMP

Hudkins quit camp immediately after his torrid exhibition today. He will take a light workout at a gymnasium before he goes before the State Athletic Commission for an unofficial weighing in.

Walker will come to Los Angeles and also will appear before the commission for unofficial weight taking. Following this, the commission will decide, with Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, and the Hudkins brothers, Clyde and Art, the questions still unsettled regarding the fight.

Wildwood Caddies Honored at Banquet

The caddies of the Wildwood Country Club were the guests at a banquet given them in the dining room by the club members. John Lindsay, caddie master, arranged the affair. Several caddies received rewards for their season's work.

Caddie John Bursich was acclaimed the most popular ball watcher of the crowd and received $10 in gold as first prize. Richard Holliday was awarded second prize of five dollars in gold.

The best caddie of them all was Joe Brinski, at least the records show that, and he received a set of golf clubs worth $40. Frank Trebon copped second honors which carried two clubs.

Missouri, Oklahoma Lead in Big Six

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Missouri has a new partner to share its lead of the Big Six football race today.

Oklahoma, opening its Conference season Saturday with the Kansas Aggies, spoiled the Aggies' perfect percentage by a 14-to-13 victory and got a toe hold on the top rung on which Missouri remained perched as a result of its 7-to-7 tie with Nebraska, 1928 champions.

Kansas leaped to the fore as a possible dark horse contender by its crushing 33-to-0 victory over Iowa State, a victory which demonstrated the Jayhawkers have a powerful offensive if they can make it function.

BETTER TEAM WON, WARNER TELLS JONES

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Echoes of a great mid-season clash boomed back over the Far West today to notify football's faithful that one more powerful team had been eliminated from a Pacific Coast Conference championship race as thrill-packed as any in years.

While supporters of Southern California's Trojans yesterday made the welkin ring in their exuberance, Stanford followers paused to reflect over the nerve tingling incident that sent the Cardinals down to 7-0 defeat Saturday.

Approximately 89,000 persons, forming the largest football crowd in the nation, packed Stanford Stadium for the traditional struggle that this season saw the strongest eleven ever assembled under the colors of Southern California demonstrate its superiority over a Cardinal team, only a little less formidable.

In all that huge throng, not one left the bowl but was convinced that the Trojans had earned their victory. Glenn Warner, Stanford coach, congratulated Coach Howard Jones, of U. S. C., with the words, "the better team won."

The touchdown that settled the issue between the team heralded as the "Best in the West" followed an 80-yard drive down the field.

STOCK MARKET BEGINS WEEK LOWER

Further Cleaning Out of Impaired Accounts Cause Of Drop in Stock Prices

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Stock prices opened lower today in response to the further cleaning out of speculative accounts impaired in last week's crash in prices.

Westinghouse Electric opened with a block of 5,000 shares at 174¼, off 5; International Telephone with a block of 6,000 shares at 100, off 3, and Montgomery-Ward with a block of 7,000 shares at 70½, off 2. General Electric dropped 7½ points, Gamewell Corporation 5⅞, American Power & Light 2¾ and Union Carbide 2. Initial declines of a point or more were registered by U. S. Steel common, Erie common, North American and several others.

Early selling was believed to represent the final elimination of withdrawal of speculative accounts weakened in last week's smash, and the liquidation of stock bought for supporting purposes. Trading was fairly heavy in volume, the ticker falling 13 minutes behind the market at the end of the first half hour.

Allied Chemical dropped 6 points, Western Union 5½, Underwood Elliott Fisher 5, American Can 3½ and American Telephone 3. General Electric extended its loss to 14½ points. Early declines of 2 points or more were registered by Radio, Eastman Kodak, Simmons, Sparks Withington and Beatrice Creamery. Hershey Chocolate common ran up 3½ points and the preferred 1 in response to the announcement of merger plans. Auburn Auto jumped 5 points and Safeway Stores, Republic Steel, Goodyear Rubber and Cerro de Pasco sold 1 to 2 points higher.

U. S. Steel common declined 1¼ points to 200, but selling was rather cautious in character, pending the announcement of third quarter earnings at the directors' meeting tomorrow.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Wheat went up with a rush today, as much as 4¼ cents a bushels, as soon as trading began. Buying was on a big scale, chiefly owing to official announcement that the United States government would loan $100,000,000 to the Farmers' National Grain Market Corporation to enable farmers to hold their wheat. Heavy profit taking sales, however, on the initial bulge in prices caused sharp setbacks from the top level. Opening at 2⅞@4¼c gain, wheat later steadied at about 2 cents above Saturday's finish. Corn and oats were also stronger, with corn starting ⅞@2⅛c up. Provisions had a downward slant.

By far the greatest impetus today to higher prices for wheat came about through a broad purchasing movement which resulted from notice that $100,000,000 was forthcoming immediately to meet the needs of farmer's co-operative organizations. Adding to the market effect of this notice was word that crop estimates in Argentina were reduced and that in Cordoba and Santa Fe provinces the yields of wheat, flax, barley and oats have been cut to 35 per cent of last season's output, instead of recent forecasts of 60 per cent according to United States Department of Agriculture advices, the Argentine wheat harvest was likely to be at least 100,000,000 bushels short of last year's production.

A notable decrease shown today in the amount of wheat on ocean passage tended also to give incentive to wheat buyers. The aggregate of wheat afloat was 41,528,000 bushels, against 42,520,000 bushels a week ago, and 43,040,000 bushels at this time last year. Pronounced weakness of the stock market at times today was again a handicap to friends of higher prices for grain.

Fisher's Wholesale Index is Lower

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Prof. Irving Fisher's wholesale commodity price index in the week ended October 25 stood at 94.1 against 94.6 in the preceding week.

Bethlehem Rated As Cheap Stock

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Bethlehem Steel, which reported a balance of $11.23 a common share for the first nine months this year on 2,400,000 common shares outstanding at the end of the third quarter, is considered cheap. At Thursday's low of 92½, Bethlehem was selling around eight times its 9-months earnings and offered a yield of 6½ per cent on its present $6 dividend.

On a basis of earnings, Bethlehem's sponsors feel the market is attractively priced, and are notably enthusiastic regarding its long-pull possibilities.

Coffee Markets Under Pressure

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Unsettled conditions in the Brazilian coffee situation, which caused the suspension of trading in the Rio Janeiro market and led to broad declines at Santos, were reflected by a drop of one cent to more than a cent and a half per pound at the opening of the futures market here today.

Heavy selling by European and Brazilian interests, as well as liquidation of local "long" accounts, was reported.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Cotton opened steady at an advance of 2 points to a decline of 1 point today and sold about 5 to 8 points net higher during the early trading on buying influenced by steady Liverpool cables and reports of rains in the central belt.

December contracts sold up to 18.29c and March to 18.68c, and while trading was quiet, prices held very steady at the end of the first half hour. Some nervousness was reported over the early decline in the stock market, but offerings remained relatively light, and there was some trade demand as well as covering in cotton.

Liverpool cables said that moderate hedge selling had been absorbed by Bombay buying and trade calling in the market there.

The early advance extended to 18.30c for December and 18.70c for March, or about 5 to 10 points above Saturday's closing quotations on the active months. Reports of renewed weakness in the stock market checked the buying, however, and prices later eased under a little southern selling and liquidation. December eased off to 18.15c and March to 18.55c, or about 15 points from the best, with the midday market quiet and barely steady at net declines of approximately 3 to 6 points.

ARKANSAS GAS SLUMPS OFF SHARPLY

Arkansas Gas broke wide open on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today following the cleaning-out in Cities Service on the New York Curb.

Arkansas, one of the subsidiary companies of the Cities Service group (Doherty interests) was taken over by the latter some time ago and in response to the change in control had enjoyed a steady advance for several months. Top price was $26 a share, recorded last month on the exchange here. In the recent selling it had sagged back to around 16, at which figure it closed last Saturday. This morning the first sale was at a decline of a point, but subsequent dumping of the stock forced it back to a level below $9 by early afternoon. Support was lacking both in this issue and Cities Service.

Lone Star Gas also felt the weight of selling from weak accounts, which had been able to weather last week's storm. Western Public Service maintained a relatively steady tone, considering the weakness in other quarters.

Witherow Steel was the hardest hit of the industrials, sinking 10 points to a new low for current trading. Losses of from 2 to 5 points were noted in other directions, but in some few cases there was dogged resistance to the selling.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Raw sugar was quiet today with no sales, and prices unchanged at 3.93 for spots, duty paid.

Raw futures opened unchanged to 2 points lower with near months relatively easy under liquidation and selling by houses with European connections, promoted by the disappointing showing of the London market. Houses with trade connections bought on the decline and prices rallied a little in the late forenoon, although the volume of business was light and there appeared to be a disposition among operators to limit fresh commitments and await developments. Prices at midday were 2 points lower to 1 point net higher.

Refined was unsettled with demand light and buyers inclined to hold off and await announcement by refiners, owing to the decline in the outside markets at the close of week. Local refiners as yet have made no announcement and their list price was unchanged at 5.50c for fine granulated.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Forbes

One of Big Six Reveals Reason for Bank Pool

—By B. C. FORBES—

AFTER such a shock, the stock market is unlikely to regain vigor for some time.

THE most powerful financial doctors in the land are vigilantly watching the patient's pulse, ready to supply all nourishment considered necessary. The intention is not to stimulate revival of another speculative craze—far from it. The financial doctors in charge will feel well satisfied if they can prevent a recurrence of demoralization. They feel confident, with the abundant means at their disposal, that they are equipped to meet any fresh emergency.

IT will interest you to know, from inside sources, exactly what caused the big six of the banking world to band together to stem the stock market crash which was so suddenly precipitated. The big six were Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., Charles E. Mitchell, George F. Baker, Jr., Albert H. Wiggin, William C. Potter and Seward Prosser, heads of the most influential banks in New York. This statement I have obtained from one of them:

"We were actuated by three main considerations. First, prices were collapsing so rapidly that it was a sheer impossibility for stock exchange houses to get in additional margins in time. Had the debacle been allowed to go much further, it was inevitable that stock exchange houses would get into trouble.

"Second, we saw danger that many of those, not banks, who have loaned nearly $4,000,000,000 on Wall street might be stampeded into withdrawing their money, a step which would have brought on pandemonium until the New York banks—who have no control over these outside loans—could have stepped in to the breach.

"Third, had the securities market been allowed to become absolutely prostrated, the whole business of the country naturally would have suffered. This it was desirable to avoid no matter how unusual might be the action necessary to avoid it."

THIS member of the big six later explained:

"Secretary Mellon has expressed his satisfaction over what we have done. We were, of course, in touch with him. The administration could not have welcomed anything calculated to hurt national prosperity."

He added:

"When our purpose became known, several hundreds of millions of dollars were promptly offered to us to be used in any way, according to our discretion. The banks have shown a wonderful spirit of co-operation and of helpfulness. They deserve a word of recognition."

HOW extremely serious the falling stocks had become before oxygen was hurriedly applied by the bix six can be realized from the following tables, showing the terrible extent of the drop from the high prices of the year to the depths reached on Thursday:

TRADE IGNORES FURORE IN MARKET

Business and Industry Move Forward Unaffected By Disturbance in Stocks

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Business and industry moved forward with an assurance in extraordinary contrast to the semi-panic conditions prevailing in the security markets.

The same hesitancy in some lines that has prevailed during recent weeks was evident, but assurances of the fundamental stability of conditions were put forth by a long list of leading bankers and business executives, and were climaxed by a statement by President Hoover.

The building industry, which has suffered considerably from high money rates and unsettled credit conditions generally, stands to profit markedly by the wholesale liquidation of stocks and consequent release of credit. Building operations have fallen about 10 per cent, on the average, below the levels of 1928. F. W. Dodge Corporation stated that if the reversal of money market conditions continues, building contracts should show a genuine improvement after the first of the new year, pointing out that the oversupply of residential buildings has been considerably corrected.

STEEL SCARE

The moderate decline in steel mills operations has contributed considerably to the nervousness which preceded the stampede of stock liquidation. This basic industries foremost executives, attending the semi-annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute, painted a glowing picture of satisfactory earnings and high operations. James A. Farrell, president of United States Steel Corporation, said that when the industry can run at 75 to 80 per cent of capacity at this time of year, it is in a thoroughly healthy condition. Several executives reported a picking up of business, and the opinion prevailed that the current recession has struck bottom.

The wheat markets were thrown into confusion by the break in securities, but this was regarded as a temporary and technical situation. In his statement on business conditions, which stressed that production and distribution are on a sound and prosperous basis, President Hoover pointed out that despite the temporary drop in grain prices the world harvest is 500,000,000 bushels less than last year, which should result in very little carry over.

While the huge losses on the stock market caused concern in some quarters lest public purchasing power be seriously impaired, the head of the largest mail order house said that he looked for no curtailment and that his organization was preparing for record holiday trade. The motor industry continued to lag, and General Motors reported a rather unsatisfactory earnings statement for the third quarter, as have other manufacturers, but work upon new models went forward with confidence in resumption of large buying after the first of the year.

CAR LOADINGS

Freight car loadings, as reported for the week ended October 12, for the second successive week failed to come up to the excellent record of some seven months' duration. Total loadings were substantially below the like week of a year ago, and a little below the previous week. Again, the reduced automotive ships, and the congestion of grain at terminals were decisive factors. Railways earnings statements for September revealed some irregularity, but were generally favorable.

Oil production took another substantial upturn, as restrictions were lifted in Oklahoma. Sharp price cutting appeared in California, and this was regarded as a measure to force independent operators into complying with the conservation program. The program to control production was pushed forward arduously, but leaders remained confident of success, and pointed to improved earnings as evidence that the industry is already on a fairly satisfactory basis.

COTTON STIMULATED

The cotton markets were stimulated by announcement of the Federal Farm Board that cotton was selling unjustifiably low and that it would provide funds to stabilize the market.

Warm or rainy weather during a large part of the week somewhat curtailed retail trade, but it was quick to pick up when favorable weather appeared. The average for the week, however, was a little below the like week of last year.

Credit conditions eased abruptly with the collapse of stocks and bankers acceptance buying rates in New York were lower to 5 per cent. There were also considerable talk of a lowering of the New York Federal Reserve Bank's 6 per cent rediscount rate, although this talk was generally regarded as premature.

Screw and Bolt Will Have Record Year

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE first year of operation of the Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Corporation following the consolidation with Colona Manufacturing Company and the Graham Bolt and Nut Company will show a sharp upturn in earnings. Net profits in the first nine months of this year were greater than the combined profits of the three organizations in the full year of 1928.

The company has been steadily accumulating cash during the present year and its earnings have been substantially in excess of dividends. The stock is paying 35 cents quarterly while in the three months ended September 30 net profit was $959,744 or 64 cents a share on the 1,500,000 shares of no-par stock.

Sales Large

A CONTINUED high rate of sales activity indicates that the company will make another good showing in the final quarter of this year. It seems likely that the annual dividend rate of $1.40 will be earned by a margin of nearly $1 in the present year.

In the first nine months net profit was $2,628,221 or $1.75 a share. This compared with combined earnings of the three companies of $2,270,134 or $1.51 a share on the present capitalization in the full year of 1928. Increased volume as well as the economies resulting from the merger have been instrumental in expanding earnings. It is quite likely that further economies will be shown next year as the operations of the companies are more closely co-ordinated.

Dick's Propeller

THERE has been much discussion of the Dick aeronautical propeller which the company is now getting into production. No profits have been derived from the new product this year, but if the claims made for it are borne out in actual practice earnings will be materially increased.

The propeller is hollow. It is made of pressed steel plates welded together at the edges. Increased strength is claimed for it. In addition to thi sthere is the advantage of light weight and the fact that a low-cost material can be used. It is expected that output will be on a commercial basis early in 1930.

Cash Surplus

THE large excess of profits over dividend requirements has resulted in the accumulation of cash reserves far in excess of the amount necessary for the conduct of the company's business. On September 30 cash amounted to $2,894,886. In addition to this, $1,500,000 was loaned on call, making a liquid fund of $4,394,886.

Beyond this the company has marketable securities carried at $2,252,145. Total current assets amounted to $10,699,576. These were seven times current liabilities of $1,507,080. Since the end of 1928 cash and call loans have been increased $1,670,989.

Funded Debt

AGAINST physical properties carried at $9,015,328, the funded debt amounts to only $3,993,000. Cash and call loans were $401,886 in excess of funded debt.

Earned surplus amounted to $2,914,463 on September 30 and paid-in surplus was $9,817,891. Total assets were $19,901,426.

The company has the benefit of a widely diversified list of consumers for its original products. The consolidation secured further diversification. The Colona Manufacturing Company makes thread protectors which are used by makers of pipe to prevent damage in shipment. The pipe mills have been busy recently so that this subsidiary has enjoyed a good volume of business.

SLUMP TO AID U. S.—SLOAN

LONDON, Oct. 28.—"The whole United States has been speculating and that has taken people's minds off the most important factor in bringing prosperity to a country—work."

These were the words of Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, in an interview with Universal Service today just before he boarded a boat train for Southampton, where he sailed for New York aboard the Mauretania.

SLOAN OPTIMISTIC

Sloan was highly optimistic over American business prospects, but asserted that the speculative fever had gained such a grip on the American public during the last few years that the collapse of market values was inevitable sooner or later.

"There can be no doubt that the market was too high in several things and it was inevitable that a reaction would come," he said. "I'll go so far as to express the opinion that it is a good thing the slump has come, for now everybody will get down to work instead of cherishing the idea that it is possible to get rich overnight by speculation.

SLUMP TOO DRASTIC

"I think the slump was quite in order, in fact healthy; for, since it had to come sooner or later, it is better that it is over. I also think, however, that it has been a little drastic, but when the pendulum once begins swinging it usually goes too far either in one direction or the other.

"If a man can make more money speculating than working, then the obvious tendency is to go on speculating. That is what has been happening. So many fortunes have been made buying and selling stocks during the last two years that many persons' minds have been occupied wholly with their speculative efforts. Now they will get down to work."

Seek to Reduce Santa Fe Oil Output

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—After devoting considerable time to conferences in an effort to reach an agreement with major operators on the proposed curtailment program at Santa Fe Springs, the committee handling the negotiations on behalf of the independents is seeking signatures to a plan to cut production in that field to 150,000 barrels a day for a period of 90 days with the understanding that if this could be accomplished, prices of crude would be advanced very shortly.

COAL USAGE TO SET RECORD

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Returning from Europe aboard the S. S. Berengaria, Sanders Wertheim, president of Burns Brothers, stated that from all indications coal consumption this year should reach record levels. Burns Brothers, he said, was doing a much better business this fall than it was a year ago, with an increased volume of winter sales in prospect and the outlook for 1929 was very satisfactory.

Questioned as to the effect of the increased use of oil for home heating, Mr. Wertheim said: "Of course the use of oil as a heating fuel is becoming more and more popular, but it has not as yet affected the trend of our business, and I do not feel that it will for some time to come. However, we are also retailers of fuel oil and intend to increase our distributing facilities to meet any change that the future may bring."

The report of Burns Brothers and subsidiaries for the year ended December 31, 1928, showed net profit o. $1,186,241 after charges and federal taxes, equivalent after allowing for dividend requirements on 7 per cent preferred stock to $9.11 a share earned on 100,000 no-par shares of class A common stock and $1.11 a share on 100,000 shares of no-par class B common stock.

MACH. EXPORTS ABOVE 1928

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—United States shipments of industrial machinery in August fell 8 per cent under shipments for July but were still 19 per cent above August, 1928, according to Department of Commerce. Foreign sales for the first eight months this year totaled $173,000,000.

Exports of power generating, metal working, textile, sewing and shoe machinery fell off in August, compared with a year ago, but gains made earlier in the year for these classes placed the total for eight months of 1929 well above the 1928 period. Construction and conveying machinery, mining, oil well and pumping machinery made gains.

Coal Production Higher for Week

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Coal production in the latest week reported by the mines bureau was slightly less than the total of the preceding period but greater than that in the same week last year. Figures for the week and comparable periods follow: Week ending October 19, 11,158,000 tons; preceding week, 11,574,000 tons; same week last year, 10,832,000 tons.

Treasury Officials Believe Stock Market Collapse Will Be Aid to Business

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The most sagacious financier on the federal government's payroll, in chatting with me concerning the meaning of last week's speculative debacle, said:

"People risk what they have and need for what they don't have and don't need."

Of course, ever since Secretary Mellon issued his famous "buy bonds" advice last winter, it was apparent that he believed that the advance in stock prices had run beyond values. Naturally, the Treasury Department, as such, has no opinion about the stock market, but well informed students in the department were surprised only by the fact that the drastic correction was so long postponed. As they see it, the mere impetus of the advance, which originally was predicted on sound economic grounds, carried the upward surge beyond reasonable limits until at length the buying power of the optimistic public had been expended. Then when the more alert began to take profits they detected a weakening of buying power.

STIMULATES BUSINESS

Treasury officials lean to the view that the liquidation in the stock market will have salutary effect in easing credit and ultimately in stimulating legitimate business enterprise. Economists here express the opinion that the worst is over in the speculative collapse, although they see the possibility of short term relapses before the patient can be safely adjudged permanently cured from the effect of the prolonged debauch during the financial joy ride.

Events in Wall Street last week, which created buying opportunities in selected standard stocks, especially in the railroad, equipment and petroleum groups, are bullish for the bond market. Sound bonds not only offer safety of principal and a high income return, but also give promise of appreciation over the course of the next six months.

NO LAW FOR SUCKERS

Although some of the political scientists on Capitol Hill are still moved by the delusion that suckers can be legislated out of existence, the financial machinery of the country has given a demonstration of its capacity for self correction. It is eternally to the credit of the board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange that on Black Thursday of last week they turned a deaf ear to the hysterical pleas before midday to close the exchange. To have run away on a day of intense financial storm would have been unworthy. It would have been untrue to the tradition that the Stock Exchange is an open market place where buyers and sellers may meet to transact their business. The Stock Exchange is supposed to be neutral in the perennial struggle waged between bulls and bears.

ONE FAILURE

Only once did the stock exchange fail to render the economic service for which it is intended. After the war broke loose in Europe in 1914, the stock exchange closed up for a time because the management felt that the flood of liquidation was beyond the absorptive power of the country. At that crisis, America was being transformed from a debtor to a creditor nation. By closing, the exchange deprived Americans of the opportunity of rebuying at bargain levels their railroad and premier industrial shares back, which had been owned by absentee proprietors in Great Britain and in Continental Europe.

The closing of the exchange when the market is under fire is analogous to smashing the thermometer on a sweltering day.

Not only are the governors of the stock exchange to be praised for their courage in the face of collective emotional excitement on Thursday, but the floor brokers, who handled double capacity business in that session, to be congratulated for their rare skill and adaptability. On the whole, the crisis demonstrated the marked extent to which the management of brokerage enterprises have improved in recent years. The stock exchange's questionnaire methods for keeping tabs on the inner finances of brokers and the insistence by the stock exchange that brokers have adequate capital have proven their usefulness during the past week.

TRADE SOUND

In spite of lulls in certain directions, the business situation continues fundamentally sound. Instead of a credit shortage, which usually has preceded commercial depressions in the past, there is a superabundance of potential credit supply. Moreover, business is free from the curse of commodity inflation, which caused the industrial setback in 1920-21. The prospects for long term business stability continue good.

Although in terms of days and weeks the stock market is likely to show symptoms of the broken buying power of the indiscriminate speculators, it would be absurd to think that the episodes of last week have permanently altered human nature in finance.

It seems beyond question that in the more distant future a recurrence of popular delusions will once more cause the uprush of stock prices to fantastic levels.

Ford Motor Corp. Orders Engines

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Ford Motor Corporation has ordered one 600-horsepower and one 300-horsepower oil-electric locomotive from the Ingersoll-Rand Company for the Rouge River plant. These locomotives will be furnished with General Electric equipment and will be built at their Erie works.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Bonds were fairly strong in the early trading today, and considerable activity appeared throughout the list of domestic corporation issues, especially the rails. Heavy liquidation of stocks was accompanied by some drastic declines in convertibles.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

NEW BANK WILL OPEN THURS.

The new Bank of America Trust Company, Chamber of Commerce building, will open for busines next Thursday at 9 a. m.

The 950 stockholders of the bank will pre-inspect the offices Wednesday from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. and on Tuesday eminent business men of Pittsburgh will examine the quarters. The public has been invited to see the bank Wednesday.

Complete banking service, including a trust department, travel bureau, foreign department and realty department, will be at the service of the institution's Italian and American patrons. According to W. P. Ortale, president, and H. B. Scott, vice president, the company will keep a department open in the evenings until 9 o'clock.

The Bank of America Trust Company had its beginning in the banking house of Ortale and Company, 901 Wylie avenue. W. P. Ortale, organizer of the new company, started his business in 1923, catering entirely to Italians. The business grew to such large proportions that he conceived the idea of forming a banking house for both Americans and Italians. The Bank of America Trust Company is the result.

It is the object of the officers to consolidate Pittsburgh's Italian banks into the new company and by so doing render service to both Italians and Americans.

The interior of the large room is done in the latest modernistic style with a brilliant hued ceiling. In furnishing it is similar to the Monongahela Bank, according to Casimir J. Pellegrini, architect.

The bank has a capitalization of $350,000 with $105,000 in surplus and reserve.

In Memoriam 1-B

In loving memory of our dear daughter, Levina Freda Martin, who died two years ago today, October 28, 1927.
Two years have passed since that sad day,
The one we loved was called away.
God took her home; it was his will
But in our hearts she liveth still.
Sadly missed by her father, mother and brother.

The Merry Chorines

AMONG those American institutions that have been grossly misrepresented to the Public is the Chorus Girl, that invariably enticing young lady who serves—and occasionally stands and waits—in the ensembles of the musical comedies. Perhaps no other person has contributed so gracefully as she to the fascination of the theatrical profession and to the legend of that variously known New York street, called Broadway.

Yet she has been weighed in the balance, by the narrow-minded, and found wanton, as someone has said before in a Vanity Fair. Newspaper editors of less conservative journals contend that she is "front page news interest" and emblazon her misfortune and misdeeds where all may read as they run, while, on the other hand, the prima donna or the misleading lady of the same troupe, who may be involved in as sensational a crisis, will find the account of her misadventures buried elsewhere in the chronicles.

Why? Perhaps because the chorus girl has become one of America's most glamorous figures. There is a certain aura about her. She definitely is not as scarleg as she is painted. And because she is usually a quite pretty young person, literate, industrious, clever, calculating and capricious, she has been loved and wooed by poets, heroes and statesmen. She has married into the nobility, and the files of Mr. Ziegfeld's "Follies" will reveal press notices of chorus and show girls who have wedded Supreme Court judges, millionaires, dukes, bank presidents, Broadway reporters and so on. But it is not sentiment that inspires this de-glamoring defense of the chorus girl.

CAREER OR MARRIAGE

CHORUS girls supposedly—and I believe this is true—go into the chorus for two reasons: The first, that they like the stage and want to progress there; the second, that they believe it is an unexcelled marriage arena. This fact has not been accorded much notice in the papers, but it is undoubtedly true, because there must be hundreds of girls who read the stories about wealthy marriages and size up the stage for the "happy ending" route. Many of these girls come from extremely poor families and obscure homes. They begin on the stage (especially the stages controlled by the better class producers), and then elevate themselves.

Concrete examples include the marriages of Peggy Fears, an erstwhile member of the merry-merry, who rose to the heights of a Ziegfeld prima donna and wedded a millionaire; Helen Henderson, another chorus girl, succumbed to a jazz band musician, divorced him and later married a rich man whom she eventually "aired;" Anastasia Reilly, who also wedded a "money" man, and then retired; Lucila Mendez, who served in the background of musical comedies, married Ralph Ince, a prominent cinema director, and Louise Brooks, who did the same, even if hers didn't "take." Other famous chorus ladies who were wedded to "big money" at one time include Peggy Hopkins Joyce, Billie Burke, Jessica Brown, Evelyn Nesbit and several other nationally known beauties.

UP FROM CHORUS

JOAN CRAWFORD started in the ensemble and is now enticing crowds to witness her films, as are Billie Dove and Rubye De Remer. Zelma O'Neal, a musical comedienne, started in the chorus; Helen Morgan, now the star of "Sweet Adeline," once "held up the back drop" in "Sally;" and Barbara Stanwyck, the heroine of "Burlesque," also "warbled and hoofed" in the choruses of shows and cabarets.

Not a great many of them, of course, promote successful marriages. Often they wed the "first man they love;" sometimes an obscure home town sweetheart. Many of them marry clerks, actors and chorus boys and some of them drift into second rate productions and go downhill.

The extraordinary thing about the American chorus girl is her elasticity. She is an out-and-out individualist, working as hard as she can work for what she wants. She can adapt herself with the facility of a comedienne to any circumstances without batting an eyelash. She may discover that the men with her are underworld characters, carrying guns and blackjacks, but she never lets on.

POISE BIG ASSET

SHE meets rich men, producers, newspapermen, novelists and celebrities, all with a poise and assurance that is modern in a superlative sense of the word. I do not believe that any other branch of society contains women whose ingenuity, skill and self-possession can rival hers. And the remarkable thing is that she frequently has not had the breeding that other women, in similar situations, can fall back upon. Together with her versatile ingenuity is her baffling stupidity. If an outsider steps in and watches her at rehearsal, her chief concern is apparently her lips and her face, for she is continually fingering her vanity case and daubing her features.

The modern chorus girl is more of an asset to the modern producers than the girls were of a decade ago. In the Weber and Fields "Florodora Sextette," mauve decade days, the girls merely served as another "prop." They made pretty formations or carried parasols or spears, and otherwise "dressed up" the stage. Today, however, the chorus girl is a specialist. She sings, dances in the routine numbers, and must be able to step out of the line and dash off a hair-raising specialty, be it high kicks, turn-overs, cartwheels, or a buck-and-wing dance or acrobatic stepping. Often she must "clown" with the comedian or serve as his foil.

SHE HAS BRAINS, TOO

OF course, their youth is the great requisite, but no matter what people say about their stupidity, a chorus girl can't be very stupid nowadays and still do all the things we see her doing in the shows. A chorus girl really has more brains than she is given credit for having. Her struggle for recognition is rewarded only after tediously long rehearsals (sometimes for five weeks without pay). She pays her own way for tuition at the various dancing schools and limbering up places, and certainly has a more arduous regime than had her 1899 sisters, who were just a piece of stage scenery. In the "Gingham Girl" and "Americana," for instance, these musical shows reduced their choruses from 50 and 60 to an ensemble of eight or ten, each one of whom had to do a distinctive thing in the show—acrobatics, all sorts of splits, ballads, jazzy songs and even playing on instruments.

Without getting into the involved question of morality, which is perhaps a secondary matter so far as the worldy achievements of individual women are concerned, whether it be Cleopatra or a charwoman—the chorus girl represents the concentrated and intensified ambition that makes this, our own country, so noteworthy.

Bayard Veiller's play, "The Trial of Mary Dugan," best sums up the attitude of the show lady. In that melodrama, a chorus girl is accused of the murder of a married man. A chorus girl witness for the defense is being grilled. The prosecutor thunders: "Do you mean to tell me she lived with him because he gave her a Rolls-Royce?"

"Well," is the naive reply, "do you expect a girl to go to hell in a wheelbarrow?"

In short, the terpsichorine is a remarkable creature. She can fill almost any requirement, including, of course, a pair of sheer hose.

DAILY ANAGRAM PUZZLES

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

Why don't they go a step further and change the football rules after each game?

Possibly the rules committee, by very little effort, can complicate things so no one will know who wins.

UNPOPULAR SCIENCE

This earth on which we live, my child,
This world of strife and care,
Is floating in a vast expanse
Of atmosphere, or air.

This atmosphere's a mixture of
The things that people say—
Gastrology, tadology,
Enfolds this ball of clay.

So bosh and cant and gibberish,
Flap-doodle, if you please,
Permit this earth to loll around
On cushions—ill at ease.

Enactment of a law to prohibit sale of gasoline or Sunday operation of motor vehicles, except for undertakers and clergymen, is being planned as part of a nation-wide campaign to reduce automobile accidents.

This declaration was made today by Rev. Harold P. Malcolm, of New York City, who is en route East after a short vacation.

Malcolm, who is president of the American Sabbath Day Enforcement League, said:

"We are going to ask Congress at its next session to enact Sunday enforcement laws with teeth in them. If we have to take over the Government we will do it."

Politics Can Be Honest; Vote Machine an Aid

"A political organization should strive for ideals. There is no reason why politics should not be as honest as any other line of endeavor." So declared Councilman Daniel Winters speaking at an open meeting in behalf of adopting voting machines for the county by voters at the November election.

Of course, Councilman Winters is right on this matter. There isn't any reason why politics should not be honest. We must have politics and politicians—our form of government and the fact that two persons have two opinions about the conduct of affairs—requires it. There should be the greatest honor in politics and for those who adopt politics as a profession. We need to have men experienced in government, men fitted for government. That is politics and there is nothing dishonorable about it except as it is made dishonest by men who will not play politics straight.

And because there are such men we need the voting machine, the one factor in election that makes the ballot thief harmless. The record of the machine speaks for itself and cannot be altered by an election board. Even the voter is safeguarded from such a mistake as voting for two candidates for the same office, an inadvertance that is possible under the present system.

Voting machines are being demonstrated in various places now. Visit one and become a convert to an instrument to make elections—and politics—honest.

Today Is Navy Day, Time To Reflect on Defense

Today is Navy Day. Its purpose is to have the public made aware of the mission of our Navy and its relationship to our lives and affairs. To this end the Navy holds open house. All vessels in port and all land stations are open to visitors, giving them opportunity to observe at close hand the marine arm of our country's defensive equipment.

Although there are no naval vessels in Pittsburgh, Navy Day does not go unnoticed here. Since the public cannot see the Navy it will be told about it in an address by Capt. William McEntee, Construction Corps, U. S. N. Capt. McEntee, officer in charge of inspection of naval material, with headquarters in Munhall, will speak over the radio this evening.

The Pittsburgh district produces a great deal of material required for the Navy. We cannot see it in use in United States vessels, but we can pause long enough to reflect that the workers in our mills are defenders of the nation. And if we are really patriotically inclined, we can tune in and hear Capt. McEntee, both as a matter of interest and as a mark of respect to the Navy and the flag it flies.

Senator Bingham's Action Resented All Over Land

By introducing into the secret sessions of the Finance Committee as a nominal secretary, but actual adviser, the highly paid representative of a group of special interests seeking tariff favors, Connecticut's Senator Bingham has surprised and shocked his countrymen.

While the United States Senate is trying to make up its mind what to do about this discreditable episode, the impropriety of Senator Bingham's action has been unhesitatingly condemned north, east, south and west by the voice of the people speaking through their press.

From the Hartford Times, published in the capital city of his own commonwealth, comes the following rebuke:

"Apparently the Senator from Connecticut failed to realize the impropriety of dispensing the public funds for the suiting of his own personal convenience, or what it would look like to disinterested observers if, when he needed information about the tariff, he should hire the knowledge from someone representing special interests in the bill before his committee."

"Unsound and dangerous" is the comment of even so rock-ribbed a Republican newspaper as the New York Herald-Tribune, which admonishes the Senate in these words:

"When a Senator enters a committee session he is supposed to have heard all that the outside world can tell him. He should be entering the committee room to exercise the dictates of his conscience, and no special pleaders should be present. To ignore these distinctions and unwittingly break them down, as Senator Bingham did, is unsound."

And to the Journal of Commerce, published in the same city "the episode brings back all the charges and scandalous suggestions of past years in connection with the tariff, no matter whether there be abstract equity behind them or not, and entirely irrespective of the intentions of those concerned."

Voicing the South's resentment immediately after Senator Bingham's employment of a lobbyist was first disclosed by the Hearst newspapers, the Richmond Times-Dispatch declared:

"Were Senator Bingham repentant of the gross impropriety of his practice, now that the entire country knows of it through the work of a Washington newspaper, it would be easier to forget and forgive. Senator Bingham's attitude in the matter insults the intelligence of the American people. Does he expect them to believe with him that it was not improper to have an officer of the Manufacturers' Association play an important part in writing that portion of the tariff bill which related to textiles? Does he expect them to believe with him that the rule of fair play was not flagrantly violated when Eyanson sat in with the committee while consumers, who will pay the bill, were excluded from its deliberations? The Senator's moral sensibilities either are obtuse, or he thinks everyone but himself is a plain fool."

Eloquent of the anger of the Middle West is the Daily Oklahoman's declaration that "The Connecticut Senator has done a foolish and an indefensible thing."

"Bingham subordinated the interest of the United States, which he was sworn to serve, to the private interest of Connecticut manufacturers. He sacrificed the public interest to private greed."

If his fellow Senators ignore the impropriety of Senator Bingham's course, if they fail to take appropriate action in his case, they will not only defy that public sentiment which the newspapers of the nation have been quick to proclaim, but they will show a callousness toward the honor, the dignity, the independence, and the integrity of the Senate which the people themselves will quickly resent and will be no less quick to condemn.

Humpty-Dumpty

G. O. P. Dumpty built up a high wall,
Protests and warnings he heard not at all.
Now he is finding that jobs of this sort
Break down his scaffold of Public Support.

Wondering how he can build the wall down,
And its small comfort these words to recall
"The higher the climb, why, the harder the fall."—N.H.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

The Old Army Game

When an irresistible body meets an immovable force the result is time out.

"Bugs" Baer

This game is so corrugated and manly that you get hurt thinking about it.

Secretary of War Good and Secretary of Navy Adams met in Pittsburgh while playing golf and talked the game over.

The Secretaries were located in a bunker by a reporter with the instinct of a homing pigeon.

They refused to comment on the possibilities of an Army-Navy game for this season.

Secretary Good was exporting divots with giant swings of a mashie ladle. He said:

"I have nothing to say. But I hope Army wins."

Secretary Adams had just given his pill the usual salute of 21 deep dish spoons. He said:

"Mr. Good has me three bunkers up. This is no time to talk about sports."

With both Secretaries playing golf it looks as if this nation is on a war basis.

We would like to see them play that service game again.

It was the only football game in America in which you were not liable to be bitten by a raccoon coat.

We concede that it was a tough, brutal struggle. But the only safe way to enjoy slugging is by proxy.

The biggest thrills we ever got was when a thousand West Pointers arose in a well-buttoned body and sang, "Old Vassar."

We shall always remember those enfilading campaigns of Elmer Oliphant as he skirmished the maritime blockade and galloped 80 yards with 11 Middies hanging to his sturdy ears.

The two services seem to have the same difficulty that is decimating the gridiron, he says:

"A cornet."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

AL TAYLOR has bought a new car—a beauty. Of course he's driving it very carefully for the first 500 miles. You should see him easing it up the grades—coddling it over rough spots—watching, anxiously, lest it get too hot in the hard pulls.

Important money couldn't tempt Al to rush or worry that car just now. HE KNOWS TOO WELL THAT YOU CAN RUIN THE FINEST CAR EVER MADE BY BAD HANDLING WHEN IT'S GREEN. Al paid a lot of money for that car. He wants to get good service out of it so he isn't going to spoil everything by stupid, impatient treatment now.

Wonderful sense Al shows with his new car . . . IT'S A PITY HE CAN'T SHOW AS MUCH SENSE WITH HIS KID.

Young Bill Taylor's 15. You know how kids are at 15. An awkward, gangly youngster, always spilling himself all over the place. Dreamy, irresponsible, lazy, too. He'll hardly move out of his own tracks and sometimes he does not seem quite bright.

Young Bill gets Al's goat. He raises Cain with him—nags and lectures him—roars at him—ridicules him—tells him to "snap into it or I'll knock your fool block off." Once or twice, Al says, he's given him a "good whaling"—but it doesn't do any good. The more Al raves, the worse the kid gets. And Al can't understand why.

Young Bill isn't a bad bet. He's just a regular kid—GROWING UP. He has a good mind and a decent spirit, but HE ISN'T BROKEN IN YET. The parts are all there, and they are good parts, but there's no smooth co-ordination. HE'S STILL ON THE FIRST FIVE HUNDRED MILES. And his laziness and confusion, his spells of stupidity and stubbornness, are as natural as the squeaks and pulls in a new car.

GIVEN TIME, AND YOUNG BILL WILL WORK INTO FINE SHAPE, BUT HE NEEDS MIGHTY CAREFUL HANDLING FOR A WHILE.

Al has sense enough to ease a new car along for the first 500 miles, but he hasn't sense enough to ease a new human along. He coddles the car over hard spots, but he expects the kid to crash into them. He understands the problems of a pile of dumb, new steel, but he can't understand the problems of a sensitive, new man.

Al's coddling his car because it cost him a lot, and he wants it to give him fine and lasting performance, BUT THE KID COSTS HIM FAR MORE THAN THE CAR, AND IS INFINITELY MORE VALUABLE TO THE WORLD.

But that's how some men reason.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

A DOCTOR must feel kinda puffed up, giving orders all the time to people that ain't in his employ. Still, he has his troubles, too, I reckon. People make all kinds of excuses. A doc was advising a patient of his to drink less hard liquor.

"You drink too much whisky at a sitting," he says. "When you've had enough, you ought to change your order to something soft. Next time, after five of six whiskies, you try ordering mineral water."

"Doc, I've already tried that," says the patient. "But after five or six whiskies, I find I can't say mineral water."

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

IN the shoulder and chest there are great muscles that bind the arms to the trunk and move the shoulder joint in various ways; in the hips and buttocks there are others that bind the legs to the trunk, moving the hip-joint and supporting the whole weight of the body. Running over the ribs there is the clothing of muscle that produces the rhythmic swell and ebb of our chests, and wrapping round the abdomen, just below the skin, is another (three-ply) muscular sheet.

These are some of the more important muscles, but in the small space at our disposal we can give no adequate idea of the full complexity of the system.

H. G. WELLS.

These hundreds of muscles that move the human machine about are controlled by the nerves, tough white cords of tissue, some thick and conspicuous, some so thin as to be barely visible, running and branching among the quivering muscles.

As everyone knows, they function as telephone wires; they bring stimuli to the muscles whenever the latter are to move. Their arrangement is quite as complex and intricate as that of the muscular system, for each muscle must have its own nerve-supply.

They radiate out from the brain and its continuation, the spinal cord. Brain and spinal cord constitute a government, so to speak, which rules the muscles; it is constantly flashing instructions along the nerves and commanding a movement here, a relaxation there.

Without this control, if, for example, its nerve is cut or diseased—a muscle is paralyzed, flabby and helpless.

The brain and spinal cord do not exercise a wanton or capricious dictatorship; besides sending commands, they receive a copious stream of information from all parts of the body, and laboriously respond to that stream and move the mechanism in appropriate ways.

The central government is the brain. Its informants are the sense-organs—eyes, ears, nose, tongue, the organs of touch, warmth and pain, the organs in our muscles and joints that feel at any moment what our limbs are doing, the others in our chests and abdomens. These and many more are continually sending in their messages to the brain and the spinal cord, and the incoming stream, like the outgoing stream of instructions is also borne by nerves.

The blood-vessels that supply our muscles are of two kinds—the thick, elastic arteries, along which the warm, pulsing stream of blood is pumped, and the thinner veins, along which it flows sluggishly back.

Between the two there is a third system of very fine vessels, for the arteries lead into a network of invisibly small tubes, the capillaries, from which the veins lead away. The blood-stream, coursing and filtering through the muscles, keeps them active and healthy; it brings them fuel to burn and oxygen to burn it with, and it brings matter with which they can repair themselves from the slight wearing away that their working entails; moreover, it washes away the exhaust gases, so to speak—the by-products of their activity.

The blood-stream, be it noted, is not a peculiarity of the muscles; it perfuses every corner, every shred of tissue in the body, bringing food and oxygen and rinsing waste matters away.

The circulation of the blood centers in the heart and that is in the chest, where also the lungs are accommodated. Need we do more than name the ribs and the midriff inclosing this cavity?

The professor insists on calling the midriff "the diaphragm, a domed muscular partition between the thorax (his name for chest) and the abdomen." But he points out that the chest is really a conical rib-cage, narrow above and broad below.

The abdomen is singularly unprotected in front, with nothing but a soft muscular wall. Most of us have wondered at times why nature never foresaw the kick and stab at our lower vital centers.

The liver and stomach indeed cower up under protection of the lower ribs, being able to do so because of the domed frame of the midriff, but the poor bowels are dreadfully exposed in a beast that walks erect. The rest of the contents of the abdomen need but the slash of a sharp knife to be spilled abroad, as happens in that form of suicide so popular in Japan, harakiri.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and with Verne Porter to a cafe hung with cages of singing birds, but their twittering set our nerves a twitter and we fell to quarreling about who paid the score but I finally gave in sullenly and permitted him to settle.

So to look in on a theatrical rehearsal, and saw a fellow leap from a high pedestal to a platform of sharp spikes in bare feet, and he told me he was a Hindu and had practised this foolishness for 18 years. Home and to work and W. R. Hearst, Jr., stopped by to chat awhile.

In the evening to drive along the Harlem River and to Hoboken to see Joan Lowell in her dramatic offering. Afterward with a group to a German restaurant for a stoup of brew and we sang old songs, especially "Sweet Adeline," very sweet. To bed.

New York has three bachelor brothers who have taken three separate floors high up in a skyscraper apartment on Madison avenue. Each will have 14 rooms and their servant list totals 25. No women are to be permitted in the aeries.

* * *

One of these brothers is noted for his painful shyness. Recently he was invited to a dinner party where it was explained each male guest, as a gag to surprise the host, would wear full dress with a red vest, red bow tie and yellow shoes. When he arrived he was greeted with a roar of laughter by all who had come correctly attired. He remained for revenge. After dinner he started a dice game and won $30,000—exiting laughingly and without the customary blush.

* * *

Furriers report that paragraphers and other allegedly comical clowns have so persistently associated white ermine wraps with a type of feminine show-off the sale of them has slumped.

* * *

Show girls are dismissed with the brief line: "Please turn in your dressing room key." And who remembers when hired girls were "turned off?"

* * *

A psychologist explains rich New Yorkers often marry poor girls of humble parentage because of a "Cinderella complex." They are emotionally intoxicated by lifting some maid out of poverty to dazzling wealth. "Daddy" Browning is pointed out as the conspicuous example.

* * *

Mr. Browning, en passant, seems to have wearied of exotic marital escapades. He was a few years ago the gay, loud-shirted cavalier, thrilling to amatory adventure. Today he is a tired-eyed, gray-haired and slightly stooped old man.

* * *

The quick fortunes in fruit drinks are no longer possible. Stupendous profits came from low rentals of those little building crevices in heavily traveled blocks. But the hutches fell into the grasp of real estate profiteers. Some that rented for $100 a month are now rented for $250 a week on short leases.

* * *

Oddly enough, drink and sandwich stands rarely prosper next door to theaters or large assembly halls. People who come out of the dark into a sudden glare are dazzled and usually walk a block or so before buying sandwiches or drinks.

George White accuses one of his former actors who has grown suddenly haughty, of having his nose lifted.

Incidentally, White offered an innovation in his revue with a gorgeous curtain of egg-shell plush. During the opening overture, the curtain, manipulated by hidden strings, rose and fell in billowy waves, coiled in serpentine glides, did a few jazz jigs and suddenly cascaded Niagara like to the floor, stirring the audience to cheers. And somehow you feel sappy cheering a curtain.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

ARE you educating that daughter of yours to be self-supporting?

In her college work is she aiming at a definite goal, or is she getting merely what you term "polish" and a large acquaintance among congenial persons?

Suppose something should happen to you and your daughter had to go to work to support herself? Suppose even after her marriage something should happen to throw her upon her own resources in the world, would she have the training for a definite position or job?

Such conditions are coming up every day.

If your daughter's education depends upon your earning capacity, better have her plan to get something in the way of practical learning that would enable her to fill some niche that brings in a livable income.

More and more it is becoming the custom for women to work outside of their homes, and in many instances it is necessary in order to furnish and keep up the home so that they may dare have a family.

It is better for your daughter to be prepared to put her shoulder to the wheel and earn an honest living at almost any stage of her education, and yet the fact that she is prepared need not stop her completing a higher education should she so desire.
